Critter Runs Three Policemen Up the Same Peach Tree, and Chases Lon Archer Under the House--Officers Said it Had Hydrophobia

Record of Lonney Sweat

Born in Fayette county.
Shanghaled at fourteen from Savannah to England.
Shanghaled a few months later from a port in Wales to South America.
Sailed nine years before the mast.
Rode range in the west.
Came back to Jonesboro to settle down, and met a 1,000-pound, corn-fed Georgia bull that outdid anything he'd seen on land or water.

By Angus Perkerson

"SON," he said. "My name's Lonney, not Loonie."

And I made the correction.

"I don't know why the folks at Jonesboro sent me up here. But here I am, and I'll tell you the story. There isn't anybody at Jonesboro who wouldn't split his last dollar with me, and I'm the same way toward them, so I know they mean well.

"Why don't you have more spittoons?" he suggested, as he leaned back in his chair and canted his hat a trifle toward the right ear. "It helps a story."

The rain glistened on Lonney Sweat's mustache, the humor twinkled in his eye, his jaw ran square across like the jaw of a man who has tweaked the nose of adventure in any number of queer places, and in his speech was the roll, the freshness and the lift of the sea.

And, still, he lives at Jonesboro.

This man who was shanghaled at 14, who can talk of golden mornings on the Mediterranean, and of white sails, like wings, rising in the evening from the bay of Naples; who knows life in the large; and who can quote you verse from Kipling, verse of our "own trail, the out trail, the trail that is always new"—this man lives at Jonesboro! What's more, as our little summary says, he was born in Fayette county. But, to get back to the story.

"Yep," he said, "I've seen every country in Europe and South America. I've stayed right with 'em, brother, out in the west, I've seen a good many men and a good many critters. But honest, there never was anything like this Jonesboro bull.

"He was owned by Lon Archer's brother, and Lon and me started last week to bring him to Atlanta. Before we set out the bull whipped four niggers and we saw right off the trip was going to have its amusements.

"After walking down and laughing at him, I spit on his nose, and he seemed to sorta of lose spirit. Then, I hung a block round his neck, and me and Lon started with him. We'd got about Orchard Knob, near South river, when a nigger, with his coat tails spread to the wind, came ridin' down the hill on a bicycle.

"The bull took a flirt and drug me about 50 yards. He started down into a hollow, and me and Lon both lost our holt.

"The nigger on the bicycle turned round to come back and see what was the trouble, and he saw. The bull run him over a woodpile, jumped up and down on the bicycle, and the nigger climbed right up to the last leaf of a poplar tree.

"I heard a click-clickin', and there was three nice, neat-looking county policemen coming down the hill on their motorcycles. I heard them stoppin', but I wasn't takin' my eye very long off the bull.

"I'd been edgin' all this time towards a house that stood near the road, because something told me this bull had got aggravated and that some high and lofty place was what I needed. I was just figuring how I could get up on the roof, when I saw the bull stop pitching cords of wood on his horns, and stand and look at the officers.

Three Policemen Up One Peach Tree, All Saying, Shoot the Bull

"I made a break for the barn, which I saw had a ladder leading up to the loft, and the bull made a break for us. One of the policemen was right behind me, but I beat him to the ladder; and, not having time to stop, he kept right on round the house.

"Just as I stepped into the loft (and it didn't take me two seconds to get there) the bull knocked the ladder down and kept on. The policeman came into view again, headed for the barn and meanin' to come right up and join me.

"Then he saw the ladder was down, and he must have had a moment of heart failure. The bull flirted round the house and bored right into him.

"Blip! went the critter's head.

"'Lord, save me!' said the policeman, and made for a peach tree at the side of the yard.

"The bull was a good runner, but he was out-classed. It took the policeman three steps to go 15 yards and he just jumped up into the top of the tree. The other two were already there. It's the gospel truth that the three of them were in the top of one little peach tree, and that each had dropped his pistol on the ground at the foot of the tree.

"'Shoot the bull!' yelled one of them to me.

"Well, how was I to shoot him when I didn't have anything but a plug of tobacco and palpitation of the heart.

"Whisking round, the bull started toward the house, and then I saw where Lon was. He and a nigger woman that had been out in the yard hanging clothes on a line, had crawled under, and the woman was prayin'.

"The bull ripped off ten feet of weather boarding, and the woman prayed louder.

"'Oh, Lord,' she says, 'you know you

Department Store Managers Decide to Establish a Rogues' Gallery to Photograph Every Petty Thief Caught--Shops Co-operate

THE shoplifter stood by the hosiery counter in one of Atlanta's big department stores. She was stylishly dressed, rich furs around her neck, an enormous sable muff in her hands.

She fingered a pair of sheeny stockings.

"Let me see some pink ones, please," she asked the clerk.

As the girl turned to the shelf behind, with one swift, almost invisible motion, the shoplifter swept the silk hose into her muff. A moment later she put the salesgirl off with "some other time, perhaps," and was moving idly away. As she reached the next counter, her steps quickened. She was noticeably hurrying when she stepped into the elevator. At the second floor, she got out and made straight for the ladies' rest room.

A half hour later, the shoplifter had been taken to the manager's private office. She denied with hysterical tears. They had her searched. In a pocket sewn into the lining of her petticoat were the silk hose.

Muffs and secret pockets—they are but one of many methods employed by the woman shoplifter. For years she has plied her trade in Atlanta, but it is only within the last few months that she has become so audacious that department store managers have decided on a systematic war to protect themselves.

Endless petty thefts from the counters, have caused the belief that a number of women have banded themselves into an organized gang for shoplifting.

"We must act," said the managers. And now, with every arrest in one store, the managers and chief floorwalkers of other stores are called. They look on the offender. She is released, but the next time she enters any store, she will be spotted and watched.

The managers have even decided on a Rogues' Gallery. Shoplifters caught in the future will be photographed, and their pictures kept for identification.

One woman recently caught, was denied by the courts access to any store. She cannot shop in Atlanta unless she sends in a probation officer to make purchases for her.

It is not your poor woman who is the shoplifter. Few are forced to steal. Many arrested have had money in their handbags which would buy the stolen goods ten times over. No, the shoplifter is imbued with an itch to thieve which at times is a veritable disease.

"I don't know why I took it; I just couldn't help it," they sob, when they are found out.

Nor does this mean they are kleptomaniacs. Many of them will plead with tears that they are so afflicted, but most often they simply use this as an excuse. Several of them indeed, are dope fiends, according to one manager.

A woman arrested not long ago, broke down in the manager's office. Pale and shaking, she cried out for the drug, just one injection of morphine or she would die. But this woman and the kleptomaniacs, are exceptions. The average shoplifter steals just to see if she can get away with it.

And it is a hard job to get away with in the modern Atlanta department store. The most flagrant offenders are known by sight and watched. The amateur will give herself away. Timid side glances, sly attempts to divert the shopgirl's attention, idle fingering over stuffs which she refuses to buy—these little tricks are known and lead to suspicion.

The store's own detectives will have an eye on such a woman. Oftentimes, they try to frighten her off before she attempts a theft. If she feels that she is suspected, nothing would induce her to steal, for possibly no offender so fears the law and publicity as the woman shoplifter.

The shoplifter does not steal bulky articles. Her specialty is silk goods, wearing apparel, laces and the like—pieces which she can slip off the counter easily and swiftly conceal.

Most shoplifters will hide an article temporarily in their muffs or wad it up into a small ball in their hands. A blouse they have found is a good thing to wear.

Once the coveted article is obtained, they hasten to hide it still better. They will make for the rest room, where they can pack away the loot about their persons. Many of them have special pockets sewn into the lining of their suits. One woman was found who had ripped the lining of her skirt in such a manner that she had a monster sack in which to deposit goods. When she was arrested, she was a walking store. Six pairs of stockings, a dozen dainty handkerchiefs, several lace centerpieces, and fifteen yards of silk, were in the bottom of her skirt.

But shop-lifting is a dangerous game now. With the precautions that managers have taken, it is difficult to steal, and with their determination to prosecute offenders to the fullest extent, it will go hard with the shoplifter who is caught.

GRECIAN BANDS AND NAIAD PUFFS FOR ATLANTA'S SPRING COIFFURE

As Winter Declines, Ears Are Being Tucked in. But What Matter Inconsistency if Beauty Be Attained! Style Embodies Spirit of Edgar Allan Poe's "Helen"

By A Man

NOW that winter is entering into its decline, the ears of all women are to be muffled. It shows the inconsistency of the sex. All winter long the ears were there to be tweaked and pinched by the hard wind. Now with the mildness of spring but a matter of weeks off, they are to go into seclusion under puffs that have been called Naiad.

This Naiad is taken from Edgar Allan Poe's second verse of an ode to Helen, who probably had a bad disposition, when you really got to know her, and whose complexion in all likelihood was artificial. But the verse goes:

"On desperate seas long wont to roam,
Thy hyacinth hair, thy classic face,
Thy Naiad airs have brought me home
To the glory that was Greece,
And the grandeur that was Rome."

Perhaps all this seems withdrawn from the way hair is to be dressed in Atlanta. But the spring method is supposed to embody some of the spirit of this poetry. The hair is to have a hyacinth quality, which is an expression that means nothing at all to me, and is to be piled up in a way that will render the face classic.

After the manner of Pavlowa and the other dancers, any odd piece of ribbon found handy is to be tied in a Grecian fashion round the head, and curly, wavy strands that really give one almost a degree of pleasure, are to be tucked under in a way which makes the hair seem to have been bobbed.

In New York, those who have no hair to speak of really are clipping it, but the tucking in is all that has been tried so far in Atlanta. In fact, the very attractive pictures here are the first illustration in Atlanta of the new coiffure.

And, really, while it does seem unutilitarian to tuck in the ears after winter is done, the style has its charms, hasn't it?

Packages of Mystery Auctioned at Old Hoss Sale

By Ward Greene

EVERY three months or so Atlanta is the scene of an Arabian Nights entertainment which Haroun Al Raschid never knew. It is the "old hoss" sale, the auctioning off of packages which have been left uncalled for at the offices of express companies and shipping depots. They are sold to the highest bidder with no hint as to their contents. Nobody knows what's in them, neither auctioneer, company nor the man or woman who buys what may prove shoe polish or cut-glass. Mysterious, alluring, ridiculous, tragic, miraculous, the "old hoss" sale grips the lust of gambling which is latent in all of us. This is what happened at a recent sale on South Pryor street.

The red-headed auctioneer held a slim, wrapped parcel high in his left hand, and waved airy circles with the mallet in his right. He stood on a table amid a pile of mysterious packages and glared at the motley crowd around him.

"How much?" he shouted.

"Ten cents, I'm offered!" boomed the auctioneer's voice. "A pitiful dime! Why, this here box might hold a diamond necklace or a solid gold watch! What do y' say? Fifteen? Fifteen? Gotchu, sir! Fifteen cents I'm offered! Fifteen cents!"

The man next to me cleared his throat, and pressed forward. The crowd began to get interested. What was in the box? Nobody knew. A fortune might be knocked down for a song, or a quarter capture riches. On the other hand, the bidding might run up to ten dollars and the purchaser get a bottle of cough cure. Such a gamble are Atlanta's "old hoss" sales.

Money began to burn in my pocket and the box took on the glamor of Cassandra's casket. "Going at fifteen cents! going at fifteen cents!" yelled the red-headed man.

"Twenty!" I gasped in the nick of time.

"Twenty cents! Twenty cents I'm offered. Who bids twenty-five? Nobody bids? Going at twenty cents! Going once; going twice; going thu-ree times! And sold! to the gentleman next the gas stove."

The package was passed over the heads of the crowd. I took it with eager hands. It was covered with brown paper, wrapped close, a box thin

Women Form Board of Trade

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 27.—A board of trade, composed entirely of women, has been organized here. It is under the direction of the local chamber of commerce, but it has separate officers and is engaged in civic work in the same manner but with much more enthusiasm than organizations of men.

The woman's board of trade in Columbue intends to show the men of the state that masculine control of civic and state affairs has brought about the neglect of any number of important considerations.

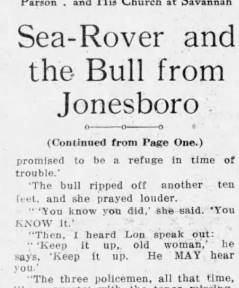

For instance, the beautiful side of things always seems impractical to a man. To spend money making a city beautiful, to consider environment, to want picture galleries, and music, and all the other influences that stimulate and refine, seems to him mere foolery.

But with the woman's board of trade, values will be weighed in different scales.

WHAT ARE GEORGIA BRIDES WORTH?

Ten Dollars Is the Average Valuation, Says Savannah's Marrying Parson--Sometimes, Twenty Five or Fifty Cents

The Rev. Jonn S. Wilder, "Marrying Parson", and His Church at Savannah

"ANYTHING you think the bride's worth," he would say. "Just gauge it by what you think of her."

The bride would be changing then from wedding gown to traveling dress, and relatives would be drying their eyes while guests were preparing rice and old slippers. The groom would shift from one foot to the other, smile in a wedding-day fashion, and say something about such words being beyond price. Then, he would hand the preacher $10.

After marrying 500 couples in seven years, the Rev. John S. Wilder, of the South Side Baptist church, in Savannah, says invariably his fee is that.

When the groom asks: "What do I owe you?" he answers, chuckling the while over his witticism: "Whatever you think the bride's worth?" Then, appears the ten-dollar gold piece.

A marriage a week and a few more for good measure is Mr. Wilder's record. From county to county, his record for tying knots that hold and bring happiness, has spread, until now it is a popular belief that where he performs the ceremony good luck will follow.

Sea-Rover and the Bull from Jonesboro

promised to be a refuge in time of trouble.'

"The bull ripped off another ten feet, and she prayed louder.

"'You know you did,' she said. 'You KNOW it.'

"Then, I heard Lon speak out: "'Keep it up, old woman,' he says, 'Keep it up. He MAY hear you.'

"The three policemen, all that time, like a quartet with the tenor missing, kept on yelling at me to shoot the bull, like they thought it was a new song.

"This must have driven Lon to desperation. I saw him backing out from under the house, and about five minutes later I heard a 'bang,' and the critter down in the yard sort of sagged to one side, and then straightened up.

"Sure enough, Lon, who'd managed to get shotgun, was shootin' the bull. It took seven shots to get the beast down, and then, when we'd got him tied and string-halted and had broke one of his legs, the three police came down and shot him some more.

"It occurred to me then we'd call up a packing house and sell the carcass, and what do you reckon happened?

"'Sell that bull!' spoke up one of the policemen. 'Not on your life. It's got hydrophobia. Think we'd been scared of anything but a mad bull?'

"And it's the Gospel truth, we had to take the bull back to Jonesboro, and we're eatin' on him ourselves.

"There wasn't anything wrong with the critter. As I told one of the police, though I believed I could eat a meal of that meat and whip Jack Johnson.

"In all my range ridin' days I never saw anything like it. This bull weighed 1,000 pounds, and he had more bad temper to the inch than I ever ran across before. I don't believe there ever was another bull equal to him. I've seen critters in the west and in South America, I've run across various and sundry sorts of bull in a good many different countries. But Jonesboro has them all beat—I bar no country, no clime.

"When I was fourteen years old I started out seeing the world, but I had to come home to see a thing like this. Being shanghaied out from Savannah—and that happened to me when I was just fourteen—was child's play to this. I wasn't used to hard knocks and bumps then, either. I was just a green country boy, with a fool notion in my head that I'd like to see a little of life—and I saw it.

"I woke up one morning, bound for England, with my head feeling six sizes too big, and a husky man standing over me with a mop.

"'Say,' he said. 'Clean off that deck.'

"And I did just exactly what he said.

"It wasn't more than three months later I found myself in the same fix, bound this time from a place in Wales to South America. Seeing then I was going to be shanghaied, any how, I decided I'd go ahead and be a sailor, and for nine years I was. For a year and a half I lived in Leghorn, Italy, and got to the point where I could dream in Italian. I went all over South America, I saw the west as it used to be. Then, I took up the electrical business and came back to Jonesboro."

For awhile he sat silent.

"Don't you ever feel the wanderlust?" I asked him.

"Me," he said. "I got a wife and six children."

Groom Who Valued Bride At 25 Cents

"But the fee," he said, coming back jokingly to the worth of the bride, "sometimes varies. Once, when I made my usual remark to the groom, a neighbor of mine spoke up and said I had twin children to buy candy for.

"'Well, here's a quarter,' said the groom. "I guess that will be enough.'

"I gave the quarter to the bride for a wedding present.

"Another time, after a marriage in the country, the groom sought me out, and with great earnestness told me of his joy and asked me what he owed me, I told him. He gave me fifty cents. Later on he mentioned to his bride what had happened.

"'I always knew John thought a lot of me,' she answered seriously. "Now I know it."

Although he is known as the marrying parson and has joined together 500 couples, Mr. Wilder doesn't specialize in runaway marriages. Rich and poor, old and young, the socially prominent and the socially obscure, all have been pronounced man and wife by him. His oldest candidates for the marriage bonds were seventy years of age, a couple who had been sweethearts before the civil war, but who became separated and met again only a few years ago.

"Marriage is the most sacred act a man performs—more sacred than death," says Mr. Wilder. "When one dies he goes to the graveyard—but when one marries nobody knows where he is going or what will happen to him.

Safeguard Marriage In Issuing License

"I believe I can truthfully say that every marriage I have performed was straight in the eyes of God and man. I have not knowingly married any one who had violated the laws of either. When a couple comes to a minister to be married, and has a license, the minister must take their word that things are as represented in the license. We must believe what it says as to their ages and other qualifications.

"I do not believe the majority of ministers will perform ceremonies where there is a reason why the marriage should not occur. The place to guard against such things is where the licenses are issued. If the same care is taken there as by the ministers there would be fewer unlawful marriages."

Many bridegrooms who had spent all they had in preparing for marriage have come to Mr. Wilder without money. He has never refused one. Usually they promise to send him money later, but they never do so. "When a man marries his troubles begin," says Mr. Wilder, and lets it go at that.

He is now endeavoring to build a new church on a lot recently purchased by his congregation. All the material to go into it is being given by individuals. Brick for the foundations are now being accumulated a few at a time. Mr. Wilder says that since the church is needed, Providence will put it into the hearts of the people to provide the material.

Mr. Wilder is primarily the poor man's minister. He spends most of his time visiting the poor, the sick and the unfortunate. When a poor negro is condemned for some crime it is Mr. Wilder who visits him in his cell and offers consolation. If a poor widow needs wood and food to keep warmth and life in her children, it is John Wilder who provides them. He was instrumental in organizing the "Silent Brotherhood," whose province it is to provide work for the unfortunate without asking embarrassing questions and subjecting him to needless investigation.

Revived Spiritual Life Is Our Greatest Need, Writes Bishop Candler

Word "Evolution" Has Been Overworked: We Have Heard Too Much, in Recent Years, of the Uplift of Mankind by Such Processes as Burbank Applies to Potatoes

By Bishop Warren A. Candler

THERE are plausible theories which so relieve the human mind of the need of careful investigation and strenuous intellectual effort that men incline to accept them for their conveniences without scrutinizing closely their contents and implications. Such theories are like X in algebra; they express in convenient form unknown quantities. Such is the theory, or rather, the manifold theories of evolution. The word "evolution" has been over-worked because it was an easy expression for utterly unknown forces and processes.

But it has deceived many, and by it they have been led into grave errors concerning the most serious matters. It has been applied to the moral development of the human race, as if man had no more free-agency than plants and brutes. Hence in recent years we have heard much of up-lifting mankind by processes such as Burbank applies to potatoes, or stock-raisers employ to breed cattle. It has been the dream of many that a new and nobler race was to be evolved by "heredity and environment;" and this dream has addled the heads of some preachers and deceived many who account themselves Christian workers. Men of this type have put far too much emphasis upon efforts to ameliorate outside conditions of society, rather than upon endeavours for the renewal of spiritual life in human souls. They have talked more of sociology than of salvation. They have seemed to forget the obvious fact that whatever bad moral conditions that may exist in society have been made by men, and that these conditions have not been making men. They have ignored the manifest truth that if there were no human beings in the earth there would be no immorality on the planet. They overlook that which all history affirms, namely, that men of the noblest ancestry and most comfortable environment perpetrate often the worst crimes; and on the other hand that men under the greatest hindrances to virtue rise frequently to the loftiest heights of moral heroism. Adam sinned in Eden and Daniel worked righteousness in Babylon; but all such history has been ignored by the sciolists in sociology who have been seeking to save the world by a plan of salvation which has been derisively called "salvation by soup and soap."

God, Not Sociology, Is Your Salvation

It is a cheering sign of the times that this delusion is beginning to yield under the influence of more reasonable and religious thinking. The men who are most concerned to relieve the distresses of society and remove from the land all pit-falls of temptation are beginning to proclaim with renewed power that salvation is not a result to be wrought by sociological "processes-letters," but by divine grace. The wisest and most devout leaders are again affirming the old, old truth that the name of Jesus is the only name given under heaven whereby men must be saved. They are pointing out with the utmost clearness that man is a free-agent, utterly different from the plants and animals beneath him, and that he can not be developed by the arts of the gardener or the methods of the stock-breeder. They are declaring that man's highest relation is to God, and that relations and conditions on earth can not be rectified until men get right with God.

A case in point is a recent deliverance by Dr. Shailer Matthews, the President of the Federal Council of Churches in America and Dean of the Divinity School of the University of Chicago. No informed person will affirm that Dr. Matthews is antagonistic to social work by the church, or that he is indifferent to bad social conditions in any part of our country. He has bestowed much attention upon social subjects and has been a prominent worker in the field of social reforms; but he has uttered recently a most timely warning to which preachers and churches will do well to take heed. Here is a paragraph from his deliverance:

People Crying for Elemental Religion

"A danger to which Protestantism —particularly progressive Protestantism—in America is exposed is that its Churches be one mere agencies of social service. There are many people who, in reaction from extreme orthodoxy, have come to feel that the sole business of the Church is to push social reform. This danger is particularly strong in America just now because social workers have come to see that the Church, instead of being hostile to their ideals, is the greatest force by which their ideals can be put into operation. Such a valuing of the Church brings no small satisfaction to those of us who have endeavored to set forth the social significance of the spiritual life. But we cannot let social service take the place of God. People cannot be amused into conscientiousness. Picnics are not the equivalents of prayer-meetings, and Sunday-school baseball leagues have not yet developed into revivals. It was natural in a period of awakening and transition that men should jump to the conclusion that the Church ought to stand for every good cause. It was easy to forget that society will organize institutions for each newly realized need. But even those of us who feel most deeply the social obligations of Christianity see that a Church as an institution does not have the same field of responsibility as Christian individuals. These last may be organized in a great variety of institutions, each of which performs some particular function set by the division of labor in our world. Church leaders can delegate to these institutions certain duties, but they cannot delegate the duties of spiritual parentage. A Protestant Church cannot be an ethical asylum; it must be a home in which souls are born into newness of life.

He continues in this pointed passage: 'From many a community there is already rising a cry for elemental religion. With all their scientific business success, American laymen are asserting that they want to be assured of God and immortality and the worth of righteousness. They want companionship in spiritual loneliness, comfort in hours of pain, courage in moments of moral wavering. Their souls are athirst for the Unknown, and they will be satisfied with nothing save the water that comes from the River of God. If the awakening of Protestantism were to mean simply a renascence of ethics, or a sort of descriptured positivism, American society would be defrauded. When it asks for the bread of life, it will not be satisfied with treatises on eugenics."

Eugenics Urged in Place of Religion

The Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South uttered, nearly a year ago, a similar warning to that which Dr. Matthews now puts forth. In their address to the General Conference, which met in Oklahoma City, May, 1914, they said:

"There be many in our day who assume to command and correct the Church, undertaking to constrain her to renounce her position, contract her mission, and consent to exchange the service of God for what they are pleased to call 'the service of humanity.' They would have her abandon her high calling in Christ Jesus and give herself exclusively to all sorts of pretentious programs of 'social betterment,' 'improved environment,' and the like. They conjure her to rely upon eugenics rather than upon regeneration by the Holy Spirit for the making of a new and nobler race, and to bring to bear upon man, the free-agent, stock raising expedients and plant-culture devices as the most efficacious means to improve the species.

"But she may not heed the voices of these spurious renovators of mankind, who have framed their systems according to the postulates of a materialistic philosophy and not according to the pattern shown to her by her Lord in the mount. As he is in the world, so she is in the world, 'to seek and to save that which is lost.' Recognizing man as a being made a little lower than the angels and not simply a little higher than the brutes, she approaches him in the altitudes of his nature, with saving powers from above, and not with soothing potions from beneath. She knows full well the disposition of a fallen and prodigal race to get away from the Father, provided his goods may be enjoyed after his presence has been escaped; and she condemns the excess of riot to which such departure from God leads and the dreadful degradation in which it ends.

Church Insists on Curing the Soul

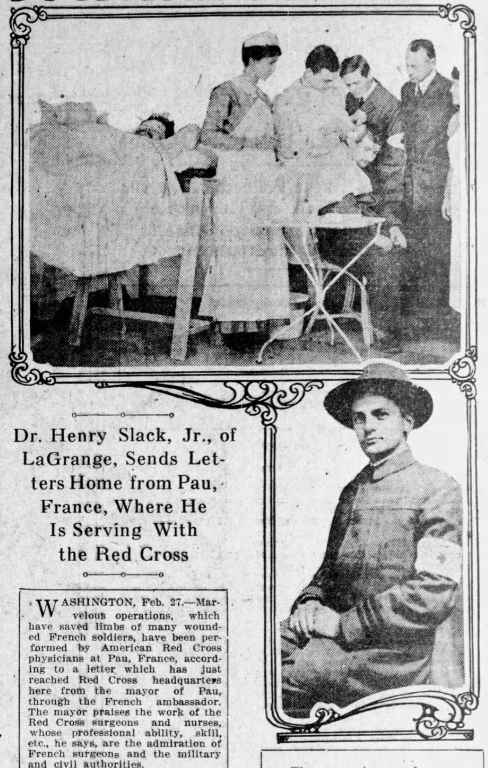

"Hence she refuses to spend her strength in merely carrying modish apparel and more wholesome food to wayward souls and arranging more refined associations and elegant environments for them, however good such things may be; she can be satisfied with nothing less than bringing the wanderers back to the Father's yearning heart who waits to welcome them, and to the Father's house, where there is for them not only 'bread enough and to spare,' but a banquet of love overflowing with heavenly joy. She believes that 'the soul of all improvement is the improvement of the soul,' and that social progress can never go in advance of the regeneration of personal character by the power of God and its perfection through the grace of Christ the Redeemer.

"The Church is not indifferent to the bitter cries of the fallen and forlorn sons of men. On the contrary, her heart is filled with the tenderest pity and the most compassionate concern for them, as her hands are filled with most loving ministries to them; but she holds them in too high esteem to regard them as no more than animals to be filled with food and satisfied with improved physical conditions."

These are sound words of Dr. Matthews and the Methodist bishops. The supreme need of our country is a revival of spiritual life, and not a mere reformation of social institutions.

No reformation of the social system will be of any value which does not arise from a new and nobler spiritual life in individual souls. We need a revival of religion, and not a mere reformation of conditions.

"I HAVE SEEN THE PATHOS OF WAR" WRITES GEORGIA DOCTOR IN FRANCE

Dr. Henry Slack, Jr., of LaGrange, Sends Letters Home from Pau, France, Where He Is Serving With the Red Cross

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Marvelous operations, which have saved limbs of many wounded French soldiers, have been performed by American Red Cross physicians at Pau, France, according to a letter which has just reached Red Cross headquarters here from the mayor of Pau, through the French ambassador. The mayor praises the work of the Red Cross surgeons and nurses, whose professional ability, skill, etc., he says, are the admiration of French surgeons and the military and civil authorities.

"IN the last two days we have had the pathos of the war brought home to us. We have had our first death. I knew it was coming. We have been too lucky. Since opening in October, we had managed to pull them all through. But yesterday in four hours of each, two passed out."

In his next sentence Dr. Henry R. Slack, of LaGrange, tells of the burial of a peasant from Britagne and of a boy from Lille, France. He pictures, in a simple way, the grey, bent heads, the peasants in quaint dress, the father, the mother, and the squad of uniformed soldiers.

Further along he describes the mental effects of war on the men who "for the first two or three days after getting in from the trenches are like some stupified animals, not talking, not complaining, never wincing at pain. Then, they gradually become normal men, who take life as philosophically as any crowd I ever saw."

"Some very strange things happen," he continues. "For instance, two first cousins who had never seen each other before, found themselves in beds alongside each other."

His letters, written to his father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. Henry R. Slack, of LaGrange, have a close personal interest. They tell what he himself has seen, what he daily is undergoing as a doctor assigned to the American Red Cross in France.

With Dr. Slack is Dr. Kirby Smith, the son of General Kirby Smith, of New Orleans, and once a great football player at Sewanee university.

They are assigned to the Red Cross hospital at Pau, France, which was thanked publicly by the French minister of war, for its "generous and valuable assistance."

Dr. Slack is a graduate of LaGrange High school, of the University of Georgia, and of John Hopkins university. At the outbreak of the European war he resigned his position as assistant resident surgeon of St. John's hospital to accept the Red Cross appointment.

"The first of our patients to die," he writes, "was a peasant from Britagne. His poor old father and mother were here with his wife, who left an eighteen months old baby at home. They had the funeral this morning and I was designated to go (two doctors and four nurses represented the American Red Cross).

"It was a dark, rainy morning. The hearse preceded by two or three priests and surrounded by a military guard left the hospital and marched to the church. Just behind the hearse was the old father, his bent gray head bared, his wife and daughter-in-law in their quaint peasant costumes on either side. Then came the American and French nurses, the two doctors, two representatives from the office force, a squad of orderlies and patients in unifdrms and three or four squads of soldiers. The coffin, of course, was draped in a flag and there were several wreaths of flowers hanging about it.

"At the church a regimental mass was celebrated and we all marched to the cemetery. I was rather surprised that they didn't fire a salute or sound taps, but that doesn't seem to go with a military funeral here. Not a tear was shed. All bore their grief stoildly.

"The second death was a boy from Lille, his home is gone—everything now in the hands of the Germans. He was a fine looking fellow and had one of the prettiest, sweetest looking sisters you ever saw, and her grief was most touching."

Here his letters turn from the funeral of the two French soldiers to an instance on the battle line.

"One of our latest patients," he writes, "told of an agreement between two companies. There was a little house about fifty feet behind the French line, and a little strip of woods about the same distance behind the German lines. The trenches were less than one hundred meters apart. Each evening, by mutual agreement, both lines allowed a man to go back and heat water, make tea or coffee without molestation. This worked admirably for about two weeks, but unfortunately in the dusk one evening an unwitting German fired on the French tea maker and that put an end to the truce.

"There is practically no let up in the fighting. When these chaps arrive at the hospital the first night they are restless, nervous and can't sleep. They say that they wake up with a start and listen for the rattle of the rifles and the roar of the cannon. It is the first time that some of them have slept in beds for five months.

"One of the patients gave us a very realistic account of the first days in Belgium. He described the forced retreat, how terribly they suffered from the August heat. How they got as far as Namur, stayed there one day and then were shot to pieces.

"Once they marched twenty-six hours without sleep or food. Another time they went from one Friday to the next Monday afternoon without eating. His description of the first dead man he saw, of the first time he loaded his gun to shoot at a man, indicated a good kind heart. He is a handsome chap and only twenty-two years old. His home is in the hands of the Germans.

Wounded Covered With Blood and Mud

"Our last batch of wounded was run out by the Germans from the region of Soissons. They surely were pitable objects, mud and blood from head to foot. All that came to us were from the Forty-second and Forty-fourth regiments, and they said these two regiments were absolutely annihilated. One of my patients told me that from his company of 200 men only twenty escaped. They were compelled to abandon their wounded and every man look out for himself. Another said that the day he was wounded, he with 180 other wounded, were driven fifty miles from the battle line to the first dressing station. There, in the deserted village in which the station was situated, one doctor aided by two orderlies, dressed the lot of them. It took him from noon Thursday until the same hour Friday, steady work.

"While I was dressing a chap, wounded in the neck and shoulder (how it missed his jugular is a miracle to me), an officer came in and questioned him concerning a captain in the Forty-fourth regiment. It happened that this patient was in the very company of which the officer was inquiring, and told him about the death of the captain (who proved to be the brother-in-law of the inquiring officer). My patient said not only the

Women Join To Get Vote By State on Suffrage Measure

Atlanta Has Been Organized By Wards, And Suffrage Meetings Are More Popular Now Than Teas

THE suffragists—don't call them suffragettes, please—have "got down to brass tacks" in Atlanta. They say they're going to bring their votes for women bill to a decision in next summer's legislature, and they're working now toward that end. And if their bill doesn't pass, why they'll just keep on working until it does. There'll be other years and other legislatures—and more suffragists every year.

In the suffrage headquarters at 217 Peachtree street Miss Eleanor Raoul writes letters, uses the phone, receives callers, and talks suffrage. The rooms are not up four flights in a dusty corner, but right on the main floor, with a sign on the window and automobile agencies all around. When Miss Raoul isn't there her sister, Mrs. Mary Raoul Millis is "on the job," or somebody else is. In the afternoon the front room is a tea shop, with the income going to to the expense fund.

They've got Atlanta pretty well organized now, with a branch club in five wards and others ready to form. The ward clubs have weekly teas and meetings, with talks on suffrage, and as each new hostess invites her own circle of friends the seed of suffrage is spread in new soil every week. These are the heads of the ward clubs:

Third, Mrs. W. Hinchcliff.
Fourth, Mrs H. A. Wasson.
Sixth, Mrs. R. A.Casson.
Eighth, Mrs. Frank O. Spain.
Ninth, Mrs. Frank Fitten.

West End is soon to have its Seventh ward club, with Mrs. Hal Miller the probable head.

The local organization is called "The Fulton and DeKalb Counties Branch of the Equal Suffrage Party of Georgia," and it has close to a thousand members now, though it was organized only last August. J. Carrol Payne gave it the use of the Peachtree street office, Hunt Chipley the telephone, other friends the furniture, and there are several liberal contributors to the expense fund. For there are no membership dues in this organization, which is a party rather than a society.

"Yes, we have a number of men members—prominent men, too," says Miss Raoul, at her desk. "You see our letter head bears the names of several indorsers of the work—James L. Anderson, Hunt Chipley, Charles A. Conklin, Linton Hopkins, E. R. Black, Samuel T. Weyman, T. K. Glenn, Jerome Jones, Bartow Blount, J. Carrol Payne, Dr. John E. White, Marion Jackson. The men help us as contributors, by speaking at the meetings and in many ways.

"We are growing—our branch—at the rate of 100 members a month. The public officers have helped us grow, for there are many believers in suffrage who had just been waiting an opportunity to sign the Yellow Slip.

The Yellow Slip of membership is like this:

FULTON AND DeKALB COUNTIES
BRANCH OF
THE EQUAL SUFFRAGE PARTY OF GEORGIA
No Dues

I..... State ..... City
believing that women as well as men should vote, hereby join the Equal Suffrage Party, with the understanding that it is non-partisan in character and that this action does not interfere with my regular political affiliations.
Telephone..... Ward.....

The suffragists failed by just one vote of getting their bill reported for passage by the house committee on constitutional amendments at the last session of the legislature. They expect to get it to a vote on its merits this year.

The suffragists point out that the Georgia bill eliminates the negro woman from the ballot just as the negro man is now eliminated. And if the state doesn't pass the bill, sooner or later, Congress will pass a national suffrage law, which will NOT bar the negro from the ballot, so Georgia had better pass her own while she has the opportunity.

German Maid Gets Iron Cross

BOCHUM, Germany, Feb. 27.—Both the iron cross and the medal for life saving decorate the breast of Fraulein Aust, a girl still in her teens and a native of Bochum. When the war broke out, Miss Aust, like many other girls, experienced the desire to join the Red Cross. She knew her parents would object, so she obtained permission of them to visit relatives at Muenster, but instead of proceeding there she went to a Red Cross training home and was soon drafted to the eastern front as a nurse. There her bravery on the battlefields of Poland, where she tended the wounded under fire, attracted attention from her superiors, who reported instances of her courage to Field Marshal von Hindenburg. The commander-in-chief thereupon decided to award her the Iron Cross, which he himself pinned on her blouse. A short time afterward Miss Aust, while on the Silesian frontier, jumped into the swollen river Oder and saved two children from drowning. For this heroic deed she was given the life-saving medal. She returned home at the end of January for a short rest and gave a complete surprise to her parents who had all the time believed she was with her relatives in Muenster.

POISONING ANIMALS TO SAVE HUMAN BEINGS

Only By the Slow Deaths of Rabbits, Guinea Pigs and Horses Is Diphtheria and Lockjaw Cured and Hydrophobia Prevented from Developing

The poisoning of guinea pigs and rabbits to develop or test an antitoxin to save human life, is shown in these photographs.

By Angus Perkerson

BY POISONING animals of the inoffensive and timid kind, that make an especial appeal to the sympathies, the Georgia state board of health, like other state boards, is curing diphtheria and lockjaw, and preventing hydrophobia.

Rabbits are made to go mad; guinea pigs are infected with a poison that kills them by degrees, and horses undergo a system of poisoning lasting six months.

This cruelty is the greatest work of mercy undertaken by the state.

Without it, hundreds of children would die of diphtheria; lockjaw, with its distorting pain, would be entirely beyond help, and hydrophobia, which is now preventive, would run its whole dreadful course.

How Animals Are Used to Save Lives

Despite this, friends of guinea pigs, rabbits and horses, made such a protest in New York City that thousands of dollars had to be spent to allow physicians to continue to kill animals in order that human beings might continue to live.

The Georgia state board is afraid of something like that here. When people generally get to know how rabbits are made mad that the substance of their spinal cords may be injected to prevent hydrophobia, the board fears New York's clamor will be transferred to Atlanta.

"The same sentiment shown in New York is apt to crop out here or anywhere else," explained one of the state doctors last week. "People will say: 'How can you torture the poor animals? It mustn't be allowed.' And at the same time forget it's only by killing the poor animals that we can save human beings.

"We are afraid, now this story is getting out, that some people in Georgia will feel the same way."

Do you?

Did you know that to prevent hydrophobia, the state has to infect rabbits with the germ or, whatever condition it is that produces madness? That to cure diphtheria, many guinea pigs have to be killed? That to get the antitoxin for both diphtheria and lockjaw, horses must be infected with the poisons that cause these diseases?

Without animals to poison and draw from their veins an antitoxin, physicians would be of little use in the treatment of three of the most fatal infectious diseases. Guinea pigs and rabbits are among the most important part of the equipment of the state board of health. By dying they do more for the good of humanity than many a higher form of life does by living.

The state board of health can see no reason for opposing this sacrifice of animal life. Anti-vivisection, it believes, is the most thoroughgoing type of American absurdity brought forward in recent years.

Suppose a child is lying sick of diphtheria, say, here in Atlanta. Its cheeks are flushing, its eyes bright, the walls of the throat seem to be closing. Only one chance is offered, that is the injection of a serum developed from the blood of a horse which has been poisoned with diphtheria.

The process, and one that the state board follows daily, is like this:

A poison produced from the germ that causes diphtheria is injected into the veins of a horse. The animal isn't infected with the germ itself, but simply with the poison, which is quite a difference. This poison is gained by growing the diphtheria bacillus in veal broth, and then filtering this broth through unglassed porcelain, through which the germs can't pass. The filtered stuff is the poison separated from the germs.

The poisonous substance is injected into the horse about once a week for six months; and the system of the animal, in an effort to throw off the poison, develops an antitoxin which will cure diphtheria. At the end of the six months, blood is drawn from the veins of the horse and is allowed to clot. The liquid part is retained, and it is this liquid that contains the antitoxin and is injected into the veins of people who have diphtheria.

Guinea pigs are used to determine the strength of the antitoxin furnished by the horse. To a layman it is rather a complicted proceeding and is difficult to explain, but it goes something like this:

The physician or laboratory worker, or whatever you choose to call him, sets out to find the smallest quantity of poison developed by diphtheria germs that will kill a guinea pig weighing 250 grams in four or five days. He makes a guess in the instance of five or six pigs, varying the quantity in the case of each, and then injects 100 times what he considers the required amount. If one of the pigs dies in four or five days, then, that pig got 100 times the required amount while the others either were given too much or too little.

The next step is to discover the quantity of antitoxin that will save a pig given 100 times the fatal dose of poison; and when this has been discovered the doctor has the unit for the antitoxin, the standard to go by.

All this complicated process is necessary because the antitoxin produced by one horse is stronger than that produced by another, and the unit must be discovered before injections are made into the human veins.

The antitoxin for lockjaw is made in exactly the same way and is tested in the same way, except that the tetanus baccillus is employed instead of the diphtheria bacillus, that the guinea pig must weigh more, and that the unit must be enough antitoxin to save a pig which has been given 1,000 times the fatal dose.

But in preventing hydrophobia the process is entirely different. Hydrophobia, by the way, is a disease that can't be cured; once it develops death is inevitable. But prevention is made not only possible but almost certain by the use of the substance from the spinal cord of a rabbit that has been made mad.

No one knows just what produces hydrophobia. But it can readily be developed in a rabbit by infecting the animal with some of the brain tissue from a mad dog; or, as is more often the case, with the brain tissue of another rabbit that has been killed with hydrophobia in order that a human being might live.

A part of the spinal cord of the rabbit that died of hydrophobia is injected into the human being who is threatened with hydrophobia, and in this way the disease, fatal if once developed, is prevented.

The whole truth is that without poisoning inoffensive animals the state board of health would be powerless to cure or to prevent three of the most serious diseases that kill human beings.

Packages of Mystery Are Sold at Old Hoss Sale

Quarterly Tilt With Chance Prods the Gambling Instinct--It Is Mysterious, Alluring, Ridiculous, Tragic, and Miraculous--Ten Cents May Buy You Untold Wealth or Untold Trash

and long. Something inside rattled as I undid the paper.

An old lady in a black bonnet peered forward through thick-lensed glasses, and sniffed contemptuously.

"Spectacle cases!" she hissed. I qualled.

And then the box was opened and I was staring down at six brown leather belts, coiled neatly together. They were worth a quarter apiece in any store. I was belted for years to come.

In the meantime the auctioneer had knocked down a large bundle, ponderous in its possibilities, and a monstrous barrel which looked as if it might contain china packed in hay. A sturdy old Irish woman had wrested the large bundle from her closest bidder for thirty-five cents, and was wreathed in smiles at what it contained—a dainty bronze table-lamp.

Two Jews had bought the barrel. They were professional bidders, and knew within an ace of its contents. From many an "old hoss" sale they had stocked their store. Even now, outside, they were yelling for a dray to take away the barrel and the two dozen untrimmed ladies' hats packed within. They had cost them $1.25, and would sell for $2 apiece off Decatur street. From the conglomerate mass of bundles all around him—the collection of months in the warehouses of express companies and freight depots, uncalled for and forfeited—the auctioneer selected a tiny box of wood.

Some sort of an electric shock seemed to pass through the crowd. Women began to search in their handbags, and the first bid was startling—two dollars. From there it sprang in two cries to five, and advanced by halves and quarters.

Why this excitement?

The explanation was in the stencilled lettering on the wood, easily perceived by those nearest. The trade-mark of a famous New York jeweler stared down blackly at the greedy men and women all around.

What Was Hidden In the Jewelry Box

When the box was finally knocked down for ten dollars and twenty cents to a stylishly-clad women standing close to the auctioneer's table, everybody craned a neck to see.

She opened it with trembling fingers, while all around the comments of the crowd embraced the box with a halo of mystery. That trade-mark had bewitched them.

"Too small for anything cheap," growled one man. "Looks like a ring t' me."

"I knew a man who got one of them jooelers' boxes an' it had a ruby bracelet inside worth $2,000," whispered one woman to another excitedly.

All held their breath as the lid slid back, and then a roar of laughter shook the room. The woman who had bought the box crimsoned like a beet, said a naughty word, and pushed two boys and a lady of color into the discard as she fought for the entrance. The crowd was passing around the slip of paper laid neatly on top the box. It read: "We will continue to give away this five-dollar safety razor for twenty-five cents until the supply is exhausted."

The mishap of the razor momentarily cooled the ardor of the crowd. At the next turn of fortune I secured a wooden box, which, when opened, displayed a fine set of Japanese china ware. I sold this later to one of the boys at the office for six dollars. It cost me fifty cents.

My luck inspired those around me. The old lady in the black bonnet grew very excited, waved a dollar bill in the air and gave it away for the lure of a brilliant green crate, addressed in red paint. She got two-dozen bottles of soothing syrup.

Withered Roses and Three Pairs of Socks

The man on my right, whose toes she tread on in her anger, advised her to take a little.

The old lady snapped at him, a negro mammy in the rear bartered her savings for the Code of Georgia which she thought to be pearl earrings, and the auctioneer put up a queer bundle around which the paper had begun to break, revealing a square pasteboard box.

I got it for sixty cents. Opened, the following layout was revealed: Three pairs of thick woolen socks, a stale and smelly cake, a bunch of withered roses.

Here was romance. No word of writing accompained that mysterious bundle, but those inanimate objects were alive with their story. A cake, three pairs of socks, withered roses. Who was the sender? Some mother in a faroff city, her heart wistful for the lad of hers in Georgia, eager to bring him a touch of old home cooking, a breath of the roses of yesterday? And why had he never gotten it? What tale of failure and disappearance and death, lay behind that "uncalled for" mark? I had smashed into a tragedy for sixty cents.

The cake and the roses were pitched into the street. The socks were good socks.

By this time the fascination of the game had gripped the crowd tight. The room was packed. The bidding was fast and furious. Samples of face cream were bringing fabulous prices, sets of silverware were tossed away for a dollar. The floor of the room was littered with wrappings, smashed bottles, excelsor and the Lives of African Missionaries. Across the faces of the mob greed, desire, consternation and derisious joy chased each other in rapid succession. It was better than Monte Carlo.

"Sold for four dollars!" shrieked the auctioneer. And a woman cried when she got an airgun.

"Sold for a dime!" howled the red-headed man. And a bartender had won a silver watch.

They Are Teaching, Writing, Selling Goods, Singing, Dancing and Making Artistic Photographs

IN such approximations of art as writing for newspapers, and such realities of business as keeping shop, Atlanta women are succeeding in New York.

The chief difficulties in telling of them is knowing where to begin and where not to stop.

They are teaching, writing, selling goods, singing, and making pictures.

The variety of occupation really is much greater than this specific summary. But the success has been actual.

Reina Melcher Marquis, wife of Don Marquis, formerly editorial writer for The Journal, recently published "The Torch Bearer," a book with a delicacy and feeling, that stopped it short of a best seller, but made it prized by those who valued it justly. Her publishers spoke of her as a second Margaret Deland, which is inept, for her method is different from Margaret Deland's. But the enthusiasm of the opinion showed the esteem of the publishers, and their sincerity was proved by a contract they secured from Mrs. Marquis, giving them the right to issue any of her future books.

She is one of the large group of Atlanta women who have met with decided success in New York. Her short stories, her essays, and her department in a woman's paper, "Today," are lifted above the amateurish level by a lovableness of thought and a sweetness of expression so pleasantly feminine they require these feminine phrases.

Mrs. Ruby Ross Goodnow, who once wrote articles for The Journal with such smoothness of phrase they seemed printed by mistake in newspaper columns, has become an authoritative and charming writer on household decorative stuff for the "Delineator." Most of the directions, explanations, and criticisms by Elsie de Wolfe, a writer with a rather pungent attraction, were really the handiwork of Mrs. Goodnow. She has established a department devoted to household decorative considerations, and in her own particular field of writing has become as well known as any woman in New York.

Miss Mildred Thompson, (to take another field of endeavor) has won her Ph. D. at Columbia, after graduating from Vassar, and now is an assistant teacher of English at Vassar.

Miss Harrie Fumade, after two years residence in New York, has grown to be in demand there as an entertainer, because of her true humor and understanding in giving negro readings, and her original musical expression in whistling.

Miss Stella Price has established on 46th street an importing shop, the "Estel Mershon," which has drawn more customers than the establishments of earnest business men, because it has more things people want. In a way it has shown as much skill and delicacy and artistic inclination as the writings of otherwise gifted incomers from Atlanta.

Mrs. Guido Meisel, who was a Miss Bond, of Atlanta, established in New York a photographic studio devoted largely to impressionistic work which has such true value instead of such mere vagaries as the two years she has made a name. She has, in part, done something new in photography. She has given her pictures an individuality and a personality that have made them a new and a completer form of expression than anything usually developed from a camera.

Miss Edith Brownell has had charge of the woman's section of the New York Press, which had a lightness, a quickness of phrase and of thought, that made it perhaps the most human newspaper effort of its sort in the big city.

Mrs. Marie Alice Seymour has published in the "Delineator" "Reminiscences of a Central Sunday Doctor's Wife," and, of course, you know of the success of Cora Harris and of Gladys Hanson.

But, of all who have gone from Atlanta to New York, no woman has done better newspaper work than Miss Katherine Glover, formerly society editor of The Journal. She began there with special Sunday assignments from the Brooklyn Eagle; then, she was offered an assistant editorial position on the "Delineator;" and, finally, became editor of the magazine "Today."

At the time she went with this paper it made its home in Canton, Ohio, and did everything else accordingly. But in a year and a half it moved back to New York, and is now one of the most influential papers of its kind on the publishing list.

At least a dozen other Atlanta women have shown sufficient skill, courage, hopefulness, and ambition to succeed in New York; and they all send back the same message:

First, be efficient; then, continue to be efficient.

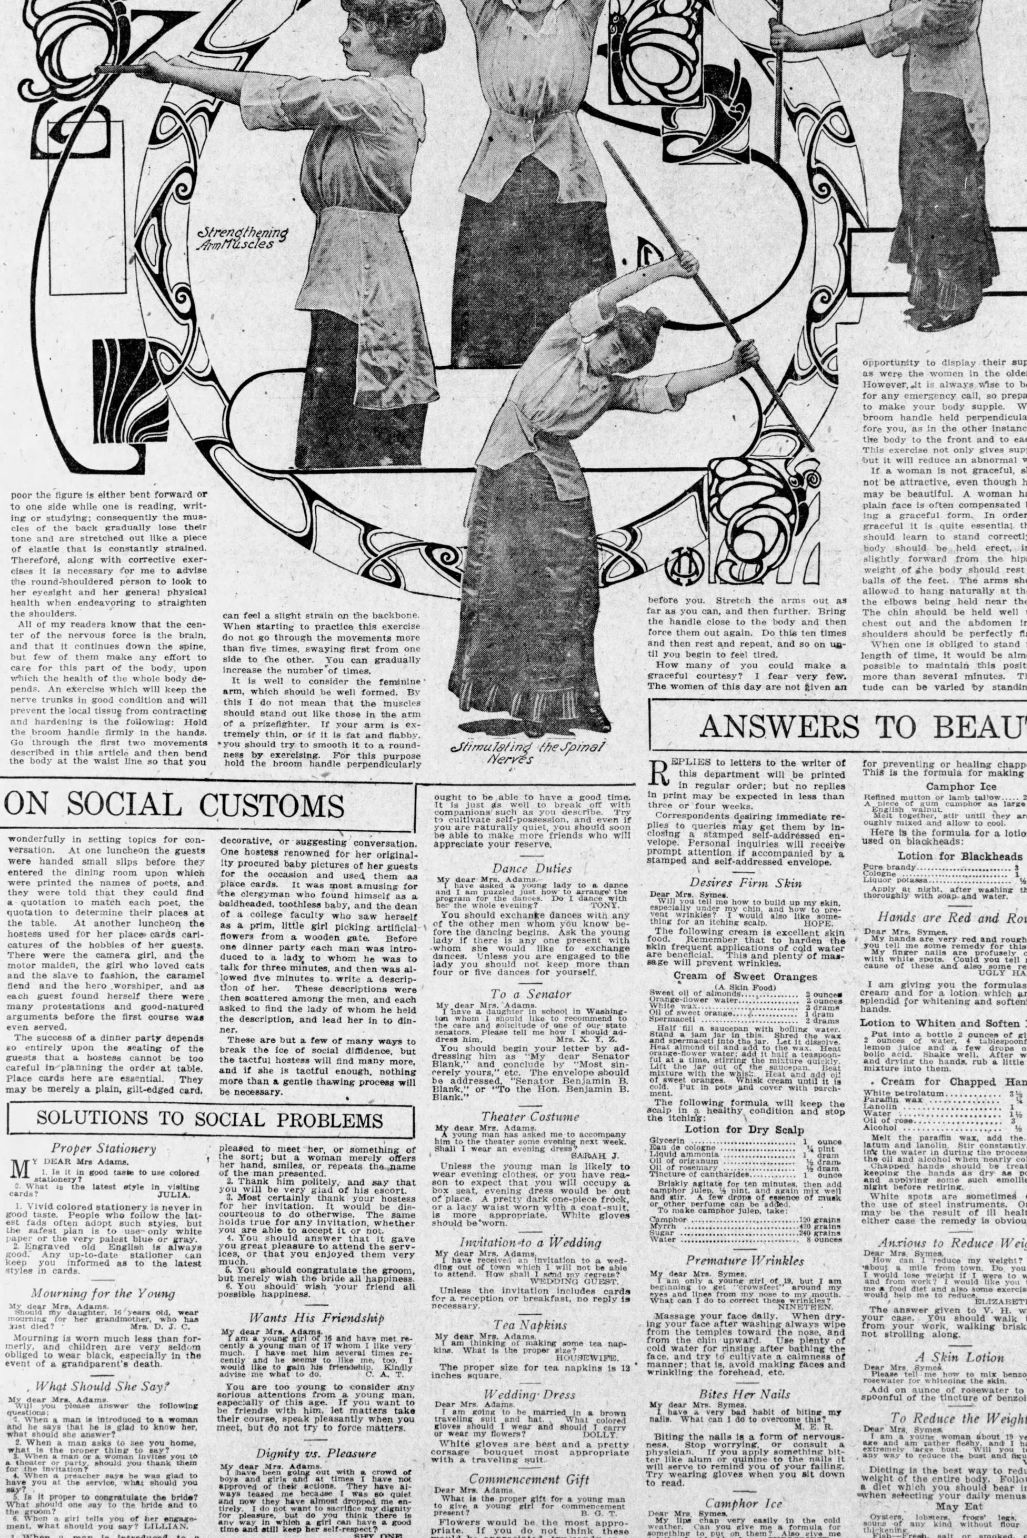

Spanish Fraud In New Guise

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Scotland Yard warns the public against a new version of the old Spanish prisoner swindle. This time it is not a Spaniard who has hidden a war chest of the Carlists in an accessible mountain and appeals to some one to accept half the contents in return for furnishing him with bail money. In the new version of the swindle it is a Belgian. The Belgian, on the death of his master in the siege of Liege, fled with 20,000 pounds in Bank of England notes. He is now in trouble in Spain, and will part with half of the notes to any one helping him out of the scrape with a little ready cash.

CONCERNING HEALTH and BEAUTY

By MRS. HENRY SYMES

EXERCISES WITH A BROOM HANDLE

IT IS quite certain that not one of you readers is looking forward with pleasure to the time when age will make you so stiff in the joints that it is impossible for you to be supple and graceful. Listen, then! One of the many ways to avoid such a condition is to exercise freely for a certain length of time every day. By associating with lively, up-to-date people and by maintaining a happy disposition one can do much to keep youth.

Young women do not realize the penalty they will have to pay for not reserving a few minutes every day to exercise the body. Think of the number of women who hold sedentary positions. Day after day they go to their places of business, allowing trolley cars to take them there. On Sundays a great many of them sit at home and read or others may go calling, but very few of them don suitable clothing and go for a long hike. By careful arrangement of time they could manage to get the reading, calling and hiking done in the one day, and while all of them will prove helpful to them, the exercise in the fresh air will do most to restore energy and prepare the workers for the coming week.

Lack of apparatus is no excuse for not exercising at home. In spite of the fact that we are all grown-ups, we derive great pleasure in playing "make believe," so why not indulge in this game for a short time every day. Surely in your home you have an old broom from which the handle can be sawed. It is this handle which is to take the place of a gymnasium apparatus.

First of all, let us work to correct round shoulders, for without straight shoulders the body cannot be erect. An exercise which will help to straighten your shoulders is to hold the broom handle in a horizontal position straight in front of you, so that it will be on a line with the shoulders. Now, with the arms stretched out, press against the handle with all your force.

To free the shoulders and relieve any stiffness, hold the handle, still in a horizontal position, high above the head, and finally put the broom handle back of you as far as it will go. Can't you feel the effect of this exercise on the shoulder muscles? While it is not convenient to show the last motion of this exercise, from the description you should be able to follow it.

There are many causes of round shoulders, but a common one is a weak and relaxed condition of the muscles whose function it is to move and support the back. It is for this reason that I urge daily exercise. In fact, all of the muscles of the back need varied and regular exercise to maintain the erect position of the body.

Deficient eyesight is sometimes the cause of round shoulders or a curved spine. You see, when the eyes are poor the figure is either bent forward or to one side while one is reading, writing or studying; consequently the muscles of the back gradually lose their tone and are stretched out like a piece of elastic that is constantly strained. Therefore, along with corrective exercises it is necessary for me to advise the round-shouldered person to look to her eyesight and her general physical health when endeavoring to straighten the shoulders.

All of my readers know that the center of the nervous force is the brain, and that it continues down the spine, but few of them make any effort to care for this part of the body, upon which the health of the whole body depends. An exercise which will keep the nerve trunks in good condition and will prevent the local tissue from contracting and hardening is the following: Hold the broom handle firmly in the hands. Go through the first two movements described in this article and then bend the body at the waist line so that you can feel a slight strain on the backbone. When starting to practice this exercise do not go through the movements more than five times, swaying first from one side to the other. You can gradually increase the number of times.

It is well to consider the feminine arm, which should be well formed. By this I do not mean that the muscles should stand out like those in the arm of a prizefighter. If your arm is extremely thin, or if it is fat and flabby, you should try to smooth it to a roundness by exercising. For this purpose hold the broom handle perpendicularly before you. Stretch the arms out as far as you can, and then further. Bring the handle close to the body and then force them out again. Do this ten times and then rest and repeat, and so on until you begin to feel tired.

How many of you could make a graceful courtesy? Fear very few. The women of this day are not given an opportunity to display their suppleness as were the women in the olden days. However, it is always wise to be ready for any emergency call, so prepare now to make your body supple. With the broom handle held perpendicularly before you, as in the other instance, bend the body to the front and to each side. This exercise not only gives suppleness, but it will reduce an abnormal waist.

If a woman is not graceful, she cannot be attractive, even though her face may be beautiful. A woman having a plain face is often compensated by having a graceful form. In order to be graceful it is quite essential that one should learn to stand correctly. The body should be held erect, inclining slightly forward from the hips. The weight of the body should rest on the balls of the feet. The arms should be allowed to hang naturally at the sides, the elbows being held near the body. The chin should be held well up, the chest out and the abdomen in. The shoulders should be perfectly flat.

When one is obliged to stand for any length of time, it would be almost impossible to maintain this position for more than several minutes. The attitude can be varied by standing with one foot slightly advanced, the weight of the body resting upon the balls of both feet equally; then, by resting the weight of the body on one foot alone, the muscles of the other leg being slightly relaxed; then transferring the weight of the body from one foot to the other may be practiced.

After mastering the art of standing the art of walking will be comparatively easy to learn. In walking the toes should turn out just a little, the weight should be thrown forward on the ball of the foot, never resting on the heel, and the step should be easy and gliding; the knee joint should move flexibly and the motion of the hips should not be obtrusively perceptible.

By learning to walk correctly you will be able to take long walks, not only without fatigue, but with great advantage to the general health.

If you would be graceful, let daily exercise become a habit; but bear in mind that exercise of whatever kind to be beneficial, should be moderate at first, and be increased gradually to the point which induces healthful and only mild fatigue. When carried beyond this point it ceases to be beneficial and becomes injurious instead.

ADVICE ON SOCIAL CUSTOMS

BREAKING THE ICE

GETTING a party properly launched and on its way is probably the hardest problem that confronts the hostess. A roomful of guests, all more or less unacquainted, and sitting silent and seemingly bored to death, is enough to discourage the most tactful woman. There is only one thing to be done when such a gathering will not drop out of their own accord, and that is to devise some means of breaking the ice.

If the hostess is wise she will refrain from ponderous introductions, especially at a large affair, and see to it that a guest is presented to some one who will prove more congenial than the rest. This necessitates a careful study of the list of invited guests, but the anxious hostess will consider nothing too troublesome to prevent the awful deadness of a bored company. If she just remember that Clara G. is intensely interested in the situation abroad and that Major W. has but just returned from Turkey, she can save the day for at least a part of the party. If she can think to say, when introducing young Mr. B. to the youngest Jones girl, "I think you two are both quite keen on water polo!" she has started two more on the way to an enjoyable evening.

Cards offer splendid opportunities for getting acquainted, but if these are not to be the order of the evening, a hostess would do well to begin with some game that will distribute the company or call for partners. Choosing partners in old and novel ways usually starts the ball rolling before the game itself. One pretty way is to wrap in balls of cotton different sets of words, as "bread" in one and "butter" in another, "Romeo" and "Juliet," "knife" and "fork," "tooth" and "nail," etc. The balls are thrown into the air and the guests scramble for them and search for the rest of their titles. Thus, "Darby" will look for "Joan," and "hammer" for "tacks." Split couplets or quotations serve the same purpose, as does the matching of states and their capitals, authors and their books, artists and their pictures. Let the men guess the eyes, noses or hands of the girls when thrust through holes in a sheet to find their partners, the successful guesser winning his partner.

It is well to have the refreshments as early in the evening as possible. There is something about a pretty, well-ordered table that sets the most silent tongue wagging. For this reason the luncheon or dinner party is a favorite method of entertaining with the thoughtful hostess. Place cards help wonderfully in setting topics for conversation. At one luncheon the guests were handed small slips before they entered the dining room upon which were printed the names of poets, and they were told that they could find a quotation to correspond to each poet, the quotation to determine their places at the table. At another luncheon the hostess used for her place cards caricatures of the hobbies of her guests. There were the camera girl, and the motor maiden, the girl who loved cats and the slave to fashion, the caramel fiend and the hero worshiper, and as each guest found herself there were many protestations and good-natured arguments before the first course was even served.

The success of a dinner party depends so entirely upon the seating of the guests that a hostess cannot be too careful in planning the order at table. Place cards here are essential. They may be merely a plain, gilt-edged card, decorative, or suggesting conversation. One hostess renowned for her originality procured baby pictures of her guests for the occasion and used them as place cards. It was most amusing for the clergyman who found himself as a baldheaded, toothless baby, and the dean of a college faculty who saw herself as a prim, little girl picking artificial flowers from a wooden gate. Before one dinner party each man was introduced to a lady to whom he was to talk for three minutes, and then was allowed five minutes to write a description of her. These descriptions were then scattered among the men, and each asked to find the lady of whom he held the description, and lead her in to dinner.

These are but a few of many ways to break the ice of social diffidence, but the tactful hostess will find many more, and if she is tactful enough, nothing more than a gentle thawing process will be necessary.

SOLUTIONS TO SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Proper Stationery

MY DEAR Mrs Adams.

1. Is it in good taste to use colored stationery?

2. What is the latest style in visiting cards? JULIA.

1. Vivid colored stationery is never in good taste. People who follow the latest fads often adopt such styles, but the safest plan is to use only white paper of the very purest blue or gray.

2. Engraved old English is always good. Any up-to-date stationer can keep you informed as to the latest styles in cards.

Mourning for the Young

My dear Mrs. Adams.

Should my daughter, 16 years old, wear mourning for her grandmother, who has just died? Mrs. D. J. C.

Mourning is worn much less than formerly, and children are very seldom obliged to wear black, especially in the event of a grandparent's death.

What Should She Say?

My dear Mrs. Adams.

Will you please answer the following questions:

1. When a man is introduced to a woman and he says that he is glad to know her, what should she answer?

2. When a man asks to see you home, what is the proper thing to say?

3. When a young woman invites you to a theater or party, should you thank them for the invitation?

4. When a preacher says he was glad to have you at the service, what should you say?

5. Is it proper to congratulate the bride? What should one say to the bride and to the groom?

6. When a girl tells you of her engagement, what should you say? LILLIAN.

1. When a man is introduced to a woman, he usually says that he is pleased to meet her, or something of the sort; but a woman merely offers her hand, smiles, or repeats the name of the man presented.

2. Thank him politely, and say that you will be very glad of his escort.

3. Most certainly thank your hostess for the invitation. It would be discourteous to do otherwise. The same holds true for any invitation, whether you are able to accept it or not.

4. You should answer that it gave you great pleasure to attend the services, or that you enjoyed them very much.

5. You should congratulate the groom, but merely wish the bride all happiness.

6. You should wish your friend all possible happiness.

Wants His Friendship

My dear Mrs. Adams.

I am a young girl of 16 and have met recently a young man of 17 whom I like very much. I have met him several times recently and he seems to like me, too. I would like to gain his friendship. Kindly advise me what to do. C. A. T.

You are too young to consider any serious attentions from a young man, especially of this age. If you want to be friends with him, let matters take their course, speak pleasantly when you meet, but do not try to force matters.

Dignity vs. Pleasure

My dear Mrs. Adams.

I have been going out with a crowd of boys and girls and at times I have not approved of their actions. They have always teased me because I was so quiet and now they have almost dropped me entirely. I do not want to sacrifice my dignity for pleasure, but do you think there is any way in which a girl can have a good time and still keep her self-respect?

SHY ONE

Yes, indeed; a sweet, dignified girl ought to be able to have a good time. It is just as well to break off with companions such as you describe. Try to cultivate self-possession, and even if you are naturally quiet you should soon be able to make more friends who will appreciate your reserve.

Dance Duties

My dear Mrs. Adams.

I have asked a young lady to a dance and I am puzzled just how to arrange the program for the dances. Do I dance with her the whole evening? TONY.

You should exchange dances with any of the other men whom you know before the dancing begins. Ask the young lady if there is any one present with whom she would like to exchange dances. Unless you are engaged to the lady you should not keep more than four or five dances for yourself.

To a Senator

My dear Mrs. Adams.

I have a daughter in school in Washington whom I should like to recommend to the care and solicitude of one of our state senators. Please tell me how I should address him. Mrs. X. Y. Z.

You should begin your letter by addressing him as "My dear Senator Blank," and conclude by "Most sincerely yours," etc. The envelope should be addressed, "Senator Benjamin B. Blank," or "To the Hon. Benjamin B. Blank."

Theater Costume

My dear Mrs. Adams.

A young man has asked me to accompany him to the theater some evening next week. Shall I wear an evening dress? SARAH J.

Unless the young man is likely to wear evening clothes, or you have reason to suppose that you will occupy a box seat, evening dress would be out of place. A pretty dark one-piece frock, or a lacy waist worn with a coat-suit, is more appropriate. White gloves should be worn.

Invitation to a Wedding

My dear Mrs. Adams.

If I have received an invitation to a wedding out of town which I will not be able to attend. How shall I send my regrets?

WEDDING GUEST.

Tea Napkins

My dear Mrs. Adams.

I am thinking of making some tea napkins. What is the proper size?

HOUSEWIFE.

The proper size for tea napkins is 12 inches square.

Wedding Dress

Dear Mrs. Adams.

I am going to be married in a brown traveling suit and hat. What colored gloves should I wear and should I carry or wear my flowers? DOLLY.

White gloves are best and a pretty corsage bouquet most appropriate with a traveling suit.

Commencement Gift

Dear Mrs. Adams.

What is the proper gift for a young man to give a young girl for commencement present? B. G. T.

Flowers would be the most appropriate. If you do not think these would be appreciated, try candy or a book.

Bites Her Nails

My dear Mrs. Symes.

I have a very bad habit of biting my nails. What can I do to overcome this?

M. E. R.

Biting the nails is a form of nervousness. Stop worrying, or consult a physician. If you apply something bitter like aloes or quinine to the nails it will serve to remind you of your failing. Try wearing gloves when you sit down to read.

Camphor Ice

Dear Mrs. Symes.

My lips chap very easily in the cold weather. Can you give me a formula for something to put on them to prevent me a lotion for blackheads? SUBSCRIBER.

You will find camphor ice very good for preventing or healing chapped lips. This is the formula for making it:

Camphor Ice

Refined mutton or lamb tallow	2 ounces
Piece of gum camphor as large as an English walnut.
Melt together, stir until they are thoroughly mixed and allow to cool.

ANSWERS TO BEAUTY QUERIES

REPLIES to letters to the writer of this department will be printed in regular order; but no replies in print may be expected in less than three or four weeks.

Correspondents desiring immediate replies to queries may get them by inclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope. Personal inquiries will receive prompt attention if accompanied by a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Desires Firm Skin

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you tell me how to build up my skin, especially under my chin, and how to prevent wrinkles? I would also like something for an itching scalp. HOPE.

The following cream is excellent skin food. Remember that to harden the skin frequent applications of cold water are beneficial. This and plenty of massage will prevent wrinkles.

Cream of Sweet Oranges

(A Skin Food)

Sweet oil of almonds	2 ounces
Orange-flower water	2 ounces
White wax	2 drams
Oil of sweet oranges	1 dram
Spermaceti	2 drams

Half fill a saucepan with boiling water. Stand a lam jar in this. Shred the wax and spermaceti into the jar. Let it dissolve. Heat almond oil and add to the wax. Heat orange-flower water; add it half a teaspoonful at a time, stirring the mixture quickly. Let the jar out of the saucepan. Beat mixture with the whisk. Heat and add oil of sweet oranges. Whisk cream until it is cold. Put in pots and cover with parchment.

The following formula will keep the scalp in a healthy condition and stop the itching:

Lotion for Dry Scalp

Glycerin	1 ounce
Eau de cologne	¼ pint
Liquid ammonia	½ dram
Oil of origanum	½ dram
Oil of rosemary	½ dram
Tincture of cantharides	1 ounce

Beat mixture for five minutes, then add camphor juleb, ½ pint, and again let well and stir. A few drops of essence of musk or other perfume can be added.

To make camphor juleb, take:

Camphor	120 grains
Myrrh	120 grains
Sugar	960 grains
Water	8 ounces

Premature Wrinkles

My dear Mrs. Symes.

I am only a young girl of 18, but I am beginning to get crowsfeet around my eyes and lines from the corners to my mouth. What can I do to correct these wrinkles?

NINETEEN.

Massage your face daily. When drying your face after washing always wipe from the temples toward the nose, and from the chin upward. Use plenty of cold water for rinsing after bathing the face, and try to cultivate a calmness of manner that is, avoid making faces and wrinkling the forehead, etc.

I have a very bad habit of biting my nails. What can I do to overcome this?

M. E. R.

Camphor Ice

Refined mutton or lamb tallow	2 ounces
Piece of gum camphor as large as an English walnut.

Melt together, stir until they are thoroughly mixed and allow to cool.

Here is the formula for a lotion to be used on blackheads:

Lotion for Blackheads

Pure brandy	½ ounces
Cologne	½ ounces
Liquor potassa	½ ounce

Hands are Red and Rough

Dear Mrs. Symes.

My hands are very red and rough. Will you tell me some remedy for this?

My finger nails are disfigured, covered with white spots. Could you tell me the cause of these and also a remedy?

UGLY HANDS.

I am giving you the formulas for a cream and for a lotion which are both splendid for whitening and softening the hands.

Lotion to Whiten and Soften Hands

Put into a bottle 2 ounces of glycerin, 2 ounces of water, 4 tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and a few drops of carbolic acid. Shake well after washing and drying the hands, rub a little of the mixture into them.

Cream for Chapped Hands

White petrolatum	3½ ounces
Paraffin wax	¼ ounce
Lanolin	¼ ounce
Water	½ ounces
Oil of rose	10 drops
Alcohol	½ dram

Melt paraffin wax, add the petrolatum and lanolin. Stir constantly, beating the water in during the process. Add the oil and alcohol when nearly cold.

Chapped hands should be treated by keeping the hands as dry as possible, and applying some such emollient at night before retiring.

White spots are sometimes due to the use of steel instruments. Or they may be the result of ill health. In either case the remedy is obvious.

Anxious to Reduce Weight

Dear Mrs. Symes.

How can I reduce my weight? I live about a mile from town. Do you think I would lose weight if I were to walk to and from town? Would you be so kind as to give me a food diet and also some exercises that would help me to reduce? ELIZABETH B.

The answer given to V. H. will suit your case. You should walk to and from your work, walking briskly and not strolling along.

A Skin Lotion

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Please tell me how to mix benzoin and rosewater for whitening the skin. T. G.

To Reduce the Weight

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I am a young woman about 19 years of age and am rather fleshy and I have an extremely large bust. Will you tell me the best way to reduce the bust and flesh?

H.

Dieting is the best way to reduce the weight of the entire body. Following is a diet which you should bear in mind when selecting your daily menus:

May Eat

Oysters, lobsters, frogs' legs, clams, game of any kind without flour or fat. Chicken.

Fish—Fresh, salt or smoked, of any kind, cooked without fat or butter.

Lean meats; no ham, liver or pork.

Eggs—Any style, poached, shirred, omelet or dropped.

Game—Poultry, chicken, duck, turkey, etc.

Bread made of gluten.

Coffee and tea without cream.

May Not Eat

Sugar and all substances containing sugar (sweet cakes, ice cream, jellies, preserved fruits, etc.).

All fatty substances, oils, sardines, butter, cheese, bacon, tomatoes, nuts.

White vegetables, as rice, potatoes and all foods containing starch.

Exercise will also help to reduce weight. If possible, walk five miles or more at rapid pace every day. If it is not convenient for you to do this daily you should exercise at home. These directions for exercises may help you:

To Reduce the Hips

First—Raise the outstretched arms above the head, the body retaining its erect position; then bend slowly forward from the waist so that the fingers come as near touching the floor as possible without straining in any way. This is done without bending the knees. Repeat the movement, letting the arms relax and sink down as the body rises to the erect position. The hands placed lightly on the hips the fingers pointing forward, bend the body forward slowly, so that it is bent at the waist line only. Repeat the movement, working more harm than good. From the erect position roll the body round to the right, quoting four times, after washing and drying the hands, rub a little of the mixture into them.

Third—In the same position as first, bend the body backward, but now the body is bent forward from the waist; then bend to the right and left. Each movement should occupy four counts. Exercises for reducing the waist line are exercises to firm and strengthen well the abdominal muscles. No corsets should be worn while practicing them.

To Whiten the Skin

Dear Mrs. Symes.

My face is dark. Will you tell me what to do to whiten the skin? HAROLD.

Bathing the face with buttermilk or lemon juice will whiten the skin. I think you are making a mistake, however, if you are trying to cultivate a white skin. A healthy, dark complexion is more becoming to a man.

Desires Auburn Hair

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you tell me what I can use on my hair to give it an auburn tint?

MARIE.

Here is the formula for a stain which you can use to give your hair an auburn tint:

Steep 1 ounce of henna leaves in a pint of boiling water for twenty minutes. Let stand until it gets cold. Strain the liquid. Apply to the hair by means of a brush or sponge. The henna will sometimes stain the scalp, but the stain can easily be removed by soap and water.

Sores on the Mouth

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Very often sores appear on my mouth after I have been worried or nervous. What should I do to get rid of them for they last a week or ten days?

THELMA.

The sores are most likely due to a fever or to a slight disturbance of digestion. The cause, of course, must be removed. For local treatment you should bathe the sores with hot water, dry them gently and apply peroxide of hydrogen solution or some other non-irritating antiseptic and afterward apply cold cream. This should be done two or three times a day until the sores disappear.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

SYSTEM IN THE KITCHEN AND PANTRY.

HOW often do we find a housekeeper who can look about her kitchen and see that all in it is as it should be? Let me interrupt myself to state that I appreciate fully the impossibility of having every kitchen exactly what we wish. We have to take houses as we find them, and if the sink is a long distance from the stove or if the only place for the mixing table is in a dark corner we must put up with conditions and make the best of them instead of embittering our lives and those of our family by laments over annoyances which cannot be helped. But even in the most inconvenient surroundings there exists the chance to have matters better or worse—of following a line which simplifies labor or one which proves how not to do it.

Try to scan your kitchen as though you had never seen it before. How have you arranged the furnishings which are within your control? Is your table as near a convenient height as you can bring it? Have you a chair high enough for you to sit at such work as can be accomplished while seated, and if not, have you thought of regulating it by a cushion? Are your utensils hung where those you need most frequently are within easiest reach? Have you the invariable habit of putting them always in the same places, so that you waste no time in vain motions towards the spots where they should be? Are your shelves filled conveniently? Do you keep dry groceries in glass jars or in labeled tins so that you can see at a glance what are the contents of each one, or do you have to hunt through three or four that look exactly alike on the outside before you can find what you are seeking?

Go on in this way with other details and ascertain how many mistakes of the same class you are perpetrating. How much extra work are you giving yourself by pursuing ways how not to do it? The care of your provisions, for instance. When they come home in paper bags or cartons do you transfer them at once to more durable receptacles if they are of a nature which will be injured by exposure to the air or to dampness, or do you leave them in crumpled parcels crowded into a drawer or in half open pasteboard boxes to catch the dust? Are the butter and milk or other perishables consigned immediately to a cool place or left standing in the hot kitchen indefinitely?

Have you regular positions for every staple and do you put it back when you have used it, or do you stick it on the shelf at random? Are you supplied with small bowls or dishes into which to turn removals, or have you the lazy habit of setting your meat platter or vegetable dish in the icebox or pantry with leftovers as they come from the table?

How is it with your utensils and implements? Are your knives and forks, spoons, your corkscrew and can opener, your apple corer and jigging iron, your split spoon and wooden paddles in seemly order, hung on nails or laid in a drawer or box, or are they flung carelessly into a common heap so that you have to pick them over before you can find what you want? When you do find them are they the sort you need and are they in fair condition? Have you a good bread knife with a respectable edge, a well sharpened meat saw, (a carving knife kept sacred to that use and not dulled by much bread slicing, one or more small knives for cutting vegetables, the right sorts of skimmers and strainers and sieves and egg beaters and other conveniences for rendering your work easier?

Do I hear you protest at this point that your housekeeping allowance is too small to permit of your buying fancy articles of that kind? I was expecting that excuse and I grant that often the expense of new utensils seems heavier than can be borne. Yet in this day when cheap kitchen fittings may be obtained there is less apology for an ill furnished pantry than ever before and it is poor economy to do without needed implements so long as they can be bought so cheaply. Of course, it is wiser to buy a good thing in the first place and it will possibly outlast several of the cheaper kind, but the latter make excellent stop-gaps when you can't afford the former.

One of the ways how not to do it is to try to make good bricks without straw or to mix and cook when you haven't the things to do it with. To me there is deep discouragement in attempting to strain soup through a sieve with a broken handle or a cracked rim, to whip eggs light with a beater that catches and balks, to slice bread with a knife so dull that it crushes the bread instead of cutting it, and I suspect that other housekeepers have the same feeling.

If once you can have your "kitchen battery" either new or in good repair, your frying pans free from rust, your double boilers unburnt, your cups and pails unbent and undented, your dishes uncracked, it is astonishing how much more real comfort and enjoyment you will find in your work. Try it and see! Replace the chipped and broken and shabby articles so far as you may, put them all in apple-pie order, and I am much mistaken if you will not have more pleasure in your cooking, if you will not discover fewer obstacles in the way of managing your work as it should be done than when you were offering a picture of how not to do it.

I would hardly venture to enter upon the question of tidiness in talking with experienced housekeepers did I not have clear memories of kitchens I have met that were presided over by trained workers and yet left much to be desired in ordinary cleanliness and order. Again inspect your kitchens as if you were a stranger to it and observe if flaws do not arise and smite your vision.

If you have any one working for you go to the pantry late at night and seek chances for criticism and reform. Open your bread and cake boxes. Are they marked by the sweetness which shows they have been properly scalded and dried or are the fragments they hold relics of the baking of a week—or a fortnight—ago?

Are there no crumbs left on the kitchen table to attract mice and ants and roaches? Is the garbage can tightly covered, and was it lined with a paper before the scraps were thrown into it? Are all the jars and tins closed, and are there stoppers in each bottle and can, or are there openings by which dust and vermin may make their way to the contents? How about the flour barrel and the sugar canister? Are there no traces near them of your last hasty trip for materials when you were in so great a rush that you did not stop to brush up what your hurried hand scattered? Is there no rim of stickiness about the molasses jug, no drippings from a carelessly poured pot or pitcher?

What about the dish towels? Are they scalded at least once a day and hung where they will dry? Is your dishcloth or mop boiled daily or is it permitted to get sour and rank with germs? Has the icebox been kept spotless and sweet, or do you wait until an evil odor tells you that scouring is demanded?

I know how fatally easy it is to slip into careless customs as to all these matters. You have all you can do to manage the work that cannot be put off or evaded, and when you have finished the imperative duties of the day you are so worn out that you lack energy to restore order.

This is precisely the point I wish to make. My own opinion is that much of the fatigue is due to the habit of following the ways how not to do it. To get the better of this introduce a few reforms along the lines we have been discussing. Once you have formed the method of systematic arrangement and management you will find your labor appreciably reduced. Just as the scientific efficiency of which we hear so much talk nowadays consists in the cutting out of needless movements in accomplishing any kind of work, so the efficiency of the domestic worker is promoted by a system which aids her to do most with least effort.

To give a concrete example: If you keep your utensils in an order which enables you to take down any one you wish without having to stop to think where it is; if you never have to ponder for a minute as to the locality of an ingredient; if you are not obliged to stop in mid-career to get an article you need because you failed to have everything at hand when you began, you have economized thought and effort and fitted yourself to do more work in shorter space and with less weariness than when you practiced the hit or miss method, or lack of method.

All these little savings of time and strength mount up by the end of the day, and when you have increased them by the facility with which you restore promptly to its place everything you have had in use you have yet more reduced the strain upon yourself.

While you are following these lines extend them further still. Try to comprehend that you add nothing to the excellence of your work by doing it in the hardest way.

"I wouldn't take the trouble to sit down to peel potatoes or do anything of that sort," a housekeeper said in my hearing the other day. "Lazy, shiftless ways I call them. I just go ahead and do my work as I always have and get it done as fast as I can without wasting time sparing myself."

It sounds plausible, doesn't it? Likewise familiar. If you haven't made that kind of remark yourself you have certainly heard it frequently, and you also recognize the complaint uttered by my housekeeping friend at the end of the day that she was "worn to a frazzle," that her feet and back ached like a toothache, and that she was fit for nothing but to tumble into bed. Yet it did not occur to her that if she had sat down to peel the vegetables, or to iron small pieces which demanded little hard pressure, or to cut up the apples for sauce, or to attend to a variety of other minor duties, she could have saved sufficient time and strength to permit her to reach the evening in a condition when she could mean something better to her family and herself than a wornout household drudge.

Endeavor to make up your mind that if you possess a false conscience which leads you to make a virtue of performing your work in the fashion that involves most effort and pain, even though the result you aim is not improved, you are only furnishing a rather absurd demonstration of how not to do it. Study a simplification as well as a systematizing of methods, and keep comfort also as you can while you are at work, and never fear that so long as you hold your standard high the product will not show any falling off in excellence.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

"I HAVE been in the hospital for the last six months and have undergone two severe operations. Now I am convalescing but cannot walk any distance and I need fresh air so much! Do you think some kindly disposed woman would give me a few auto rides? I just feel smothered for the want of fresh air. There is no yard where I am compelled to live and I feel that if I could have some rides in the open air I would get along rapidly. I can make lovely tatting and would be willing to make some for the woman that would befriend me so far as to give me the rides. I am a widow and a stranger here and I would be so grateful for this kindness.

"E. E. M."

"MRS. N. H."

Apparently street songs are found in many operas. By the same mail that brought these replies came another note referring to Victor Herbert's opera "Naughty Marietta," which has already been mentioned by a correspondent. Four different operas have now been suggested as the one to which John R. had reference. Among them all he should surely be able to discover the special song he wishes.

Quilt Pieces Wanted.

"I saw in the Corner that some one had some quilt pieces to give away. I was told that if I would write to you you would give me her address. I would be so glad to receive it, for I make quilts for my living and sell them. MRS. W. M. K."

This is a request to which I can make no answer because the writer does not supply the signature of the friend who offered the pieces she wants. As I have said before, it is impossible for me to furnish such information without having the initials or name appended to the letter. I will put Mrs. W. M. K.'s name on file and hope some one may be moved to write for it and to send her the pieces she desires.

"If you will kindly send me some of the quilt pieces I would greatly appreciate them. I live on a homestead and have two children, aged 7 and 9, respectively. I do not get lonely, for the country is all settled and there is quite a bit to go to. All the same I shall hope to receive some of the quilt pieces if I am not too late.

"MRS. L. E. S."

Evidently the writer of this letter is on the track of the same offer of pieces which prompted the preceding letter. Like the writer of that, she omitted to send the initials of the Cornerite offering the pieces and I have therefore no choice but to follow the same course, put her letter on file and trust to the generosity of other Cornerites to supply the demand.

Bible for the Blind.

"A worthy indigent blind woman who is trained to read, earnestly desires some part of a Bible for the blind. If any of your readers have something of this kind, would he or she please make it known and if willing to part with it. If it is in good condition and the owner feels inclined to part with it the blind woman would be most grateful. C. B"

In the larger cities many of the libraries have reading rooms and circulating departments from which books are loaned to the blind. The above appeal comes from a small town and it is not probable that such facilities for helping the blind to read exist there. I trust that a portion of the Bible may be given to her by some person or society who wishes to cheer this darkened life and that the reply to the request may come speedily.

Deluged with Gifts.

"I wish to thank you for the remembrances which have come to me and also to ask you to thank, through the Corner, all who so kindly recollected me during the holidays. I tried to thank each one personally, but may have overlooked some. I was not well and I was almost deluged with cards, letters, and gifts. I left a rich blessing for you and all the Cornerites who are doing such a great work to cheer so many lonely lives and may God bless and prosper you all this year and during the coming years! I divided with some here who had no one to remember them. MRS. I. L."

This signature is familiar to many as that of the woman who is an inmate of a poorhouse and whose life has been so greatly cheered and enriched through the kindly offices of our Cornerites. Her appreciation is evident and I am sure the Cornerites are no less grateful than I for the good wishes and blessings she sends us.

Offers Old Magazines.

"I have a great many magazines of the last two years and will gladly send them to some one who wishes them. They accumulate rapidly and it seems a pity to throw them away. B. E. W."

Try the publishers regarding the magazine you speak of in the first part of your letter. I am glad to give your offer of magazines.

Why Letter Is Not Printed.

A letter has come to me signed only J. M., and with no other name. It purports to come from a Belgian who has a money making scheme by which to secure cash to aid his or her suffering fellow countrymen. With all desire to aid these stricken people to the best of my ability, I cannot print in this corner any request which calls for money or suggests the sale of anything, no matter for what object. I therefore take this method of informing J. M. why the letter is not used, and I trust this explanation may be seen.

Asks for a Wig.

"I have a little thread rubber abdominal band that I will give the woman who asked for it if she will send me the stamps for it. Fifteen cents' worth will send it to her. It is in good condition and was used for only a short time. I should like a wig for a woman who is a soldier's widow with the smallest monthly pay. On account of many and tragic deaths in the family she has worried until she has lost all her hair and she is too poor to buy a wig. She prefers either a brown wig or a brown one threaded with gray and long enough to form into a knot or twist. This woman is truly worthy of anything any one can do for her.

"M. C. C."

Unless I am much mistaken this is the first request we have ever had for either a wig or hair in any form. Yet the desire for something to cover a denuded head is natural and I trust it may be granted. In these days when the false hair worn in such abundance a year or so ago has been reduced in quantity it ought not be hard to find enough of it to make up a wig such as is asked for by this correspondent. Her name shall go on file and I will wait with interest for responses.

Magazines for Women.

"I am writing to let you know I received the magazines from Mrs. F. and to ask you to thank her for them. I also wish to express my gratitude to you for if it had not been for the Corner I would not have received them. The books were all in good condition and have good reading in them. Unfortunately for me, nearly all the magazines were for men. I would like much to receive some of the periodicals which are issued especially for women. Do you suppose any one can send some to me? I will gladly pay postage on them.

"MRS. L. M. B."

I know that there are many of our readers who have some of the magazines of especial interest to women. Will they not write for the address of Mrs. L. M. B. and supply her with the books she asks?

Will Distribute Reading Matter.

"Will you send me the address of Mrs. S. R., who had some children's books to give away? I know little about selecting books for children and it would be a great help to me to get some without the risk of choosing them and ordering them from a catalogue. I know a number of nice country girls and women who are not able to afford a single magazine in their homes who would be glad of the opportunity to read good periodicals. If any of the readers of the Corner have good magazines or books or any other reading matter that is worth while that they would like to pass along and will kindly send it to me I shall be only too glad to take care of such literature and see that the books are read and exchanged from one to another until all the circle have read them. Of course I should have to conduct such an undertaking on the order of a library—that is, take the name of each person and the name and number of magazines or books she takes at a time and give credit for the volumes when I return them. I could not afford to pay transportation charges on the reading matter as my efforts would be purely an accommodation, but for each one to prepay the matter she sends would not be a heavy cost to the sender. I lend my own magazines in this way, but could use many more. I think it would be a good thing for those interested in my plan to get my name and address and put it on file and I can give magazines and books from time to time as they have such things to give away. I assure you such books would be read by girls and women who otherwise would have little reading matter.

"MRS. A. S."

In reply to the first part of this letter I must say with regret that the children's books offered have all been given away before this request arrived. Will not some mother or teacher who is familiar with the best in children's books of the present day send for the address of Mrs. A. S. and write to her a little advice which may help her in the wise selection of such books as she wishes? As to her plan for sending magazines and periodicals about among the girls and women she knows, it would only be putting into more concrete shape the informal circulating library we already run by the simple method of those who have received and read magazines sending them on to others whom they would interest. The idea impresses me as good and I will gladly give her address to any one who wishes to get it with a view of supplying her with literature to start her scheme.

Can't Afford Baby Carriage.

"I have a baby and am not able to buy a go-cart. I would certainly appreciate the one offered by Mrs. J. M. If she will send her address to me I will gladly call for the go-cart at any time she cares to mention that will be convenient for her.

"MRS. J. B."

I print the request in the hope that not only may some one see the appeal and have a go-cart to give away but also that Mrs. J. B. may send us her full name as well as her address in order that we may be able to communicate with her more readily should the little vehicle be offered by some kindly Cornerite.

Disposal of Christmas Gifts.

"I have just read your talk entitled, What shall we do with Christmas presents? I sympathize with the writer's position in that I was at one time the victim of such so-called useless gifts, but I managed to give them to the egg woman and the butter man, who live in the country and whose houses are bare of any fancy articles. They were delighted with the presents. My own Christmas was rather a poor one this year, for my relatives had suffered great losses and as a consequence I was overstocked with handkerchiefs and cheap hose. I moved last fall and many things I prized were broken—some lovely Japanese vases, pictures, etc. If any one of the Cornerites asks what she shall do with such gifts as you describe will you tell her to be good enough to send me a Japanese vase, large plaster casts, a paper weight (I never owned one in my life), or any such articles? I would appreciate them very much. I wish I had a photograph of you. I had one years ago and lost it.

"MRS. J. M. H."

Probably there are several of the Cornerites who are overstocked with such ornaments as this correspondent asks. If so, and if they will write to me for her address, I shall be happy to give it to them. As to my own picture, I have none. I could give. I do not possess one.

"Street Song" in Many Operas.

"The 'Street Song' query in your department doubtless refers to the Italian street song in Puccini's opera, 'La Boheme.' Firefly,' sung by Trentini. C. E. B."

"In reply to John R.'s question as to what opera contains the 'Street Song' I would say that I believe it was in 'The Jewels of the Madonna.' A street song was sung in this opera by Carolina White.

"MRS. N. H."

Apparently street songs are found in many operas. By the same mail that brought these replies came another note referring to Victor Herbert's opera "Naughty Marietta," which has already been mentioned by a correspondent. Four different operas have now been suggested as the one to which John R. had reference. Among them all he should surely be able to discover the special song he wishes.

Quilt Pieces Wanted.

"I saw in the Corner that some one had some quilt pieces to give away. I was told that if I would write to you you would give me her address. I would be so glad to receive it, for I make quilts for my living and sell them. MRS. W. M. K."

This is a request to which I can make no answer because the writer does not supply the signature of the friend who offered the pieces she wants. As I have said before, it is impossible for me to furnish such information without having the initials or name appended to the letter. I will put Mrs. W. M. K.'s name on file and hope some one may be moved to write for it and to send her the pieces she desires.

"If you will kindly send me some of the quilt pieces I would greatly appreciate them. I live on a homestead and have two children, aged 7 and 9, respectively. I do not get lonely, for the country is all settled and there is quite a bit to go to. All the same I shall hope to receive some of the quilt pieces if I am not too late.

"MRS. L. E. S."

Evidently the writer of this letter is on the track of the same offer of pieces which prompted the preceding letter. Like the writer of that, she omitted to send the initials of the Cornerite offering the pieces and I have therefore no choice but to follow the same course, put her letter on file and trust to the generosity of other Cornerites to supply the demand.

Bible for the Blind.

"A worthy indigent blind woman who is trained to read, earnestly desires some part of a Bible for the blind. If any of your readers have something of this kind, would he or she please make it known and if willing to part with it. If it is in good condition and the owner feels inclined to part with it the blind woman would be most grateful. C. B"

In the larger cities many of the libraries have reading rooms and circulating departments from which books are loaned to the blind. The above appeal comes from a small town and it is not probable that such facilities for helping the blind to read exist there. I trust that a portion of the Bible may be given to her by some person or society who wishes to cheer this darkened life and that the reply to the request may come speedily.

Deluged with Gifts.

"I wish to thank you for the remembrances which have come to me and also to ask you to thank, through the Corner, all who so kindly recollected me during the holidays. I tried to thank each one personally, but may have overlooked some. I was not well and I was almost deluged with cards, letters, and gifts. I left a rich blessing for you and all the Cornerites who are doing such a great work to cheer so many lonely lives and may God bless and prosper you all this year and during the coming years! I divided with some here who had no one to remember them. MRS. I. L."

This signature is familiar to many as that of the woman who is an inmate of a poorhouse and whose life has been so greatly cheered and enriched through the kindly offices of our Cornerites. Her appreciation is evident and I am sure the Cornerites are no less grateful than I for the good wishes and blessings she sends us.

Offers Old Magazines.

"I have a great many magazines of the last two years and will gladly send them to some one who wishes them. They accumulate rapidly and it seems a pity to throw them away. B. E. W."

Try the publishers regarding the magazine you speak of in the first part of your letter. I am glad to give your offer of magazines.

Why Letter Is Not Printed.

A letter has come to me signed only J. M., and with no other name. It purports to come from a Belgian who has a money making scheme by which to secure cash to aid his or her suffering fellow countrymen. With all desire to aid these stricken people to the best of my ability, I cannot print in this corner any request which calls for money or suggests the sale of anything, no matter for what object. I therefore take this method of informing J. M. why the letter is not used, and I trust this explanation may be seen.

Tips to Housewives.

"I have a little suggestion to offer. Do most housekeepers know that after handling onions if they will hold the hands and knife under the cold water faucet the odor will disappear? It takes only a few minutes. Make a soapsaker for washing dishes out of a small tin can. Leave the turned back lid for a handle; drive some nail holes in the bottom, keep it half full of leftover bits of soap and pour hot water through it on to your pan full of dishes, holding the can in one hand and the kettle in the other. I would like so much to have some silk pieces, two by three inches are large enough.

These are excellent suggestions and I am glad to pass them on. I have found a soapshaker one of the most useful helpers in dish washing and I approve of the notion of the home made contrivance. I hope the silk pieces asked may be forthcoming. They are so small that they should be easily supplied.

Wants Shorthand Manual.

"I am very anxious to get a copy of a shorthand text book, as I intend going to night school this winter, and need this kind of a manual. I had a copy some time ago of it, but gave it to one in need of it at the time, not thinking I should ever have use for it again. I will gladly pay charges, if any, should one of your Cornerites have such a book to give away.

"JOSEPHINE C."

We have a noble army of stenographers in our membership, and there must be in their possession the text book their conscience needs. Send to me for the address.

Runaway June

By George Randolph Chester and Lillian Chester

By special arrangement for this paper a photo-drama corresponding to the installments of "Runaway June" may now be seen at the leading moving picture theaters. By arrangement made with the Mutual Film Corporation it is not only possible to read "Runaway June" each week, but also afterward to see moving pictures illustrating our story.

Copyright, 1915, by Serial Publication Corporation.

EIGHTH EPISODE.
Her Husband's Enemies.

CHAPTER I.

THE beautiful runaway bride opened her eyes in dazed bewilderment, to find herself gazing up into the dark, handsome face of the black Vandyked man! She was in his arms! She felt another clasp about her—the man with the white mustache. Gilbert Blye gently released his hold of her, and the white mustached man turned to carry her up the hill. Her eyes closed again.

Gilbert Blye, freed of his beautiful burden, hurried up the embankment to where his luxurious limousine stood by the side of the broken rail. As he jumped into the driver's seat and put his foot on the clutch and his hand on the brake he glanced down at the scene of the accident. The taxi leaned against a sturdy tree, which had stopped it from a fatal tumble. Blye's chauffeur, the wide featured Scatti, was bringing up the unconscious driver of the taxi. The vivacious brunette and the heavy man with the thick lidded eyes were helping Mrs. Villard. That gentle faced woman had insisted upon walking, but she came with a painful limp, and her face was drawn and white. Blye started the car forward with a jerk, turned it dexterously in the narrow road and, jumping down, arranged the cushions with a swiftly certain hand.

When June again opened her eyes Blye was brushing back her soft brown hair from her pale forehead, but he was not holding her. She was in the luxurious limousine, with her head pillowed on the shoulder of the white mustached man, Orin Cunningham, and his arm was about her. She straightened as she became aware of that clasp, and Blye, his black eyes glowing down upon her, smiled reassuringly. The car started, and she turned to look at Mrs. Villard, who sat beside her with compressed lips. The injured taxi driver was up in front, supported by the heavy lidded man. The runaway bride closed her eyes again and sank back into the support which she so much detested.

Blye! How much he had been in her life since she had run away from Ned! And little did June know that Ned, through his detective, had obtained the number of the auto in which she had driven that day. The number was M607707.

Honoria Blye received a telephone message from Bill Wolf a few hours after the time of the auto accident.

"You husband hez gone to his club," he said huskily.

The wife drove hastily to the club entrance. She met Wolf, who pointed to the chauffeur Scatti, saying:

"There's your husband's driver."

Honoria saw Scatti standing beside her husband's limousine.

"I'd like to make you a little present," said Honoria in sugared accents, and, fumbling in her pocketbook, she produced a bill.

Scatti turned to her with alacrity, and every line in his broad, low face widened.

"Now you'll tell me where Mr. Blye was this evening, won't you?" she wheedled.

The smile faded from Scatti's lines.

"Aren't you going to tell me?" And the voice rose another notch.

No answer.

"Give me back that money!" she screamed.

There were thirty-seven lights to be counted before the perspective merged in a blur. Scatti calmly inspected them all in deep absorption, but during the entire time that one narrow slit of an eye had a dancing gleam in it.

Honoria scowled back at the imposing entrance to the club. The doors stood wide open. Inside the tessellated vestibule were stiffly uniformed attendants. Beyond was a marble columned hall, and at the end of that, through an arched opening, was a paneled screen.

Suddenly Honoria dashed up the steps which no woman had ever trod and before any one could stop her had rounded the paneled screen and stood in the grill room, amid a wilderness of oaken tables, at nearly all of which sat men busy sending curling wreaths of incense toward the high gilded ceiling.

There were glasses before most of the men, and a dense and painful silence pervaded the place, although as Honoria had rushed through the hall she had heard the loud babble of animated conversation. The men in that club were turned to speechless clay at the sight of this fuming apparition.

"There you are!" she screamed, and as her gaze settled from its swift roving into a fixed direction one man came to life and rose—the black Vandyked Gilbert Blye. "There you are!" she screamed again, and she started to twist her way among the tables toward her long lost mate. "You will stay away from home, eh! You will run around with other women! You will"—

A door in the corner opened and closed, and Gilbert Blye was on the other side of it! A fat man laughed. Honoria Blye turned on them all and began to tell them just what she thought of their club. A half dozen attendants regained consciousness and crowded round her. One of them, indulging in soothing talk, accidentally laid his hand on her sleeve, and she left four red lines on his face. For the first time in its dignified history that club resounded with the shrill echoes of a confirmed scold. The chuckling fat man achieved an inspiration. He came up and said confidentially:

"Your husband is slipping out of the basement."

When Honoria reached the imposing entrance she was just in time to see Scatti slamming the door of the luxurious limousine, and as that brilliantly lighted car sped down the street with Gilbert Blye reclining comfortably amid the soft cushions a peal of laughter filled the block.

Honoria sprang into her electric coupe and, turning on all the "juice," wheeled down the street in mad pursuit. But at last she gave up the chase and went home.

A nurse with pink cheeks awakened June in the morning, and as the patient opened her eyes the two pretty girls smiled their appreciation of each other.

"How are you this morning?" asked the nurse, preparing to put a thermometer between June's red lips.

"Perfectly well, thank you," laughed June, tossing her waving brown hair back from her shoulders as she raised up. "How is Mrs. Villard?"

"A slight sprain," explained the nurse brightly. "She will be able to go home in time for dinner this evening. My, but you folks had a lucky accident! You must lie down until the doctor comes."

"I'm going to get up," announced June.

"Against orders. My dear, you must stay in bed until Dr. Remert says you may get up."

"Is he the one with the funny red sideburns?" and June looked down over the plain, coarse white nightgown in which she had been put to bed. "Where are my clothes?"

"You're not ready for them," and the pretty nurse smiled in triumph. "Come in!"

This last was in answer to a knock on the door, but before it could open June had hopped back into bed with one spring. She and the pretty nurse were laughing at each other in the sheer light hearted-ness of youth when the doctor with the funny red sideburns came in.

He was a jovial doctor, and a very nice doctor indeed. He felt June's pulse, and looked at her tongue, and prodded her a few times, and examined her bones, talking to her all the while as if she were a little girl about ten years old.

"Now I am going to get up," proclaimed June as soon as the doctor had gone away, and she swung her pink feet out of bed again. "Where are my clothes?"

"I'll get them for you." And the pretty nurse turned cheerfully to go.

"Oh, no; wait a minute!" June's big eyes were sparkling. "Please let me try on one of your uniforms."

The pretty nurse dimpled as she admired her patient. June would look "fetching" in nurse's clothing. There could be no question of that, but she shook her head.,

"I'm afraid it wouldn't be permitted."

"Just to try it on," begged June. "Let's ask the head nurse."

It seemed a tremendously daring thing to do.

"I wouldn't risk it." And the pretty nurse puckered her brows. Suddenly her face cleared. It was as if the sun had popped out on a rainy day. "Yes, I can! Mrs. Wade is on duty this morning. For a minute I thought it was Miss Simmons."

Mrs. Wade was a smiling woman—smiling lips, smiling eyes, and it seemed as if her hair smiled—but she was dubious about the uniform.

"It would be a radical infraction of the rules," she declared, with an absurd attempt at severity, "but we'll ask Dr. Remert not to tell."

They all three laughed at that, and within a few minutes June was in a stiff white uniform, with a prim little cap on her head, and was walking sedately into Mrs. Villard's room. She paused on the threshold. Gilbert Blye was there! As he caught sight of her June saw the glow of admiration leap into his black eyes. She half turned to go in her embarrassment, but Mrs. Villard stopped her.

"Come here, you pretty thing!" she called, and as June shyly came to the bedside Mrs. Villard laughed, and Blye joined her.

Dr. Remert came in and expressed his profound astonishment at how grownup June looked in a uniform and tweaked the pink ear lobe which peeped from beneath the trim little cap. The head nurse and the nurse with the pink cheeks and the phenomenally thin nurse crowded in to admire June; then Dr. Remert scattered them, so that Mrs. Villard should have some rest before her next bandaging, and he took June with him for a round of the wards. He gave her a thermometer to carry, so she should look useful as well as ornamental.

She came back from that round of the wards rather thoughtfully. She had seen so much pain and sorrow and suffering, wan children and wan mothers and wan men who should have been strong, and in the light of all their woes her own problem seemed foolish and insignificant.

In Mrs. Villard's room as June approached the door she heard voices, among them Orin Cunningham's. She turned away and went across the hall to the room where the injured chauffeur lay. He was in considerable pain, the pretty nurse said, but he lay there smiling, with great cheerfulness upon his roughly molded countenance.

"I guess I'll be laid up for a week or ten days," he stated, with a grin.

"That's a long time to be confined in a narrow little room," sympathized June.

The head nurse brought her bit of sunshine into the room.

"How are you feeling?" she asked.

"Bully!"

"Then you can probably stand a pleasant surprise," smiled Mrs. Wade. "You have a visitor."

"Oh!" The sunshine left the roughly molded face, but the grin was back in a minute. "Say, tell her the doctor says I ain't to be talked to long. And can't one of you nurses stay here to make it strong?"

His grin was so confiding that the head nurse grinned back at him. She was a woman of much experience.

"Of course you must not be talked to very long," she agreed. "And you should have a nurse with you to take care of you." She looked at June a moment; then her eyes twinkled. "I think I'll leave this one."

"Much obliged." And the man turned his cheerful grin to June, who sat down primly at the head of the bed.

The man sank back when the head nurse left and looked as feeble as he could. His nurse was smoothing the pillows when the door opened, and there came in a large, heavy jawed woman, with a long ostrich feather on her hat, half a dozen cheap rings on her fingers and two buttons hanging loosely on her coat, one by a single thread.

"Well, well, Joe!" she said in a heavy voice, and she stared at June. "Didn't I always tell you you'd get it?" She bent over and kissed her husband as a matter of propriety. "Hurt you much?"

"Something fierce!" huskily murmured Joe and half closed his eyes.

"Tough luck!" said the woman. "You wouldn't take out that accident insurance I wanted you to, and now I suppose I can starve."

"Oh, well, you ain't done it yet!" objected the man, his tone losing some of its feebleness. "I guess you can get along till I can get out of this. I give you every cent I ever make."

"I guess that's a lot!" And the woman sat down with a thump.

"Thirty dollars last week."

"And how much the week before?"

"Well, it was a rotten week." And the man turned his eyes toward June, who looked steadfastly out of the window. There being no help from that quarter, he proceeded in helping himself. "You got enough to run you for ten days. You know you have. Come on, Alice, be sociable."

"Oh, I can come on all right, and I can be sociable all right, but suppose you don't get out of here in ten days! Then what do I do? Starve, I guess! Say, how do you come to be in a private room?"

INSIDE WERE UNIFORMED ATTENDANTS

She looked at June and sniffed. "And with a private nurse!"

"The good sport that picked us up put me here."

The woman surveyed the bare little room. There were no curtains at the windows, no upholstering, no softening graces of any kind on the white enameled fittings, but it had an immense superiority, the cause of which she could not fathom. It was absolutely clean, and she paid an unconscious tribute to that phenomenon.

"Why, it's better than I got it at home!" she complained. The man turned his head over and back again, but he said nothing.

"Say," the woman went on, "the fellow that spent the money for this room and the private nurse would have done better to let you go in the public ward and give you the money for your wife!"

June, at the window, moved impatiently.

"Nurse," said the man, "can you get me my pants?"

June opened the door of the tiny white enameled wardrobe in the corner and brought out the man's trousers, handing them down with the tips of her thumb and forefinger. The woman took them and deftly ran her hands into the pockets.

"Seven fifty-five," she reported and clicked the money into her purse. She hung the trousers in the wardrobe and shut the door. "That'll help a little. Did you get your pay for this drive?"

"Not yet, Alice." And his head rolled restlessly.

"Well, you tell me who it was, and I'll go after it!" She had turned from the wardrobe and was regarding a tray which stood on its folding stand by the wall. She lifted the napkin. "My God!" she exploded. "A hothouse peach! And you didn't eat it all at that! You know what I had for my breakfast? Coffee and sinkers and hash! And here you are living on the fat of the land!"

"Looky here, Alice!" The man had raised up in bed, and there was a twitch of pain at the corners of his lips as he stretched out an oil blackened forefinger.

June whirled from the window with a snap of her big eyes. She still carried the thermometer which Dr. Remert had given her. Now she thrust it in the man's mouth, put a hand at the back of his neck and gently forced him down.

"The time is up," she crisply told the woman. Her voice was low and soft, and the visitor puzzled afterward as to how it could be so effective without shouting. June went to the door and opened it, aware that the eyes of Joe were fixed on her in undying gratitude.

The woman looked doubtfully at her husband, but the figure at the door was so inflexible that she succumbed to discipline.

"Well, so long, Joe," she said. "See if you can't get your money for that drive by the time I come again." She waved a wifely hand at him and stalked out. She turned to June in the hall. "If the fellow that's putting up for this room will give Joe the money instead we'll be a lot better off."

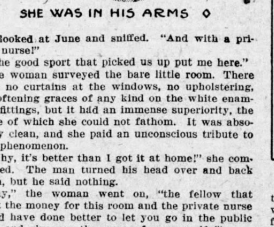

June was so shocked at the cold callousness of this speech that she could only dumbly nod her head, and she walked down to the nurses' little desk at the end of the hall, leaving the woman to find her way out alone. Joe, the chauffeur, lay, cheerfully grinning, with the thermometer in his mouth.

Again the everlasting problem—the man, the woman and the money! The runaway bride sat in the vacant chair at the little desk and pondered it all out. This person who nagged, who followed her husband even to the hospital to nag, and whose husband welcomed the hospital because it was a relief from nagging—this woman was the outcome of the custom by which the man, earning, possessed all, and the money he gave to his wife was as a gift. A selfish woman and one without delicacy, such as this nagger, made it her business to get all she could, and the pursuit had become a passion with her. She was like those beggars who continue to beg after they have become rich by it, begging from the force of habit and from the love of the art of making people give and from the sordid desire to possess. It was wrong, all wrong, somewhere! June shuddered as she remembered this wife going through her husband's pockets, and then she recalled her dream of herself standing before Ned as a piteous pauper, holding out her hand for alms. She had been right, she decided, as she had decided time and again. She had acted wisely in running away before she had committed herself to charity and before any barriers had been set between their love. She must earn her own way—

Mercy! June sprang from her chair and ran to the room of the chauffeur with a sudden violent wrench of her conscience. Joe lay there quite cheerfully with the thermometer still in his mouth, and he grinned as well as he could after twenty minutes of this exercise. When June removed the thermometer that side of his face remained twisted and puckered for some time, and it ached, but he was perfectly happy. He could be alone for twenty-four hours!

THE TAXI LEANED AGAINST A TREE

SHE WAS IN HIS ARMS

JUNE WAS IN A STIFF WHITE UNIFORM

CHAPTER II.

THERE was a consultation in Mrs. Villard's room. Tommy Thomas sat at the head of Mrs. Villard's bed. T. J. Edwards, the heavy man with the thick lidded eyes, sat on the other side in stolid silence. Cunningham leaned negligently on the foot of the bed. Before Mrs. Villard lay a picture of June clipped from a Brynport paper on the day of her marriage to Ned Warner. Tommy Thomas had just found it and had brought it with her. Cunningham picked up the picture and looked at it with twinkling eyes, smoothing his white mustache complacently. Gilbert Blye, sitting in the far corner on the window sill, with his Vandyke in his long, lean, white hand, suddenly rose and, walking over to Cunningham, took the picture from him and laid it on the bed.

The pretty nurse with the pink cheeks opened the door presently and heard these words in Blye's suave but forceful tones:

"The thing to do is to gain her confidence. There must be a complete change of method."

The voice stopped abruptly. Edwards, Cunningham, Tommy Thomas and Mrs. Villard were all listening intently. Mrs. Villard seemed troubled. Tommy Thomas, with devilry in her eyes, was laughing at Cunningham, who seemed uncomfortable. The round headed Edwards sat slowly nodding as he looked at Blye. Mrs. Villard reached quietly forward and turned the piece of paper on the bed face downward. She seemed even sad.

"Beg pardon," said the pretty nurse, noting the sudden silence, and, slipping in, she put her hand under the sheet and felt of Mrs. Villard's ankle. The entire group was motionless, and there was a strained tension in the room until the nurse went out. She saw Mrs. Villard reaching forward for the piece of paper as she closed the door, and as she walked away she heard Blye's smooth, even voice again.

When June came into Mrs. Villard's room the conversation again stopped abruptly, but the group moved immediately.

"Oh, see the pretty nursie!" hailed Cunningham And June glanced down in embarrassment.

In that moment of her downcast eyes Tommy Thomas and Mrs. Villard, Blye and Edwards, all glared at Cunningham. He flushed and walked nervously over to the window.

"Really quite becoming, quite becoming to you," he added in a tone he had never used to her before, one of extravagant respect.

"Indeed it is, dear," said Tommy Thomas. She slipped an arm around June's waist protectingly, and Mrs. Villard glanced up at her companion with moist eyes.

"Well, we'll see you later," said T. J. Edwards, with a clumsy attempt at heartiness, and, rising, he bowed to the ladies. "If there's anything I can do let me know." His small eyes roved to June, but there was no patronizingly fatherly glance in them and no disposition to pat her on the shoulder.

June was puzzled. There seemed to be a distinct change in the attitude of all these people toward her. Yesterday they had pursued her with a mocking certainty in which there was an underlying insolence, but now they seemed to have lost that note of overfamiliarity, and she liked the change. Only Blye was the same. His black eyes glowed when they rested upon her, and he still wore his suave smile, though somehow he seemed more frank. June found herself suddenly liking this black Vandyked man. As she turned to smooth Mrs. Villard's pillows the three men exchanged glances, and the suavely smiling Gilbert Blye stroked his black Vandyke. They turned their eyes as by one accord to the beautiful runaway bride.

Ned Warner at the very moment in which Blye and his crowd had changed their tactics toward June was, after interminable red tape, securing the address of the owner of car No. M607707, and, that secured, he hurried out to the beautiful home of Mrs. Villard up the Hudson. He came to it by the lower road, and as he approached the house he saw Marie in the sloping hillside garden. He stepped in the shelter of the wall to consider. A few days ago his first impulse would have been to rush up to Marie and seize her and compel her to tell what she knew, but Marie had proved herself to be a slippery customer. She had denied knowing Ned on his first meeting with her after the runaway; she had denied knowing earnest and eager and black Aunt Debby when that faithful servant of June's mother had happened upon Marie in the market, and only yesterday Marie had run away from the entire family, taking June's collie, Bouncer, with her. There was little to be gained from Marie. If Ned were able to force himself in and search the house June would be hidden by some one or be helped to escape, as had happened yesterday at the Widow O'Keefe's and also at the Bond Securities building and everywhere else. So there was but one thing to do—to conceal himself about the grounds until June herself should appear. He adopted that course, and the weary hours dragged on, noon, afternoon, evening.

With the dusk the luxurious limousine of Gilbert Blye left the hospital, and in its brilliantly lighted comfort sat the precious June and Mrs. Villard, Tommy Thomas, Orin Cunningham and Gilbert Blye. Strange what a difference this day had made in June's feeling toward these people. They liked her. If their views of life were not her views she could keep her own. They seemed to have discovered that she meant to retain her ways of thinking and living, and it was so much nicer since they had apparently acknowledged this. Now her work as companion to Mrs. Villard would be much more pleasant. They were chatting in gay comradeship as they drew near the Villard home.

Ned Warner as the shades of night drew in ventured into the Villard garden and nearer the house. As he crept up toward the back porch the door opened, and June's collie came bounding out for an evening run. Bouncer had no sooner hit the open than he gave a loud yelp and came tearing straight in Ned's direction. He jumped mad circles around Ned, leaped upon him, barking his loudest welcome, ran halfway up to the house, ran back to bark his joy at Ned again and started to bring Marie!

He had no need to go all the way. Marie had come out on the rear porch to see what was the matter with Miss June's pet, and the lights from the house glistened on her high cheek bones and her liberal supply of gums.

Ned had stepped back among the bushes with the hope of getting Bouncer over to the wall before Marie could arrive. To his surprise, however, Marie, though she looked down in that direction, did not come. She called Bouncer, and together they went into the house. Ned took advantage of Marie's indifference and of Bouncer's confinement to slip closer and look in at the windows, front, side and rear. The lower floor was brightly illuminated, and the front porch light was lit, as if some one were expected. June! Some instinct told Ned that she was coming. He concealed himself behind the shrubbery near the porte-cochere and waited.

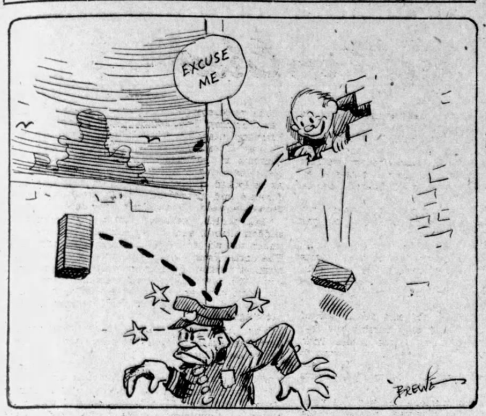

Suddenly he involuntarily tensed himself. Wheels were approaching. Then a brilliantly lighted limousine sped into sight, and as it turned the curve Ned saw in it his beautiful runaway bride. Over her was bending the dark, handsome face of the black Vandyked Gilbert Blye, his eyes glowing and on his lips that despicable smile.

With an oath Ned stepped forward. At last his moment had arrived. Within another instant as Gilbert Blye helped June from the limousine Ned would have the scoundrel by the throat.

Prisoners Seem About To Dig Down the Jail

DALTON, Ga., Feb. 27.—There are some young prisoners in the county jail here who are having lots of fun pulling the bricks out of the walls and playing with them. They apparently enjoy watching the look of annoyance on the faces of those whose duty it is to keep them from liberty.

Some of these boys recently escaped from jail, and, after enjoying a day's liberty, returned and asked to be locked up again. They enjoyed the situation.

After being locked in, a hole through the concrete floor was stopped up, thereby cutting them off from the tunnel they had made through the wall. Then, to show their scorn of such a precaution, they dug another tunnel through the second-story wall, and laughed at the expression on the faces of the officers when the bricks fell near their feet. This was in broad daylight, and two officers were on the ground near where the bricks fell.

And now it's really dangerous to walk around on the outside of the jail, for one of these playful little fellows is apt to dig another tunnel and bounce a brick off the bean of a passerby. They have little enough to amuse them, and it seems a shame to deprive them of this innocent pleasure; but the officers are growing desperate, and may decide to line the walls with steel.

Georgia Doctor in France

captain but all of the officers were lost. One of the men had left San Francisco just four months ago. He had been there five or six years. He told me that 5,000 men left San Francisco to come back to fight for France.

"Speaking of this, one of my nurses went to Morlas, a little village ten miles from here, renowned for a very old church. There she stopped in a restaurant and the old lady who kept it told her in very good English about having three sons at the front, one of whom had returned from New York. He had been chef at Sherry's.

"While walking along the street about dusk the other day, I heard some one say, 'Hello, Sport,' as it is said only in New York. I started to ignore it, but my curiosity got the better of me and I turned to see a well-dressed chap with his wife and child. He told me that he had been in America for fifteen years and had left a good job to come back and fight. That he had been back two months and was going to the front in three days.

"In spite of the dreadful experience these men go through their spirit is something remarkable. For the first day or two after they get in from the trenches, they are like some stupified animals, not talking, not complaining, never wincing at pain. Then they gradually become normal men, who take life as philosophically as any crowd I ever saw. When a new batch arrives it is touching to see how the old patients line up and look them over to see if any are from their regiment, and whether they have news from friends and relatives. Not infrequently acquaintances are found.

"Some very strange things happen this way, too, for instance, two first cousins who had never seen each other before, found themselves in beds alongside of each other.

"The other day I was called to the bedside of one of the patients, who had a most unusual attack. It was nothing more than hysteria, but he was violent. The man physically was ready to go back to the front and I suppose he thought by this pretense he could make me believe he was ill. Feel awful sorry for the boy, too; he is a foundling, knows nothing absolutely as to his origin, but he seems to be a good fellow and appreciates so much what we have done for him.

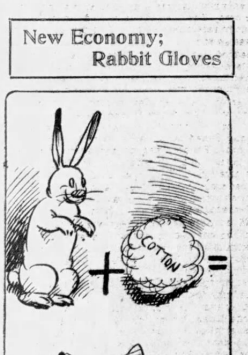

"Speaking of appreciation, we had a letter from the wife of one of our prize patients—an Algerian. Besides the letter she sent us two boxes and a big basket of most delightful fresh oranges, tagerines and artichokes.

"While working on a wounded soldier, I asked him if he was married. He held up his left hand (right hand being shot all to pieces, as well as a broken leg) and showed me his wedding ring. I then asked him if he had any children and he replied that his only child had died in infancy, but his wife was expecting another soon. He can't get news from her as his home is near Leon and all of that part of France is in the hands of the Germans. He is one of the most patient, uncomplaining chaps I ever saw and fine looking, too. Never says a word, though his hand sometimes gives him a great deal of pain.

"One of the best soldiers we have has six brothers in the army. His wife and two children are in the north of France and he hasn't received any news whatever from them since August. The last lot of wounded to arrive was from his regiment and they told him that his youngest brother had been killed.

"There are many foot wounds, and they all give considerable pain, for, of course, the wounds are infected. Don't see why so many of them get shot in the feet."

New Economy; Rabbit Gloves

BELL, STATION, Ga., Feb. 27.—Here comes the story of economy. Mrs. T. B. Smith and Mrs. Lutz Bullard, both widows and sisters living together at the T. B. Smith old home place have set out to each the young people something about economy.

Every time the boys go out hunting and bring in a few cotton tails these old ladies tell the boys to save all the hides, as they want them to knit gloves. They mix the hair with cotton, card the mixture into rolls and spin the rolls into thread and make the warmest gloves that ever went on a man's hand, easily worth a dollar a pair.

Feminine Way

In a certain Arkansas logging camp the company maintains a physician who attends the residents of the camp and also the families of such employes as live back in the hills. One day he was summoned to the home of a newly hired native, with the assurance that he was "wanted powerful bad."

With all haste he started, winding up one rough hollow after another, where the road was a mere tradition, and came at last to a decrepit log house. As he opened the gate a hungry looking woman came to the door and called:

"Be yo' the comp'ny doctor?"

"Yes, I'm the doctor. Who is sick?"

"Don't reckon that's nobody sick, doctor."

"Well, why in the world did you send for me if no one is sick?"

"Hit's this a-way, doctor; we-uns is on the puny order a right smart, an' mought need yo' most any time. My ole man said yo' sure would come whenever we sent for o'; but he's such a no 'count liar thet I dassen't trust his sayso, so I wanted to see fo' myself. An' yere yo' be!"—Everybody's Magazine.

Overtime

Wilson Barrett, the celebrater actor, used to tell an amusing story against himself. At a time when he had a lot of workmen redecorating his private residence, thinking to give them a treat, he asked if, after work one evening, they would like to have seats to go and see him play in "The Lights o' London," at the Princess' theater. They said they didn't mind if they did, and, being complimentary tickets, all went on a Saturday night to see their employer's performance.

At the end of the week Barrett's eye caught sight of this item against each workman's name on the pay sheet: "Saturday night. Four hours' overtime at Princess' theater, 8 shillings."

Hungry Negro Steals Three Biscuit; He Gets Two Years

He Was Arrested as He Wiped the Crumbs from His Lips; in 24 Hours Was Sentenced To Penitentiary

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 27.—For stealing three milk biscuit while he was out of a job and fearfully hungry, Laurence Whittaker, an able-bodied negro man, has been sent to the penitentiary for two years.

The negro was convicted in the Muscogee superior court this week on the charge of robbery, it being proved that he used force in extracting the biscuits, which were covered with jelly, from the grip of a negro boy, who, himself is declared to have been half-starved. The accused pleaded guilty, and the smallest sentence in such a case, it was announced, is two years.

The entire court experience of the negro was gone through with almost before he had the time to digest the biscuits. He was arrested while wiping the jelly from his lips, indicted, arraigned and sentenced in twenty-four hours. He said he was hungry and couldn't resist the biscuits when he saw the red jelly oozing from them.

Bad Robbers Lose A Pint of Whiskey

LINDALE, Ga., Feb 27.—Two highwaymen who were holding up and robbing Henry Towns on the Lindale road, the other night, were frightened away by an approaching train which they thought was a buggy. A wallet of currency in Mr. Town's vest was unmolested, and one of the hold-up men lost a pint of whisky in Mr. Towns' buggy.

Sends Money Order For Postage Stamp

LINDALE, Ga., Feb. 27.—When Mr. J. C. Crews, of Fitzgerald, wants a reply to his letter he wants it—and is willing to pay for it.

And that's the reason C. W. Merck, of Lindale, received an odd postoffice money order from Mr. Crews. It was drawn for two cents, the price of a stamp, and with it came this note:

"Please write.

"J. C. CREWS."

Bird of Mystery in Swamp of Lost Tribes

A BIRD with the song of an ostrich, the plumage of a turkey, and the sturdiness of a crane, has been discovered in the Okefenoke swamp. Atlanta hunters have brought back the news. They say it not only is intensely interesting as a study in ornithology, but that it is hard as the dickens to shoot, and has a flavor when baked that is beyond the delight of words.

Only a week ago the report came of the capture near Dalton of a "proteus agunius," which was further classified as something between a wampus and a hickey. But the turkey-ostrich of the Okefenoke, with the legs of a crane and the voice of a nightingale, seems to be an even better feat of fancy.

It is no new thing, however, for this swamp to produce wonders to thrill and prod the imagination, and to suggest creations of the Arabian Nights bequeathed to South Georgia.

Lost tribes have been found there, some of which were traced back to Israel; the print of pre-historic beasts still clinging to life in the ooze and willow-shaded stretches of Okefenoke, have been discovered frequently; and now is added the nightingale note of the turkey-ostrich.

AT JUDGE JOHNSING'S POLICE MATINEE

A Good Brother

When you jines de lodge, man
You'se happy as kin be.
Git er sal'ry eb'ry month, git yo' fun'ral free,
Pay fo' all yo' miz'ries, medicine an' booze,
Come on nigger, jine de lodge!
Lemme git yo' dues.

MANY a belated husband has given the same excuse to his wife, but few of them ever plied it on as thick as Henry Sims. They had arrested Henry as he marched triumphantly through Snowball street, waving a whiskey bottle in one hand and a brick in the other.

"What was the idea, Henry?" probed his honor.

"Judge," said Henry, "All I had wuz one bottle er beer. Jest drapped by de s'loon on mah way ter de lodge."

"What lodge do you belong to, Henry?"

"Well, jedge, I b'longs ter de Sons ob Temperance an' de Daughters ob Jehovah; I'm er member ob de Faithful Forty an' last month I jined de Glorious Order ob Stars an' Sunshine. Den I has er pol'cy in de Burial Band, an' I'se Gran' High Keeper ob de Coffers fo' de Zionites. I b'long ter de chu'ch an' de ditch-diggers' union, an' I'se figgurin' on jinin' er couple mo' next week."

"Which meeting were you going to last night, Henry?" inquired the court.

"All on 'em, jedge," replied Henry, earnestly. "Goes ter all on 'em eb'ry night, jedge. Yes, suh! Dis ole nigger's good lodge man."

"You went a little too far then, Henry," ruled the court. "We'll see if some of your brothers in the lodge can't help you dig up about $3.75.

NAW, jedge, you know me! I ain't no chicken thief!"

"Nah, suh! Puffeckly scan-lous ter 'rest me! I sho' am surprised!"

The recording angel might have been convinced by the mild manner of Moses, but not the recording judge of the Atlanta police court.

"Where did you get that hen the officers found on you, Moses?" he asked.

"Jedge, dat hen wuz give me by de white man whut sells 'em down yander in de Cabbageleaf district.—Naw, suh, I disremember his name. But he give it ter me an' I tekken it home ter mek into er stew."

"But why did you carry it under your coat, Moses?"

Moses pondered a moment; then leaned forward confidentially. "Jedge, I'se gwine tell de truth. Dese niggers so all-fired fond er chicken meat I jest 'bleeged ter hide dat bird whar none er 'em ain't git ter see hit. An' I hope I die ef dat ain't so!"

The judge shook his head slowly at Moses. "Mose," he said. "Your days are numbered. You can spend thirty of them in the stockade."

THIS is the story of how the Darktown Dude called on the Belle of Hell's Half Acre and of how he was "humped" by the Dirty Dozen from Pittsburgh.

The mother of the Belle told the judge about it, while the Darktown Dude caressed a pink carnation in his buttonhole and the Captain and Lieutenant of the Dirty Dozen said the whole bunch was "er passel er trubs." The Belle contented herself with simpering at one of the witnesses, a yaller youth from Auburn avenue, one ofthe Four Hundred niggers.

"Last Chuesday night dis Darktown nigger come out ter call an mah daughter," began the tale ofthe feud. "Dey had er box er candy 'twixt 'em an' was settin' in de parlor jes' as nice as yo' please. Den long come dishere Manuel an' de Dirty Dozen. Jedge, you know dem Pittsburgh boys done got 'em up er gang whut dey call de Dirty Dozen an' dey mek er p'int er humpin' any Darktown nigger dey cotches callin' on de Pittsburgh gals.

"Manuel call out dishere Darktown boy, an' he axe him ter he'p hisself. Well, de boy started he'ppin' hisself down de road, an' 'bout dat time de Dozen started burrin' rocks at 'im. One er de rocks burred th'u de parlor winder an' cotch mah ole man in de hald, so I calls de po-lice."

The Captain and Lieutenant of the Dirty Dozen were fined $10.75 apiece, while the Four Hundred nigger walked away with the Belle of Pittsburgh and bought her a catfish on the corner.

THE next time anybody yells police, Rufus Jones is going to sit down hard and stay sot.

Rufus is one of those big eyed, big lipped, big headed darkies, with big feet and a big fear of blue coats. He stumbled all over himself when he faced the judge.

"Your honor," said the officer. "This nigger was tearing as hard as he could go down Edgewood avenue at midnight last night, and when he saw me he jumped a six-foot fence. I caught him, though."

"What had you done, Rufe?" asked the court.

"Ain't done nothin,' cap'n—jedge, I mean," declared Rufus, wailing his eyeballs at the cop. "Leastways, I was ramblin' 'long down de street, when somebody sticks dere head outen de winder an' holler, 'Po-lice! Po-lice! I heered 'em callin' me on de yudder side er town an' lit er rag."

"Why did you run?" said the court.

"Hoccome I run? Jedge, I allus run when I heah em yell fo' de po-lice. Dis nigger ain't lookin' fer no trouble."

"Next time you'd better look for a chair and sit down," said the recorder, as he dismissed the case.

ABNER Thompson's pink silk shirt got him into court last week, but Abner laid the blame on liza Williams, who washed it.

The officer had come upon Abner and Liza in the midst of a violent altercation in the rear of the Puppydog saloon. The disagreement had reached the prize-fight stage, and Abner had opened the second round with a right slice to the ear.

What was the trouble?

"Jedge," said Abner. "Dis woman wash fer me. Las' week I gib 'er mah pink silk shu't ter get ready fo' de Sons er Samuel ball ternight. Dat's de purtiest shu't, jedge, I eber seen. Hit got frills down de front an' white polka dots 'cross de middle. Dat shu't ain' nebber been washed since it bin out de sto', an' I had it fo' months. Dat shu't, jedge, wuz so pow'ful purty—"

"Cease this rhapsody a moment, Abner," said the judge, "and get to the point."

"Heah's de p'int, jedge," continued Abner in aggrieved tones. "De woman brung de shu't back an' hit wuz plumb ruint. Dere wuz purple trickles all down de front an' de frills wuz spotted wid green. Hit made me so mad I 'bleeged ter 'spute wid 'er. An' soon we gits inter de raous."

"What have you got to say, Liza?" asked the court.

Liza bridled and shrilled loudly: "Warn't mah fault, jedge! Dat nigger ain't got no business puttin' de shu't in wash at de same time wid purple socks an' er green necktie. Cose de green an' purple run an' spiled de shu't."

"You're entirely too sporty, Abner," declared the court. "But I'll let both of you go so you can attend the Sons of Samuel ball tonight."

And Abner went.

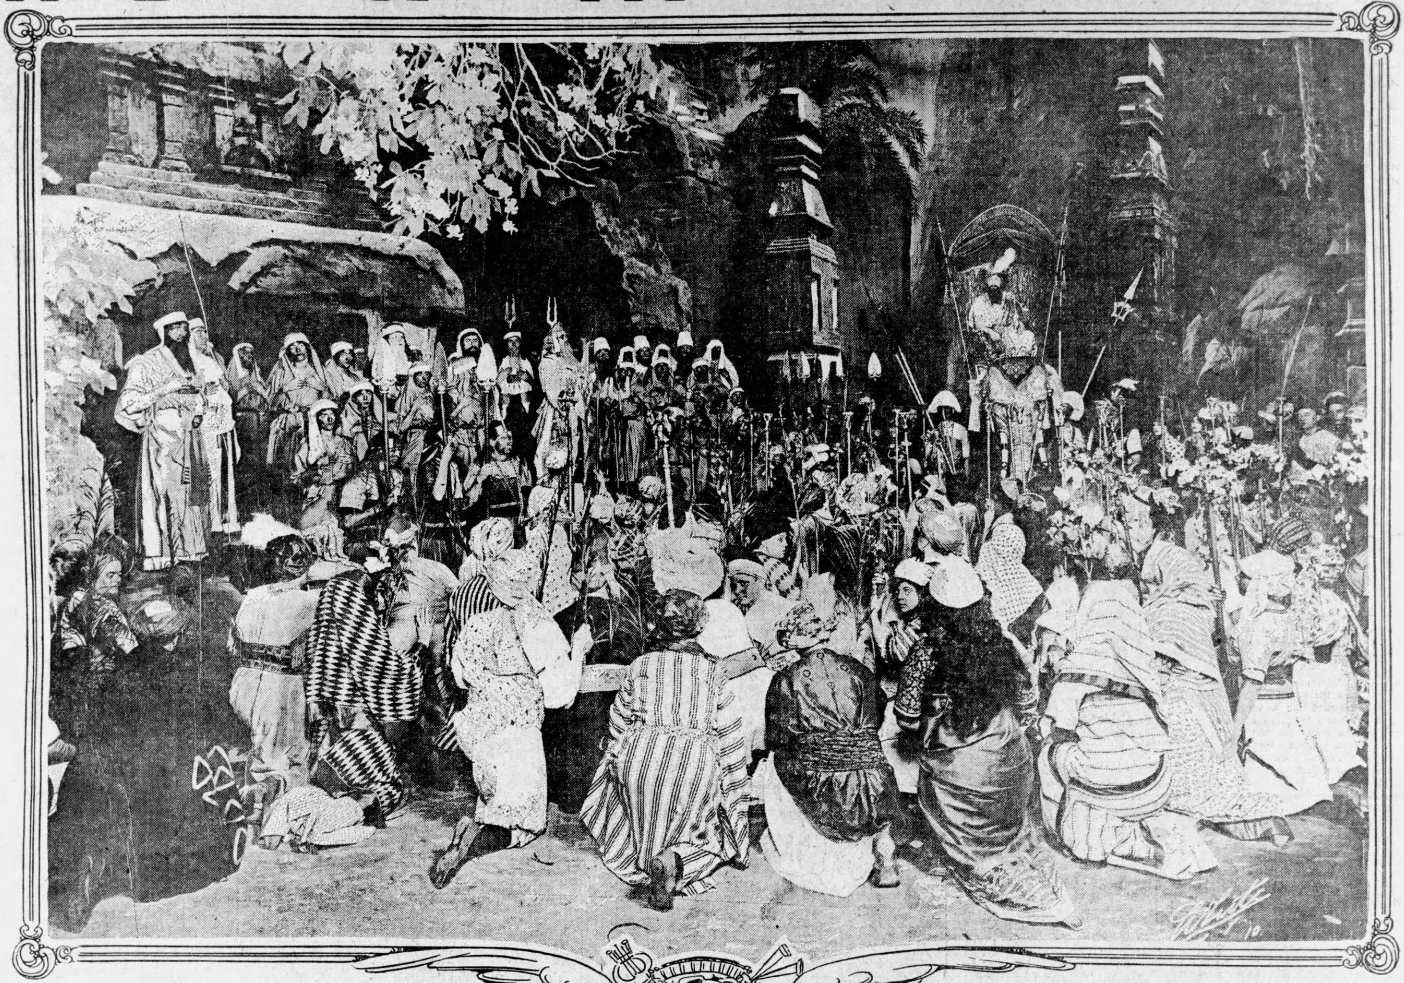

Rat-Catcher Tells Secret

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Feb. 27.—Mr. C. A. Nix, who is the miller at Dunlap's mill, was in town Friday and told of what he terms "a rat killing time" at the mill a few days ago. He has fallen upon a new plan for catching rats and it seems to be a good one. Mr. Nix's plan is to take a fish trap, tie a piece of bread to the muzzle of it with the result that he killed one-half bushel in a short time.

Most Brilliant Moment In Atlanta's Week Of Opera

Burroughs Likes Farm Better Than High Life

Reporters, He Says, Nearly Worried Him to Death Last Year, But They're Scarcer This Spring. He Sees the First Ring Neck Plovers.

By William H. Beck, Jr.

GRIFFIN, Ga., Feb. 27.—"My, My," said Mr. Burroughs. "So, you're a newspaper reporter. Reporters nearly worried me to death last year. They seemed to come from everywhere, and they wanted to know everything, from my opinions about birds to my opinions about souls. But they are scarcer this season."

Mr. Burroughs was talking with me at the home of R. J. H. DeLoach, at Experiment Station, where he is spending the winter. John Burroughs is the naturalist, essayist, and lover of nature, and the author of about eighteen books, of which the best known are: "Wake Robin," "Winter Sunshine," "Locust and Wild Honey," "Signs and Seasons," and "Birds and Poets."

He told me, as we chatted, that he has another book in preparation, which will be published this spring. "And, of course," he added, "there'll be some short articles on birds and nature for the magazines."

He leaned back and propped his elbows on the arms of his chair.

"When I left home about two months ago," he said, "I went to Yama Farms Inns, in New York state, which, I suppose, is the only place of its kind in the country. It is a winter resort, and, yet, you have to be invited before you can go there. It is owned by Frank Seeman, a millionaire of New York City, and I was his guest. At Yama Farms they have their own private trout ponds and pigeon lofts with fully 3,500 pigeons.

"But," continued Mr. Burroughs, "I'd a lot rather be here than there. The plain life in Georgia suits me a great deal better than the high life in New York."

Since coming to Georgia Mr. Burroughs has been suffering from a cold that he contracted in New York, and he hasn't yet been out of the house a great deal.

"We have taken several rides in my car," he said, "a Ford that Mr. Ford himself gave me. But, except for that, I've kept in the house or just walked around a little bit. When at home I walk an hour every day and then take a spin in my car.

"The other day," he continued, "I saw ten or twelve ring neck plovers, the first I've seen this winter."

Then, the talk turned to birds.

"When I'm out of doors," he explained, "I keep my eyes and ears open for anything new. But I don't always find what I'm looking for."

Mr. Burroughs is seventy-eight years old. But, as he said, "a man is not old until he thinks or feels old."

As I rose to leave, he pointed to my notes. "Well, what are you going to do with those? Be sure to stick to the truth, and not say anything that isn't so."

Musical Library Burned

ATLANTA'S finest musical library is no more.

It wasn't at the Carnegie or in the concert hall of a musical organization, but in a private home—the Ponce de Leon residence of Oscar Pappenheimer.

The home was burned a short time ago. The pipe organ which was built into the spacious music room will be rebuilt. The four or five handsome pianos have been replaced, and Mr. Pappenheimer's wonderful cello still sings and sobs of evenings.

But the library of music cannot be restored in a day. It filled case after case, covering almost one whole side of the great music room. In it were sheets of Bach and Mozart and Handel, heavy tomes of modern composers, hundreds upon hundreds of works no longer to be purchased. There was music in manuscript, unpublished, which is lost forever.

"Conversation Stone" Is Laid at Ft. Peace

It Is for the Benefit of the Ladies, Because They Always Visit 10 Minutes in the House and An Hour on the Front Stoop.

"A LADY never visits more than 10 minutes—in the house. She talks the rest of the time on the door step. That's why I've fixed a 'conversation stone' at the top of my front steps—a piece of broad, smooth marble where the ladies may stand and have their chat out."

F. D. McMillan, builder of Ft. Peace, at 20 West Fifteenth street, laughed in his whole-souled fashion, the lines of his face creasing into many wrinkles, his eyes twinkling, his shoulders shaking. No one delights so in his whimsicalities, and no one has more delightful humors than this owner of the odd, wholly interesting, and altogether original house built by him on West Fifteenth street.

Much has been written of Ft. Peace, of how it is bulwarked by a great wall, of how pipe, like cannon are trained on Peachtree street and Ansley Park, and how roses have been planted so that they will wind through the mouths of these cannon, and hang down as sweet odorous missiles.

But, until now, the "conversation stone," sometimes known as the "ladies' stone," has been unmentioned. It is one of Mr. McMillan's shrewdest whims, one of his oddest and pleasantest jokes at the expense of woman.

He says, as a boy, he noticed that when ladies came to his mother's house, none of them really began to visit until good-byes had been said and the front door had been reached. Then, unusually in more or less discomfort, they would stand on the front door step, shift from one foot to the other, and tell the real inside stories from the church, or in a sisterly way discuss the sewing club and one or two things about certain members that they simply can't believe but just seemed to be so.

As he grew up, he observed this custom more and more; and, so, when he built his house, he built a "conversation stone" which gives a smooth footing, on which one may stand for hours and say good-bye in the maximum of comfort.

Everybody Has Grip but The Open-Air Sleepers

It's the Old-Fashioned Influenza That's Set Us to Sneezing, Says Dr. Smith, and the Only Real Remedy Is Fresh Air and Plenty of Sleep.

SCORE another point for the fresh air fiend.

"There's a regular epidemic of old-fashioned grip—real grip—in Atlanta," says Dr. Claude Smith, city bacteriologist. "Most everybody seems to have it —except those who sleep out of doors."

So, if you have a cold in the head, sneeze a bit, have that tired feeling, hustle in the morning and run down before noon—if you don't care a hang whether tomorrow comes or not—better look out! The grip has got you.

"It's the real old-fashioned grip of influenza," says Dr. Smith. "It's a germ disease, of course. May be some fellow brought it from Chicago or Pittsburg or somewhere else. Anyway, it's here.

"Best way to guard against it? Why, get plenty of sleep, plenty of fresh air, eat nourishing food, build up the body—take good care of yourself. That's all.

"The grip attacks the nervous system and makes you 'feel rotten.' You lose your punch, you have no energy. You may be all right in the morning but your batteries run down before night, and you're tired out.

"Atlanta's office buildings are badly ventilated. They're all too hot. The stenographer knows the steam-heated offices are warm so she comes down in a summer waist with a low neck. She can't have a window open on that costume, so the office remains hermetically sealed all day. Then, when the force goes out into the cold—a case of grip.

"We catch cold from having drafts strike portions of the body. Strong drafts blow under seats in theaters, churches, any public building. A window open just a little makes a draft. It won't hurt you if you dress warmly. But we make the mistake of dressing too lightly in a draft, or else keeping the room too warm. It's one extreme or the other.

"Don't let the grip worry you. It will run its course, if you take care of yourself, though you may feel it for a week or so."

Horse Drinks Like a Man

EAGLE BIRD has the soft drink habit. He is getting a bit cranky about some things, having reached the mature age of twelve, and every morning he insists on his drink—and usually gets it.

Eagle Bird is the handsome big sorrel who helps pull the hook-and-ladder truck from the Pryor street engine house. All day he stands in the front stall, intruding his inquisitive nose into the group of firemen around the stove and listening to the conversation, which ranges from politics to dominoes. That he doesn't join the discussions, is merely because nature didn't give him a speaking voice.

"He's got plenty sense enough to talk, the old chump," say the firemen. "Eagle Bird's got more sense than some folks I know, present company excepted."

Eagle Bird acquired the morning soft drink habit from seeing the firemen take their daily "shot o' dope." A fire horse is like a child—what other folk eat he insists on trying. Apples, candy, bananas—anything but a cigarette—are the fire horse's delight. So Eagle Bird manifested a desire to try a drink.

One of the boys tilted a glass of soda into Eagle Bird's lips. The horse spilled a bit of it the first time, but not afterward. Next day he tilted his head back, swallowed the soda, and liked it. Now he gets the glass between his teeth, but he's never cracked one yet. Every morning he goes out for exercise, and they can't ride past the soda-shop on the corner until he has his mornin's mornin'.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

MARCH will open with an unusual opportunity for art lovers of the city in the splendid exhibition of paintings to be held at the Ponce de Leon apartment under the auspices of the Atlanta Art association. A number of the most famous artists of America were asked to contribute and each one responded with canvasses expressing their individual work at its best. The fact that each one of these artists has work on exhibition at the Panama Pacific exposition will lend an unusual interest. The salon held recently in Atlanta demonstrated that there was a great deal of original talent in the city and among the wonderful paintings comprising marine scenes, views of the picturesque Maine woods, and Oriental studies, will be several clever conceptions of our own Georgia as well as excellent examples of portrait work by local talent. Among a few of the artists to exhibit are Frank Duvenick, L. H. Meakin, H. H. Wessel, J. H. Sharp, Edward Volkert, Charles J. Kaelin, Paul Eschenbach, James R. Hopkins, J. E. Kunz and Dwight C. Sturges. The salon will have its formal opening on Monday and will be thronged each day with the members of the art association and their friends and all who are interested in art and the development of Atlanta into the leading art center of the south.

Carefully Treat Children's Colds

Neglect of children's colds often lays the foundation of serious lung trouble. On the other hand, it is harmful to continually dose delicate little stomachs with internal medicines or to keep the children always indoors.

Plenty of fresh air in the bedroom and a good application of Vick's "Vap-O-Rub" Salve over the throat and chest at the first sign of trouble, will keep the little chaps free from colds without injuring their digestions. 25c, 50c, or $1.00.

GEORGIA WOMAN WHO DEPICTS GEORGIA SCENES

All the world loves to hear of some one who has accomplished something, made into a reality those dreams and romances of imagination and brought into existence those children of the spirit world that, wander through the minds of the very least of us. It is encouraging to know of those who put aside the lazy bag, or the burdens of domesticity, or the chronic ailments of some of us pessimists to create with the brain we all have and all so seldom push to its wonderful capacity, some marvelous picture, bit of sculpture, inspiring melody or graphic book.

Recently I had a chance meeting with Mrs. Lucien Cocke, of Roanoke, Va. Georgians best know her as Sallie Johnson Hagan, for her girlhood and early married life as Mrs. Hugh Hagan were spent in Atlanta, where her bright stories and effervescent spirits were always sought for every company. She had come down from her Virginia home to the town where her mother was reared, where the romance and sentiment of a century-old aristocracy have been so implanted in her mind that now they are about to be embodied in her latest book. The success of her first book, "By Paths in Dixie," about to go into a third edition, has been so decided that she has been asked to publish this one that she has under way and hopes to finish within the year.

Scene of New Novel Laid in Athens.

Athens is like precious old family silver, it never grows old and its polish is always there, yet by its shape and fineness one can tell it has been graced by courtly ladies of hoopskirt days and gentlemen of high statesmanship. For all that, it has no rival in the modern day styles. The new patterns only look shoddy and imitative beside it.

Here Mrs. Cocke plans to lay the opening scenes of her novel, introducing her reader to the antebellum life of the city, touching lightly on the political turmoil and secession question, of the late fifties.

"You have seen the glow of a sunset," She remarked as she walked between rows of ancestral boxwood on the old Ben Hill place. "I don't mean the first rich glow but the faint wave of color just before the darkness sweeps it away. Well, that is all of politics that I have time in and it comes only in the prologue. The action shifts to the present times and takes place in north Georgia amidst the hills of Habersham.

"The making of it has been in my mind for a long time," she went on her eyes sparkling and a merry smile about her mobile mouth. "But I am not a professional woman with a regular routine in each day. I belong first of all to my husband and my children and the happiness of our home is my first consideration. So my writing is done in spells. Sometimes I wait so long I even forget the names of some of the lesser characters."

It means much to us southerners to have the fiction of our land created by such a one as Mrs. Cocke. Her ancestors have been leaders in our land since its beginning. The culture and ease of our bygone plantation life is as much a part of her family tradition as it is to the F. F. V.'s of Virginia.

Her writing is natural and she goes into no use of such catch phrases as the constant use of "You all," "Mighty" or "Honey" as one sees so misused in many of our best magazines as true southern dialect. The dialect of Mammy Phyllis is spontaneous and so is her mountain talk in this last book.

"I will not use any dialect unless I know it just like I know the taste of cornbread. Do you know I have not even tried to imitate the talk of the Virginia negro. I have heard it now for several years but for all that it is new to me. It is the same with one of the characters in my novel who is a foreigner introduced amongst the gentle folk of Athens. He was educated in England so I make him speak perfect English as I do not wish a crazy quilt of his native tongue, that I know only, slightly patched up with his English."

POPULARITY OF SOUTHERN NOVEL.

Mrs. Cocke is most modest as to the popularity of "By Paths in Dixie." She made me promise not to tell of the flattering letters she has received from many states, but you recognize her, I am sure, as one of our family and are so proud of Georgia's latest literary genius after that you will keep to yourself" this slip of the pen. A lady in the middle west wrote that she kept it alongside her Bible and read it daily. Another from Boston wrote to ask where little Van lived and more about Willis and his mother. She wanted a book as a text book in the normal school of kindergarten in Boston. A group of northern friends enjoying the winter sun at Asheville got into a discussion on woman suffrage when Mr. Cocke settled it by quoting the story of the little girl who insisted she could crow and appealed to "Mammy Phyllis" who said she could. "But she allus noticed dat de rooster keeps mo' company wid hens 'whut cackles dan dem dat whut crows. 'Clong now an cackle lak or nice little hen." They were so charmed to learn of the book that on their return north one wrote to Mrs. Cocke that her greatest wish was to come to Roanoke to meet the author of such fascinating folklore.

Lately a young woman came to Atlanta to get material for an article she was preparing for one of the magazines who regularly used her stories. She had been sent out by editors to do the "miners' strike" in Colorado and many other questions of moment in many parts of our country. She remarked during her stay here that the south was an unexplored field full of untold romance and achievements while New England and most other sections had been combed over by special story writers until they were cleared of all originality.

"Your southerners are the ones to take up the work of exploiting your untold stories. You know it and can tell it as we strangers can never do, and you won't have to travel about as I do to find money making material."

Mrs. Cocke has reached one of these unexplored fields in her exposition of the southern mammy in her first book. In her second she draws a realistic picture of the unique home life of our southland before and after the war.

1. The old Ben Hill home, in Athens, about which centers the interest in the prologue.
2. Mrs. Cocke coming down the box bordered walk of the old place.
3. Mrs. Cocke in the yard at Lucy Cobb, where spent happy years and which bears the name of one of her kinswoman.

Cox College Notes

A pleasant event of Monday evening was the George Washington party given by the students. The young women were dressed as colonial belles and the gentlemen wore George Washington costumes. At the 6 o'clock course dinner the tables had as decorations red carnations, and the place cards were miniature hatchets. Toasts were given by Miss Thelma Norris, Miss Epps, Miss Bessie Maynard and Miss Ethyl Pringle. A delightful impromptu program was given in the auditorium.

The Tech Glee club was heard in a splendid concert on Saturday evening, the program being followed by a reception to the members.

The department of expression gave a recital on Wednesday afternoon, in which the following students appeared, Miss Sara Gay, Miss Mattie Pearl Edwards, Miss Enid Watson, Miss Edna Walters, Miss Ethyl Pringle and Mis Florine Gentry.

Mrs. Sara Mardre was the recent guest of her daughter, Miss Sara Mardre.

Mrs. B. F. Easterlin visited her daughters, Misses Lillie Mae and Thelma Easterlin, during the past week.

Mr. I. J. Phillips, of Hartwell, was the guest of President C. Lewis Fowler, during the Baptist Men's meeting this week.

Meeting of Buckeye Club

The Buckeye Woman's club held an unusually interesting meeting Tuesday afternoon in the parlors of the Ansley hotel.

"February birthdays" was the program topic including a mention of Edison, Lincoln, St. Valentine, Washington, Lowell and Longfellow.

As February 24, was the birthday of the oldest member of the club, Mrs. R. C. Huntington, the club presented her with a beautiful hand-painted cup and saucer in commemoration of her 78th anniversary. The presentation poem was written by Mrs. Lukens.

The subject of the meeting for March will be "The Mountain People and Mountain Schools." Mrs. Lazarus will be present and speak on the Mineral Bluff school.

Sewing Club

The Concordia Sewing club was entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Louie A. Spinks.

After several musical selections rendered by Mrs. E. S. Hamilton, a contest was enjoyed and Mrs. Hamilton won first prize, a piece of hand-painted china, and Mrs. H. E. Eubanks cut the consolation.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. H. J. Langston.

Mrs. Berry Goodman was welcomed as a new club member.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Barfield, on Loomis avenue.

Sewing Club

The Spend-a-While Sewing club met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Grover Allen, on Adair avenue.

Piano and vocal selections were rendered by Mrs. Achibald Drake and a reading by Mrs. Robert Hannah.

The club will meet next with Mrs. Oscar Cooley, on Lakewood avenue.

Children's Party

Mrs. Estelle Evans entertained at a pretty children's party Saturday afternoon at her home on Capitol avenue. The decorations were of golden jonquils and the ices and bons continued the pretty suggestion. Little Evelyn Estelle and Glenn Evans were the little honor guests of the happy occasion. The children present included Evelyn Cohen, Mildred Glenn, Elizabeth Smith, Helen Ruth Scogt, Hazel Howard, Edna Crawley, Jewel Clapp, Gladys Clapp, Marion Smith, Mary Nell Smith, Sophie Stein, Reyno Shearer, Jerry Johnson, Leon Glenn, Marvin Glenn, Randall Glenn, Moses Stein, Harry Stein, Charles Garland, Jr. and Dennis Heard.

Club Entertained

Mrs. G. C. Metzger entertained the members of her bridge club Thursday afternoon at her home on Drewry place. The prizes, white and gold plates, were won by Mrs. John Stone and Mrs. Earl Knight.

The members present were Miss Edith Cole, Miss Elizabeth Johnstone, Miss Ida Matthews, Mrs. Albert Hill, Mrs. J. S. Nunnally, Mrs. Jack Porter, Mrs. John Stone, Mrs. G. B. Everett, Mrs. R. Earl Knight, Mrs. C. P. Bailey, Mrs Claude Barnwell and Mrs. L. D. Parrott.

DANDRUFF MAKES HAIR FALL OUT

Girls! Try this! Doubles beauty of your hair in few moments

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

The Week in Retrospect

THE quietude which has characterized the opening weeks of the Lenten season was modified by George Washington's birthday, which was celebrated with appropriate exercises in the schools and by patriotic societies and with dinner dances at the various clubs. The Piedmont Continental Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution gave a tea on Monday afternoon at the Ansley and the Atlanta chapter was also hostess at a tea at Craigie House, programs suitable for the occasion being given at each entertainment. Informal luncheons and bridge parties also marked the day and the decorations of red, white and blue, at the country clubs made an effective background for the participants in the tea and dinner dances which celebrated the patriotic occasion.

An unusually interesting program marked the meeting of the Atlanta Woman's Club and later in the afternoon the semimonthly assembly of the Atlanta Writers' club was held at the University club. Miss Katherine Glover, of New York, formerly of Atlanta, who is the able editor of "Today," a current magazine of interest, was a guest of honor at this meeting. A most cordial greeting was extended Miss Glover by her many friends. She is one of the talented young southern women who have met with marked and brilliant success in newspaper and magazine circles of the north. Formerly editor of the woman's department of The Atlanta Journal, shortly after going north Miss Glover accepted the editorship of the magazine with which she has since been connected.

Mrs. William Claer Spiker, president of the league, gave a most interesting reading of the Spanish play, "El Gran Galloto," by Jose Echegeray.

Mrs. Spiker is not only a fluent reader, but a character impersonator of rare ability; her clear conception of the author's meaning, her grace of movement, and wonderful technique, have placed her in the front rank of dramatic art.

The members of the Drama league will have the pleasure of hearing Mrs. Spiker again on Tuesday, in Strindberg's short monologue, "The Stronger."

THE small parties which have centered around the visitors of the week have helped to brighten the social life which during Lent is very quiet except for the informal tea dances and week-end dinner dances at the various clubs.

Among the attractive young visiting girls who have been popular figures at the dances were Miss Lillian Jones, of Waynesboro, who divided her visit with her sister, Mrs. Livingston Wright, and several friends; Mrs. Florence Davies, of Indiana, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. French; Miss Bessie Martin, of New York, the guest of Miss Nell Waldo; Miss Mallan Clemens, of Philadelphia; the guest of Mrs. Malcolm Fleming; Miss Mattie Lamb, of Norfolk, Va., and Miss Helen Conroy, of New Haven, who remains the guest of her sister, Mrs. John Morris, Jr.

A series of delightful informal affairs marked the visit of Miss Katherine Glover, who spent the week with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Franklin. Other visitors for whom small dinners and other pleasant diversions were planned were Mrs. Robert Brodhead, of Philadelphia, the guest of Miss Nan Stephens; Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Guernsey, of New York, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hunt Chipley; Mrs. Warren Carrington, of Virginia, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Boiling H. Jones; Mrs. Robert Sterrett, of Philadelphia, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Muse, and Mrs. Lee Jones, of Albany, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hunter Muse.

THE lovers of Browning and his time were privileged to the fullest the reading given by Mrs. Jessie Eldridge Southwick, Saturday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. John W. Grant, on Peachtree street. Mrs. Southwick is from the Emerson College of Oratory at Boston, and to the appreciative and cultured audience present her artistic interpretation of Browning's "Love in Fishrin" was a rare treat. It was through the efforts of the Browning Study class that Mrs. Southwick gave the delightful reading and the proceeds of the afternoon went to the Martha Berry circle, which is doing a broad philanthropic work in maintaining scholarships for several girls in attending the Martha Berry school at Rome. While in the city Mrs. Southwick was pleasantly entertained as the guest of Mrs. Merrill Hutchinson.

WOODBINE, the home of Mrs. William Lawson Peel, was the scene of delightful hospitality Friday afternoon, when the hostess entertained a small number of friends at 5 o'clock tea. Miss Katherine Glover, of New York, was a charming visitor who was accorded a most cordial welcome from her many friends upon the occasion of her brief visit to the city. Madame Davenport, of Germany and the United States gave a most interesting and delightful sketch of her former home in Germany and her opinions on the tragic struggle being waged in Europe were cheered with interest and pleasure by all present. Miss Marguerite Haverty rendered several beautiful songs and delighted all present with her sympathetic interpretation of the quaint old ballads.

Guests at Rook Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Padgett, Jr., entertained delightfully at progressive rook Tuesday evening.

At the conclusion of the game handsome prizes were awarded to Mrs. W. B. Deeson and Mr. Allen Fitzgerald, Jr.

The guests present included Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Who, Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Couch, Mr. and Mrs. B. G. West, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lechler, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Deeson, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Cummins, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. England, Mr. and Mrs. Hardy Padgett, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lemmond, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Knott, Dr. and Mrs. Carl Pickett, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. McCullough, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Fitzgerald and Mr. and Mrs. W. Z. Mathews.

Old Folks' Day

Next Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a special service in the Chapman-Alexander revival tabernacle in Peachtree street for the old people of Atlanta. It will be "Old Folks' Day" and the aged men and women in this city who, because of some infirmity, have been unable to attend the services, will be the special guests of honor.

Mrs. Robert F. Maddox is chairman of the committee having this special day in charge. She is being assisted by Mrs. Frank Inman and Mrs. Archibald H. Davis, who is chairman of the evangelistic committee on work among women. This committee of ladies is especially anxious to have Atlantans owning automobiles place the machines at their service during the afternoon of next Friday and yesterday they issued an appeal to auto owners to volunteer the use of their machines so that the old folks may be brought to and from the tabernacle.

"We need as many automobiles as we can get," said Mrs. Maddox. "We want every old person in Atlanta to hear Dr. Chapman preach at this special service and to do this we must have some means of transporting them to and from their homes, since many of them are too old and infirm to walk or to go in the street cars.

"We therefore urge persons owning autos to place them at our disposal for the afternoon of next Friday and we will thank those who will be kind enough to do this to communicate with some member of the committe as soon as possible."

Those who would volunteer use of the machines are urged to communicate with Mrs. Maddox, Pace's Ferry road (Ivy 414); Mrs. Inman, 1060 Peachtree road (Ivy 282) or Mrs. Davis, 1220 Peachtree road (Ivy 6875-L).

A special committee of young women will be at the tabernacle to pin flowers on the aged people and to see that they are given every comfort during the meeting.

To Entertain Newnan Club

Mrs. John Z. Lawshe, will entertain the members of the Newnan club, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at her home on West Peachtree street.

Washington Party

Mrs. James T. Selman was hostess at a "42" party during the week at her apartment in the Winturn court. In the decorations the George Washington idea prevailed, American flags, red carnations and ferns being used effectively.

Miss Julia Stokes made top score and Miss Florine Griffin cut the consolation.

After the game a delicious salad course, followed by ices, was served.

In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Selman were hosts at a card party, and Mrs. M. J. Wright and Mr. W. R. Anglin won the prizes.

Notes of Art Exhibit

A spring exhibition of pictures will begin tomorrow at the Ponce de Leon apartment under the auspices of the Atlanta Art association, and its success is assured from the fact that this association is back of it. The association is composed of a group of men and women of Atlanta who have for many years devoted themselves to the work, because they see even beyond the pleasure of today which the pictures give hope to awaken others to the love of arts and their far-reaching influence in training children's observation, taste, concentration and their hands while young.

Several of the men to be represented in the coming exhibition are quite young, their work is very modern and wonderfully interesting and instructive. Then there is Frank Duvenick, who held his first exhibition in 1875 in Boston, and his work was a revelation to the American world as to the marvelous possibility of paint and brush handled by a master. Duvenick studied in Munich from 1870 to 1875, where he was looked upon as phenomenal and took every prize from that in antique drawing to composition.

He and W. M. Chase spent time after this in Venice together, where they had many happy times and many struggles and Duvenick did a number of etchings which were thought to be by Whistler and signed with an assumed name much to Whistler's disgust.

Later the idea was ridiculed by him in his "Gentle Art of Making Enemies," but the etchings were eagerly bought by such connoisseurs as Sir Seymour Hayden.

The fact that Atlanta lovers of the art of painting will be able to see a study for themselves the work of this very great master who possessed "the greatest talent of the brush of the century" cannot be too highly estimated. Among other artists to exhibit is James R. Hopkins, who is admirably represented in the present exhibition by his six paintings. Despite the fact that he has spent the last ten years in Paris, he is recognized as a distinctly American painter. One glance over his group of pictures will reveal the qualities which stamp him as one of our strong and individual artists. His is a beautifully simple, picturesque grasp of reality—a color sense of great refinement and excellent craftsmanship. Hopkins is a thinker and his works reveal a personality of keen intelligence as well as of poetic insight and of the reverence for the beautiful that makes us think of the Japanese, of Whistler and of Puvis de Chavannes.

His canvas, "The Shining Gown," which won the Walter Lippincott prize at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, Philadelphia, and a medal at the International Fine Arts Exposition at Buenos Aires in 1910, is one of his most characteristic works. The theme is simple enough. A young girl, a silk gown, a chest of drawers and a chair. It is with a few objects like these that his personal expression is most effectively revealed; how harmoniously, yet how effectively is this canvas arranged. There is not an empty spot, despite the lack of smaller objects—the lines of the broad folds of the girl's dress lead up gracefully to the delicate charm of her neck, her head and outstretched arms.

C. S. Kaelin and Paul Echenback are two painters of Cincinnati who differ widely in subject and treatment. The former an accomplished pastellist, besides executing work in oil, paints altogether on the New England coast, treats all things in a broad manner, especially so in pastel, which are suggestions of rather than imitations of nature.

Mr. Eschenback excels in rendering detail, but his subject-matter is obtained in Cincinnati. Both are members of the Society of Western Artists and the Cincinnati Art academy, the latter of which Mr. Eschenback is the president. Mr. Kaelin will be represented at San Francisco.

Approaching Wedding of Mrs. Thaddeus Horton and Mr. Chauncey Smith

The cordial interest of many friends centers in the marriage of Mrs. Thaddeus Horton and Mr. Chauncey Smith, which will be solemnized Sunday evening at 6 o'clock at the residence of the bride on Eighth street. The ceremony will be witnessed by only a very few close friends and will be performed by Bishop C. K. Nelson. Miss Garda Horton will be bridesmaid and Mr. Reid Hobson will attend Mr. Smith as best man.

Mr. Smith and his bride will spend some time at the Ritz Carlton in New York before going to the family residence at Cambridge. This beautiful old home which has been in the family of the groom for generations, is a place of great historic interest and adjoins the famous Longfellow home.

The bride-elect is a very popular member of Atlanta society, her charm of personality having won for her many friends, and her clever work in the leading magazines having made her well known as a southern writer in the literary world. Mr. Smith, who came to Atlanta from Boston, is prominently connected with the Southern Bell Telephone company, and besides being prominent in the business world is a popular member of all the social clubs.

Evening Party

An interesting event of the past week was an informal party given by Miss Willie Allen at her home on Washington street, in East Point, Thursday in honor of her cousins, Miss Bessie Davis, of Birmingham, and Mrs. Charles Lowe, of Lafayette, Ala.

Assisting Miss Allen in receiving the guests were her mother, Mrs. T. B. Allen and her sisters, Mrs. W. T. Tweedy, and Mrs. W. B. Coleman.

Many interesting games were played, and Miss Mignon Spencer rendered beautiful music during the evening. Later a buffet supper was served in the dining room.

Those present were Misses Mattie and Gladys McConnell, Miss Mignon Spencer, Miss Annie Robinson, Misses Maggie and Leila Allen, Miss Mary Spencer, Miss Elizabeth Durrett, Miss Ina Hemperly, Miss Bessie Davis, Mrs. Charles Lowe, Mr. Grady Hardy, Mr. Claude Hiltt, Mr. Alfred Jones, Mr. Ben Griffith, Mr. James Finney, Mr. Earl Durrett, Mr. Rosser Brown, Mr. L. J. Allen, Mr. T. G. Christian, Mr. G. W. Allen, Mr. A. Davis and Mr. T. B. Davis.

Interesting Weddings

Doss—Cann

Mrs. F. M. Cann, announces the marriage of her daughter, Marrie, to Mr. James Thomas Doss, at home at 5:30 o'clock on Thursday evening. Rev. Mr. Gaines, pastor of the Grant Park church, officiated.

Garabedian-Adair

The marriage of Miss Marie Adair and Mr. Kaizer Garabedian was solemnized Sunday afternoon, February 21, at 3 o'clock. The Rev. J. S. Lyons officiating.

Stewart-Cotton

Mrs. Mary E. Thorp, of Cordele, announces the marriage of her niece, Miss Carolyn Mae Cotton, to Mr. George Walter Stewart, at Schafer, N. D., on February 17.

Gatliff-Davidson

WHITE PLAINS.—The wedding of Miss Beverline Goodrich Davidson and Mr. Edward Moss Gatliff, of Williamsburg, Ky., which occurred at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chase Davidson at White Plains, Ga., Tuesday afternoon, February 9, at 2 o'clock, was an event of more than passing interest. The ceremony was quiet and beautiful in its simplicity and only the immediate families were present.

The entire lower floor was aglow with golden daffodils and ferns for which the graceful southern smilax formed a most artistic background. Unshaded candles in silver candelabra shed a soft radiance over the scene and in the reception hall, where the ceremony was performed, the stairway was entwined with smilax.

Rev. Rober R. Taylor officiated. Mrs. Fred Singer, of Lumpkin, accompanied by Mrs. N. A. Archer, of Williamsburg, Ky., sang softly "You and I" during the ceremony.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a going away coat suit of brown gabardine with accessories to match, and a small taffeta hat with tiny shaded yellow roses and a brown ostrich pompons. Her flowers were orchids and valley lilies. She wore the cameos that four generations of her mother's family had worn on the occasion of their marriage. The gift of the groom was a diamond dinner ring.

Immediately after the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served after which the young couple left for a two weeks' stay in New York and a week in Augusta.

Mrs. Gatliff as Miss Davidson was universally popular.

Mr. Gatliff is a rising young attorney of Williamsburg, Ky., and is also interested in the Gatliff Coal mines in Kentucky.

On their return from their honeymoon, they will keep house in a beautiful home now being prepared, and the chamber of elegant gifts received testified to the popularity of the young couple.

Among the out-of-town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Goodrich, Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Davidson of Augusta, Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Davidson and Dr. L. R. Brown and Miss Gladys Brown of Sharon, Mrs. N. A. Archer and Miss Una Gatliff and Mr. William Archer and Mr. Elmer Mahan, of Williamsburg, Ky., Hon. and Mrs. John D. Walker and Mr. DuRelle Berry and Master John D. Walker, Jr., of Sparta. Mrs. A. W. Carswell and John Wright and Porter Wilkins Carswell of Waynesboro, Mrs. Fred Singer of Lumpkin, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Milligan and Mrs. Frank Mitchell of Crawfordville.

Surprise Party

Thursday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. William Saunders, in Kirkwood, a number of friends celebrated the seventy-first birthday of their hostess. The happy occasion was planned in the nature of a surprise and was successful in every detail. The parlors were bright with azaleas and ferns. Gifts of fancy work material of various kinds poured in as mementoes of the anniversary. A guessing contest was a feature of the entertainment. The initials of Mrs. Saunders' maiden name, A. D. McD., were written on a card and each guest asked to guess the full name. Only two cards bore the correct name, Agnes Dorothy McDowell, these two contestants were Mrs. Ben Hill and Miss Roberta Robson, who drew for first prize. Mrs. Hill was successful, and received a handsome fern. Mrs. Arthur Brewer drew the consolation, a jar of preserves. Delicious refreshments were served in the dining room.

Among the neighbors, old friends and former pupils of Mrs. Saunders who composed the surprise party, were the following: Mrs. Warlick, Mrs. J. C. A. Branan, Mrs. Mitchell Bee, Mrs. Quinn, Mrs. Ben Hall, Miss Lottie Akin, Miss Mary Branan, Mrs. Robert Wolcott, Miss Ruby Hall, Miss Annie Lou Kanon, Miss Roberta Robson, Miss Schley, Mrs. Sallie Haygood, Mrs. Sam Dunlap, Miss Myra Hayes, Mrs. Ed Hamby, Mrs. Earl Thomas, Mrs. Roy Woodbury, Mrs. Arthur Brewer, Mrs. Hal Reviere, Mrs. A. I. Bonnell, Mrs. Bee, Mrs. W. E. Saunders, Jr., Mrs. Buice, Mrs. C. E. Turner, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. E. M. Akin, Mrs. L. Cousins, Miss Annie Dunlap, Miss Ora McGriff, Miss Mayme Hall, Miss Willie Bernice Green, Mrs. Eugene Daniel, Miss Jessie Jones, Miss Martha Haygood, Mrs. T. M. Smith, Mrs. Kate Green, Miss Katie Travis, Mrs. J. S. F. Bryant, Mrs. Henry Pace, Mrs. J. C. Prather, La Grange; Miss Clyde Gault, Carrollton; Mrs. Harry Dews, Mrs. Edward England, Mrs. Rogers.

Party Series

An enjoyable event of Monday afternoon was the "42" party given by Mrs. James T. Selman at her apartment in the Winturn Court.

The decorations in the rooms were suggestive of Washington's birthday.

Miss Julia Stokes made top score and Miss Florine Griffin cut the consolation. Both received pretty souvenirs of the occasion.

After the game a delicious salad course and ices were served.

In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Selman entertained at cards. The prize winners of that occasion were Mrs. M. J. Wright and Mr. W. R. Anglin.

This Week in Atlanta's Movie Theaters

Film Fans Can Pick the Best and Plenty of It--Montgomery Shows Famous Stars--Strand Books Four Keystones, Vaudette Announces Three-Reel Romance--Divorce Play at Alamo--Grand Shows Kipling Adantation and Mary Pickford--Lyric Opens With "Hypocrites"--Other Houses Have Fine Bills

Favorite stars in a number of feature pictures, several eagerly anticipated dramas, and a world of first-class comedy and thrills, make the movie layout for local fans an attractive one this week.

Monday will be marked by the opening of the Lyric theater as a movie house for the first time in its history. "Hypocrites," a daring Bosworth film, is booked for the week, a picture which has been the storm center of praise and blame for days in the east. Its showing here is sure to attract unusual comment.

At the Grand the usual run of big features, matched with Mary Pickford pictures, continues and at the Montgomery, there have been booked five big productions featuring Broadway stars, which include "A Gentleman of Leisure," with Wallace Eddinger, "Stop Thief," and "Rule G," a railroad romance.

The Strand announces four Keystone comedies for the week, two serials and several special releases over the Mutual route; while at the Vaudette and the Alamo, the idols of filldom vie with special productions in attractive programs. "The Hermit of Bird Island," is the big picture at the Vaudette, and the Alamo opens the week with a startling film, "Barriers Swept Aside."

The Alpha continues "The Master Key" and other good spictures, while in West End, the Alsha runs "The Twenty Million Dollar Mine Mystery" Monday and other good pictures later.

STARS IN FARCES AND BIG FEATURES AT MONTGOMERY

Five distinctive films in which the leading stars of the big motion companies appear, have been booked for the Montgomery this week: "A Gentleman of Leisure," with Wallace Eddinger, Monday; "Stop Thief," with Mary Ryan and Harry Mestayer, Tuesday and Wednesday; Kathleen Emerson in "Rule G," Thursday; "The Fairy and the Waif," featuring Mary Miles Minter, star of "The Littlest Rebel," Friday; and "C. O. D.," a Broadway comedy feature, Saturday.

Wallace Eddinger makes his debut in the movies in "A Gentleman of Leisure." This film, a moral mixed with a roaring farce, is the first opportunity many Atlantians have had of seeing the star whose name flamed over Broadway for years.

"Stop Thief" is recognized as the most ridiculous, thrilling farce that Cohan & Harris ever collaborated on. "Rule G," on Thursday is a railroad romance, with a punch and moral, which will especially interest anyone who knows anything about railroading. The other films are up to the Montgomery's usual high standard.

The Montgomery announces Elsie Janis, famous stage star, in "Caprices of Kitty," on Monday and Tuesday of the week following.

"BARRIERS SWEPT ASIDE" AT ALAMO THEATER MONDAY.

Jack Thorpe divorced his wife and then found he loved her. That forms the theme for "Barriers Swept Aside," which is the big two-act Kalem drama at the Alamo Monday. How she got a job as a stenographer, endured the attentions of her employer, and finally came to love her husband again, forms an all-absorbing film story.

Other feature pictures have been booked at the Alamo for the week, including "The Silent Plea," a three-reel Vitagraph romance, on Tuesday, and "The Glory of Clementina," William J. Locke's famous novel in film form, on Wednesday.

There are also many firstclass Biographs, Kalem and Vitagraph and Essanay comedies, and stirring romances on the Alamo's program.

MARY PICKFORD AND STRONG FEATURES AT THE GRAND.

An excellent program of movies has been announced for the Grand for this week, and the price continues at 5 cents, 11 to 11 o'clock. The best that the picture market affords is being booked, including a number of reels of Mary Pickford pictures, shown every day, each subject remaining for two days. In addition the Pathe comedy reels are offered.

For the first four days of the week William Fox will present Edward Jose and Theda Bara in Robert Hillard's great success, "A Fool There Was," taken from Kipling's "Vampire." On Friday and Saturday the bill will change to David Belasco's great play, "The Girl I Left Behind Me," with Robert Edeson and Claire Whitney in their original roles.

TWO PRIZE SERIALS AND KEYSTONES AT THE ALSHA.

Showing two classy serials, "The Twenty Million Dollar Mine Mystery" on Monday, and "The Exploits of Elaine" on Thursday, the Alsha theater in West End offers a good bill this week to its patrons.

Chief among the attractions also are three of the funniest of Keystone comedies on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and several thrilling Majestic, American, Domino and Broncho dramas. Beauty and Komic comedies will also be shown.

FILM STARS AND FAVORITES AT LOCAL THEATERS THIS WEEK are: 1, scene from "Stop Thief," Montgomery Tuesday and Wednesday; 2, Edith Storey, Vitagraph star, in "The Silent Plea," Tuesday at the Alamo; 3, Mabel Normand, Keystone star, at Strand; 4 scene from "Hypocrites," all week at Lyric; 5, James Cruze, in "The Twenty Million Dollar Mystery" Monday at the Alsha; 6, Edward Jose and Theda Bara in "A Fool There Was," Grand Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday; 7, Don Ferrandou, singing this week at the Vaudette.

"The Twenty Million Dollar Mine Mystery" is booked, and on Friday "Runaway June" enters into an era of thrills and heart throos. Other Mutual favorites will appear throughout the week: a two part Reliance based on Tennyson's poem, "Break, Break, Break;" "Winning Back," a two part Broncho wherein a woman recklessly adopts a man's methods; "Heart of Flame," American romance of a young violinist; and others that are intensely interesting.

MUTUAL MASTER COMPANY OPENS ITS BRANCH HERE

The Mutual Master Picture corporation, recently organized in New York, has opened branch offices at 40 1-2 Luckie street, Atlanta, and will book through them from two to four reels each week, including productions of the American, Majestic, New York, Reliance and Thanhouser companies.

"HERMIT OF BIRD ISLAND" BIG FEATURE AT VAUDETTE

The big film of the week at the Vaudette is "The Hermit of Bird Island," a three reel Lubin special on Thursday, although for every day a number of stars appear in intensely interesting dramas and laughable comedies.

"The Hermit of Bird Island" is one of the most thrilling romances the movie world has known, staged partly in English society life, partly in the sea, partly on a desert island. The plot hinges around a young fisherman, two American girls, one of whom is engaged to an English peer, and the peer himself. The scenic productions are magnificent, with racing features aeroplanes and other exciting features that grip the audience from first to last.

"A Child of the Prairie," on Monday is another big drawing card, as it shows Tom Mix, famous broncho buster in a number of sensational riding stunts.

FOUR KEYSTONES AT STRAND WITH SERIALS AND DRAMAS

Four Keystone comedies, two great serials and any number of thrilling Mutual dramas are offered movie patrons of the Strand this week. The Keystones will be shown on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, and the Wednesday comic is "Ambrose's Sour Grapes," a special two part screamer.

"HYPOCRITES" AT LYRIC EVERY DAY THIS WEEK.

"Hypocrites" will be seen at the Lyric all this week, daily matinee at 3 p. m., night at 8:30 o'clock—25 cents for best seats at either performance, all seats reserved. Reservations can be made in advance for any performance and for the accommodation of the theater-goers telephone orders will be received and listed, and seats held until called for.

"Hypocrites" is going to create a sensation in Atlanta. It is the most talked of screen offering in the history of motion pictures. It is the most daring picture that was ever released and it is safe to predict that its duplicate can never be brought about. The picture has created a profound sensation in New York. When first presented more than 14,000 people paid a dollar a seat at the Longacre theater and from that day to this there has been a constant sent and reservations have been listed three weeks in advance.

THEY BRAND HER VAMPIRE WHEREVER SHE JOURNEYS

Theda Bara Finds Star Role in William Fox Feature Isn't All Roses

"Wherever I go, I am pointed out as 'The Vampire' and the 'Woman Who Did Not Care.'"

Thus Theda Bara, beautiful leading woman of the Theater Antoine, in Paris, who in her impersonation of "The Vampire" in William Fox's screen production of "A Fool There Was" has caused thrills and chills to run up and down the spines of millions of Americans and Europeans. Miss Bara's triumph has, in a way, so she says, been her bane. She cannot go anywhere in New York without being pointed out as "The Vampire." At the William Fox offices stacks of mail are received daily, some of them couched in most abusive terms. Miss Bara is having her life made miserable, she declares, by scores of such letters from various men and women who decry her as a monster of stony-heartedness.

"It is absolutely monotonous," she says, "and most unpleasant. I want to make a public statement that I am not 'a vampire' by any means. In fact my future time is taken up in my work for the Red Cross society and in working for the benefit of the French soldiers with La Societe De Guerre, of which I am president."

GAS! GAS! INDIGESTION, SOURNESS, SICK STOMACH--PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN

Here's relief! In five minutes your upset stomach feels fine.

If you feel bloated after eating and you believe it is the food which fills you; if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach; if there is difficulty in breathing after eating, eructations of sour, undigested food and acid, heartburn, brash or a belching of gas, you need Pape's Diapepsin to stop food fermentation and indigestion.

It neutralizes excessive acid, stomach poison; absorbs that misery-making gas and stops fermentation which sours your entire meal and causes Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Biliousness, Constipation, Griping, etc. Your real and only trouble is that which you eat does not digest, but quickly ferments and sours, producing almost any unhealthy condition.

A case of Pape's Diapepsin will cost 50 cents at any pharmacy here, and will convince any stomach sufferer in five minutes that Fermentation and Sour Stomach is causing the misery of Indigestion.

No matter if you call your trouble Catarrh of the Stomach, Nervousness or Gastritis, or by any other name—always remember that relief is waiting at any drug store the moment you decide to begin its use.

Pape's Diapepsin will regulate any out-of-order stomach within five minutes, and digest promptly, without any fuss or discomfort, all of any kind of food you eat.—(Advt.)

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS AT PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION

The universal polo tournament which is to be a very important feature of the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco, is attracting the attention of the smart world not only in America and Canada, but word has been received by society folk in San Francisco that, contrary to expectations, quite a number of the English nobility will be in attendance at the exposition and at the polo tournament.

Already there are several of the prominent eastern polo players in California with others preparing to leave for the west in order to be there in time for the opening of the tournament on March 15. There will be polo matches continuously nearly every day for six weeks, the last match taking place on April 26. Three times a week the matches will be played at the exposition polo field, a beautiful stretch of sward which sweeps toward the bay at one end, affording a magnificent view of the Golden Gate, the green-clad Marin hills, the smiling waters of San Francisco bay, while ever-present is the riot of gold and blue and orange of the Jewel City.

Twice a week there will be matches at El Cerrito field, near San Mateo. The San Mateo Polo club is the rendezvous for the smart set throughout the spring and summer seasons, being but a short ride from the city either by train or automobile. The members of the club as well as those of the Burlingame and Menlo Park Country clubs are planning all sorts of delightful entertainments for the visiting polo players and their friends. So that there will be no dearth of festivities for those of the fashionable world who come to the exposition from all parts of America, Europe and the Orient.

Foxhall Keene, the celebrated New York polo player, and his wife, and Rene La Montagne, of the Meadowbrook team, have signified their intentions of attending the exposition tournament, and both Keene and La Montagne, who have played on English fields, will take part in it.

Among the celebrated players from the Cooperstown team will be Max Stevenson, Perry Beadleston, Kitty van Stade and Fad Ramsey.

Frederick McLaughlin, of Chicago, and Hugh Drury, who will play with the Midwick team, are already in southern California en route to San Francisco. Drury is a player of international repute, having taken part in tournaments in England and India. He is a member of the Rockaway Polo club.

Max Fleischman, of Cincinnati; J. Lansford Stack, of Chicago, and Thomas le Boutellier, of Meadowbrook, have shipped their ponies and will be in San Francisco some time before the tournament begins.

Through private correspondence with friends in California, the Earl of Elgin, Sir James Wilson, the Countess of Lendy, the Duke of Leinster, Sir John Carey, of Guernsey, and Mr. Alan McDonald, of Banff, New Brunswick, have announced that they are coming to California and San Francisco for the exposition and will arrive in time for the polo tournament, the golf tournament and the harness races.

Two of the most interesting activities in the sports calendar of the Panama-Pacific International exposition are the race meeting which will be held from June 5 to June 19 and again from October 20 to November 13. They will be conducted under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' association. There will be no long-drawn-out contests except the $20,000 stakes. The races will attract prominent people from all over the country and the attendance will include some of the best known society folk of Canada and America.

Bean to Leave Monday to Take Charge of Team

Coach of Red and Black Baseball Squad Will Get Men Out for First Real Practice Tomorrow--Prospects Good

By Innis Brown

With his respite from active service of just one lone week now drawn to a close Joe Bean, well-known local sport expert, begins this week another campaign. Last Saturday night Joe sat by and watched his Athletic club basketball team bring to a very successful close a triumphant basketball season, by handing the Columbus Y. M. C. A. the most decisive beating they have logged from a floor in many moons. Tomorrow Bean takes up the trek to Athens to assume charge of the baseball candidates who will defend the Red and Black of old Georgia during the approaching collegiate diamond campaign.

Coach Bean is a firm advocate of the theory of one thing at a time. And that one thing for the past three months and more with Joe has been basketball. Consequently he professes a deep ignorance of the baseball situation at Georgia. "Don't know just what we are going to have yet, and don't believe of winning titles, or even games weeks ahead of time anyway," is the way Joe expresses his comprehension of the situation.

But if you dig along a bit further Joe will cough up a few more points of vital interest to the Athens entry in the southern college baseball sprint for the approaching season. First and foremost, Joe will admit that he loses but two regulars from last year's team, Rucker Ginn and Bob McWhorter, two of the best college outfielders that ever scorched a high one, or swung a bat, will be missing when the roll is called tomorrow. Ginn hase joined professional ranks, while McWhorter entered Virginia last fall to take up the study of law.

But the loss of these two stars leaves a noble array on hand still. There are John Henderson on first, George Harrison at second, Clements at short, and Frank Holden at third. Hitchcock and Corley, pitchers, are both back, as is Fox, the Atlanta lad. Torbett is on hand to handle the shants and shoots of the above mentioned heavers, as well as any other that may show enough stuff as the season moves on to break into the line up. In the outfield are Brown and Owens, both of whom have had varsity experience.

In addition to these regulars, there are several men from reserve ranks of last season, who are said to carry quite a bit of ability. Then, too, there are several youngsters, who are out for their first year. Among the more promising ones are Spurlock, Sid Johnson and Hank Floyd, from local prep ranks; Long, from Georgia Military academy, and Dunn, from Savannah. All of these Coach Bean knows of, and there are doubtless others.

Most coaches would be pleased to start a season with half of the fine array now on hand at Athens, and Coach Bean has no kicks to enter. He knows the stuff is there, and barring accidents that may prove costly, he believes that the team is in for another good season. Another championship? Possibly, but he won't promise. Just shoping, and trusting, that's all except a very pronounced determination to do his durndest with the forces at hand.

Coach Bean's arrival in Athens will be the signal for real active baseball work. As soon as he reaches the scene, full trapse and paraphernalia will be hauled into action, and the season sent on its way. There will be no extra large amount of time for getting them in shape either. So late as not later than 23, or thereabouts, the Red and Black warriors will hook up in a real sure enough struggle with an opposing college team. Georgetown will furnish the opposition for the first fray. From then on the going will be more regular. About a month later the team makes an excursion into the territory to the north, meeting the strongest of the Atlantic states college nines. This trip will terminate a week or so before the first pair of games with the Jackets that will allow the team time to settle down after the junket for the real business in hand of trimming the local nine, if possible.

In his practice work, the Georgia coach will have the opportunity of matching his boys against the Buffalo Federal leaguers, who will train in the Classic City this year. Last season the team derived much benefit from working out with the Cleveland club in practice games. The Buffalo roster includes the names of a number of players who are well known to Bean, and he expects that the pros. will lend him quite a bit of assistance. Incidentally the Buffeds include several popular favorites among local fans. Joe Agler and Russ Ford are among the outfit, also Dewaine Young, who once sported a Volunteer uniform in this circuit, will be along, as will Hal Chase and others.

Metropolitan Bowlers Arrange for Tourney

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Arrangements to hold the annual championship tournament of the National Bowling association in this city next month were completed yesterday, when contracts were signed for a large bowling hall. The date selected for the start is Saturday, March 27, and the competition will continue for three weeks.

Major M. W. Gage who has had charge of several similar tournaments in the past, including that of last year at Atlantic City, has placed orders for twelve alleys of the finest type, and work will begin at once.

Pirates Meet Naps In Early Games

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 27.—Two pre-season inter-league baseball games will be played here April 3 and 4 between the Pittsburg Nationals and Cleveland Americans, according to announcement today by A. J. Heineman, president of the local club of the Southern association.

Braves Buy Fitzpatrick

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 27.—The Toronto International league baseball club announced last night that Third Baseman Eddie Fitzpatrick had been sold to the Boston Nationals for cash and players.

Star Yellowjacket Battery Which Is Expected to Prove Mainstay of the Squad During Coming Season

On the left is Jim Senter, who does the flinging. "Froggy" Morrison on the right is on the receiving end. This pair is a part of Chattanooga's contribution to the Jacket baseball squad this year. This pair was in college last season, but were ineligible on account of the one-year residence rule. Senter formerly played with the Chattanooga university team, while Morrison played at Texas A. & M. before entering Tech. Both are football stars as well.

Manager Smith Pleased With Progress at Ponce

When Manager Billy Smith, of the Crackers, returned from his daily journey to Ponce de Leon park Saturday afternoon his visage was bespread by the most intense and expansive smile that has lighted it up since those festive October days of 1913, when the Crackers eased over the tape ahead of the Mobile Gulls for the flag, just half a game to the good. And reason good and sufficient was implied Manager Smith to besmear his face with outward signs of pleasure and content.

Bill had just had the intelligence forced onto him through personal perception, via the sense of sight, that Ponce de Leon is fast shaking off its resemblance to a cross section of the great Culebra cut, and is once again assuming a suitable form and contour for receiving the imprint of the slashing spikes of ye ball tosser. Accept it from Manager Bill, Ponce de Leon is again rapidly taking the shape of a respectable baseball yard.

The construction forces which have been working on the job have finished their work. That is, the sewer has been laid and properly buried depths below the surface. The big trench has been filled and little remains to be done save the leveling of certain spots here and there, and the patching up of vast spaces of grassy verdure ground away by the tracks of workmen, animals and vehicles of draft employed in the work.

Furthermore said construction forces have likewise delegated to Manager Smith a crew of fifteen prisoners to help in the work of replacing such turf as has been destroyed, and of leveling off the rough places. This force will be given over for a period of work. Beginning Monday, Manager Smith and his first lieutenant, Gilbeside, will meet the lark, the bee and other manifestations of animal life, that fare forth early in the morning, to start the job of polishing off the field. With favorable weather, Manager Bill says he expects no difficulty in putting things in shape as far as can be done, until Mother Nature takes a hand, and makes the green grass to grow.

Being in the midst of a happy frame of mind, Manager Smith was prone to pass out a few compliments to those responsible for the job at Ponce de Leon. "You can just say," remarked Billy, "that the people who handled that job did everything that could have been expected of them, and we are surely thankful to them. They went out of their way in many cases to rush the work as much as possible. Considering the natural obstacles with which they had to contend, their work was most excellent, and they deserve the thanks of myself, the baseball club and Atlanta fans generally."

Evers and Wife Reach Savannah

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 27.—John J. Evers, captain of the Boston world's champions, accompanied by his wife and little son, arrived in Savannah today from Camden, S. C., and will leave tomorrow morning for Macon, where the Braves will train for the coming season. Evers says that with an even break of luck the Boston team should "repeat" for he figures the team will be stronger this season than last year. He expressed the opinion that the Federal league would have no trouble in lasting out the season.

Mercer Quintet Defeats Auburn

AUBURN, Ala., Feb. 27.—The Mercer quintet downed the Auburn five here tonight by the score of 32 to 21. Clements for Auburn was the star of the game, who registered 19 of the 21 points made by Auburn. Burbage at guard put up a good game in the second half. For Mercer, Grace at center, Dewberry at forward and Cochran at guard, did the best work. This closed the basketball season for Auburn.

Wellesley Girls To Play Baseball

WELLESLEY, Mass., Feb. 27.—Baseball was officially sanctioned at Wellesley college today and Miss Lomle L. Smith, of New Orleans was appointed director of the sport. It will be classed as a major sport with tennis, archery, hockey and rowing. Supporters of baseball at the college had endeavored for several years to obtain official recognition for the game.

Penn. Fishermen Win

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—By defeating Yale, Pennsylvania tied the New Haven swimmers for the lead in the Inter-Collegiate league, each having won three meets and lost one.

George Kircher Leaves Today

With kit and baggage securely packed for a long journey, George Kircher will leave Atlanta this afternoon, preparatory to reporting to the Portland club in the Pacific Coast league, to which he was recently traded by the local club for Roy Moran. Kircher will go from here to Louisville for a few days to visit his relatives. After a few days in that city he will depart for Fresno, Cal., where the Portland team has its spring training camp.

Kircher will not be altogether a stranger on the Portland club. That is, he will meet Milton Reed, comes to terms with Manager Walter McCredie. Milt is slated to go to that club, on a deal with the Phillies for Infielder Dave Bancroft. Also Fred Derrick another Georgia boy is a member of the club. However Derrick has never played in the Southern league.

Jack Reidy Is Here on Visit

Jack Reidy, who last season managed the Rome club in the Georgia-Alabama league is in Atlanta for a short visit. Reidy will not be back with the Rome club during the coming season, and as yet has made no arrangements. With his experience as a manager, and his acquaintance with young ball players, he should have little trouble in getting on with some of the teams in this section.

Dahlonega Girls Beat Gainesville Hi

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Feb. 27.—The Dahlonega girls' basketball team defeated the Gainesville High school girls' team here tonight in a close game, by a score of 6 to 5. Maude Hendrix for the winners was the star performer of the game, making all her team's total of six points. Misses Rogers and Goforth scored the points for the losers, the former getting four, and the latter one.

Reista Is Home First in Grand Prize Classic

Italian Driver Leads Fast Field to Finish Line by Three Laps--Was Driving His First Race on American Soil. Track Wet and Slippery

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—On a rain-drenched, dangerous track, D. Reista, an Italian driver, engaged in his first American speed struggle, won the Grand Prix automobile race at the Panama-Pacific Exposition today in a Plugeot. His time was seven hours seven minutes 57 1-2 seconds.

Howard Wilcox, in a Stutz, was second, three laps behind Reista, time 7:34:36, and Hughie Hughes, in a Ono, third, time 7:21:16. Louis Disbrow, in a Simplex, fourth, time 7:21:38, and Gil Anderson, in a Stutz, fifth, time 7:34:51. There is some question as to fourth and fifth places which can only be adjusted by a recheck of the entire score.

Before the race was two-thirds over, Reista went out in front and stayed there, warding off the rushes of Wilcox and Hughes, who fought valiantly for the leadership. Reista won $3,000, the other four named dividing $4,000.

Rain began to fall an hour after the start. It stopped for two or three hours, then began again and continued until the race closed in the gathering darkness.

Earl Cooper raced only a little more than one lap when a broken connecting rod forced him out. Barney Oldfield was eliminated by engine trouble about the middle, and Eddie Pullen, winner of last year's race, and Ralph DePalma were forced to retire long before the end.

Thousands of persons, huddled under umbrellas, lined the course. At the expiration of the long grind veteran drivers who prudently withdrew when their cars began to slip and slide on the glassy asphalt that composed the major portion of the course, expressed amazement that no tragic accident had occurred.

Only a few of the machines were equipped with roughened tires that minimized skidding, but all drove with what appeared to be reckless disregard of their lives.

Fullerton's Gossip

A New York baseball expert, selecting the twenty best ball players in America, picked eighteen from the two New York teams and filled out with Cobb and Johnson, probably to prove that New York experts can recognize talent, even if it is not connected with New York.

Madison, N. J., held a celebration on being informed that a Federal league team was to be placed in that town. Cherubusco, Ind.; Jacktown, Manitoba; Evans Station, Miss., and Sandy Mush, N. C., have not reported how the news was received there.

Jimmy Duggan is going to train the New York Yankees. If they are wise they will not start anything in the clubhouse until they are certain of the terminal facilities.

Happy Felch is a confident rookie. He showed up to join the Chicago White Sox on the training trip, carrying a special bat.

A horse, a horse! My kingdom for a horse!

If you have nags to sell, sleek them up, and drill them into line. For be it known Manager William Andrew Smith, acting in an official capacity for the Atlanta Baseball association, is on the outlook for a horse.

Manager Smith is a man of many parts. He has to be to run a honest-to-goodness ball club. Just now an essential part in his makeup is that he know how to choose a good, serviceable dobbin at no great outlay of coin of the realm, wherefore his plaint for an equine.

So far as can be learned the specifications of said beast of burden are in no wise limited. Nothing is said about color, contour or disposition. That is, nothing is prescribed save that said horse be herbivorous, trained to ride and drive, and with an inclination to proceed forward, when kindly and properly bid to do so.

This beast must be herbivorous, largely because it is expected to feed on the juicy green grass of Ponce de Leon next spring and summer, after Roy Moran, Tim Bowden, Don Flynn and such other partners-in-crime, as may later be acquired, have finished doing their worst toward beating out the native verdure. Said beast must further have a kindly inclination toward drawing burdens, since he is expected to earn the right to crop the grass and other foliage from Ponce de Leon by virtue of the service which he may render to the keeper of the grounds.

Over and above the aforementioned there is just one restriction to be placed on the animal that is to join the Cracker forces for the 1915 campaign. He must not be of an especially costly stripe. Last season Manager Smith fared forth and made a purchase of a strong horse, sound of body and willing of disposition, albeit a bit lean of flesh, which served the purpose admirably, and the outlay was inconsiderable. Furthermore Manager Smith proved his trading proclivities hard in the season by selling this nag at a profit, thereby cutting down a bit of the heavy expense of the season due to the exorbitant raises in salaries due to the raids of the pesky Federal leaguers.

So Manager Smith is in the market for a horse? But traders, jockeys and professionals in the line of horseflesh need not presume to prey on Billy's ignorance in things equine, regardless of whether said equine anatomy be employed in furnishing the coverings for baseballs or in drawing loads of sod and trash about Ponce de Leon. For the Cracker manager has an able second to tip off to the foibles and tricks of the traders.

He is none other than Roy Moran. Roy admits that what he doesn't know about horseflesh is as Greek to the veterinaries. But Bill denies that he had the consideration in mind, when he consented to the deal that brought Roy back here in exchange for George Kircher. But whether or not this charge will stick, Roy is on the job, or in Billy's corner, if you prefer, and he will second the manager in his bout with any local trader that cares to parade his wares before the local pilot, in his quest of a horse. Bids and quotations are open. Step up, and avoid the rush.

Big Field for One-Day Meet

The weekly one day tournement over the Druid Hills Golf club links Saturday brought out another large field, and competition was keen. All entrants played against bogey with club handicaps applying. Nine prizes were awarded.

Seventy four players entered, but not a single one of that large number was able to hang anything on the par count for the course. C. R. Atkinson led the field. He managed to get an even break, halving the eighteen holes with the par score, figuring the handicap. Clark Donaldson won second prize with a count three down to par. W. F. Spalding, C. P. King, A. G. Howell and C. T. Durham finished up in a four-cornered tie for third place, each coming in four down. L. C. Hopkins and Milton Dargan, Jr., finished five down, while H. Hagan was the last man in the prizes with a score six down.

Pell Winner of Racquet Title

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Clarence C. Pell, of the Tuxedo club, won the national amateur racquet championship today, defeating Lawrence Waterbury, who won the title last year, three games to one in the final match of the tournament here.

The victory of the ne wchampion was not unlooked for, as he has been playing in great form this season.

The scores: 15-13; 9-15; 15-1 and 15-7.

The International league intends to remain in the field. It may be advisable to send out a scout occasionally during the coming season to see if they still are playing.

Feds Wait to Give Out Sched.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 27.—The Federal Baseball league adjourned its two days' session late today and will meet in Pittsburg March 13. By that time it was expected that the court obstacle preventing the transfer of the Kansas City franchise to Newark would be removed and the season's playing schedule could be adopted. President Gilmore made positive the statement that Newark would have a Federal league team this year and characterized the legal controversy as "ill advised and unjust." E. E. Oates, the league's attorney, following suggestions received from players and club owners, presented a new contract which will be submitted to the owners by the usual thirty days mail vote. Mr. Oates stated that the contract was an equitable one and he considered it "court proof," binding alike on player and club.

William Brennan, chief of umpires, announced the following umpires for the season: James Johnstone, Newark; Fred Westervelt, Richmond; William Finneran, Erie; Harry Howell, Brooklyn; Lewis Fyfe, Chicago; Barry McCormick, Chicago; W. P. Shannon, Minneapolis. The ninth umpire will be either Hank O'Day or Jack Egan.

President Ward, of Brooklyn, today released Mordecai Brown to the league and he will be added to the pitching staff of either the Buffalo or the Chicago clubs.

Having heard the wails of eight National league managers as to how the 21-player rule has ruined their clubs, we reach the conclusion that the fight managers have no monopoly on the advance alibi.

J. Franklin Baker has quit. The opposing players always said he would.

Auburn Diamond Candidates Are Taking the Field

Coach Larry Brown Gets on Job--Heaviest Task Will Be Development of Hurlers, Must Bring Out Some Gardeners Too

AUBURN, Ala., Feb. 27.—Since the publication of the schedule of activities for the 22d, it has been decided to transfer the soccer game and thus allow more time for baseball.

Larry Brown, it is understood, will probably be up by Sunday and will take charge of the baseball candidates on Monday. It is impossible to get a very good line on the baseball candidates as yet, for nothing more than preliminaries have been gone into. Coach Brown will have a hard task developing a pitching staff and hence he is the very man for the place, for he is generally acknowledged to be one of the headiest young catchers in the Southern league.

THREE FROM LAST YEAR.

Since Davis left there remains only Basore, Savage and Wilson of last year's staff. Of the lot, two good men may develop, but as it now is, Auburn has Savage, a big right hander with good smoke and a fair break to his curves; Basore with all the stuff and change of pace needed, but a few points shy in sufficient nerve; and Wilson, a little fellow with a wide curve but very little speed.

There are several new men in college trying out for the pitching staff, in fact about twelve candidates have shown up, but as they have not been allowed to cut loose there is no way of telling just who is the most promising. Crosby, of the junior class, and Price, freshman from Huntsville, handle themselves well and may give the veterans a run for a regular job. However, as soon as Larry shows up and the real training begins a better line can be gotten.

It is hard to tell anything about the rest of the line up, due to the fact that the infield was completely riddled with the loss of Wynne, Arnold and Moulton. Louisell will remain at first and his hitting should be enough to win a great many games. He showed more improvement than any man on the team last year and should be one of the best first basemen in the collegiate world, south. Second is open to competition, as the other infield positions, though at present Milstead seems to have the best chance for short and Collins, of Marion, seems to have first call for third.

The outfield has not shaped itself and unless Captain Harris' shoulder improves rapidly he will hardly be able to gather in flies and bat them to all corners of the lot as in days of yore. However, Bonner, Steed and Prendergast all remain and are fair hitters, good fielders and possess powerful splendid arms. In fact Prendergast and Steed possess speed to such an extent that it is very probable that one or maybe both may be called to the box in case other pitchers do not show good form in practice.

Behind the bat we have "Lucy" Hairston and in any survey of prospects for any southern team a mention of his name would be sufficient. If there are any better in southern collegiate ball then they will have to field to perfection, peg out about 99 out of every 100 that try to steal, display excellent headwork and hit about .420.

If they do that then they may be better than Hairston, but when the roll is called as the curtain drops on the 1915 season Hairston will probably be ranked as the best catcher in the south.

Star Athletes Meet on Track

READ THIS; HERE'S SOME HOT SKETCH.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 27.—It was announced here today that Roy Moran, who has been negotiating with the Atlanta team of the Southern league for a place this year, had jumped to the Federal league. It is understood Moran will play with St. Louis.

P. S. Moran signed Friday.

Dobbs Seeking Star Southpaw And Good Hitter

Man to Replace Finis Wilson on Hurling Staff, and Outfielder Who Can Sting the Ball All That Pels' Boss Asks to Make His Team Winner

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 27.—Two more players are needed by Johnny Dobbs, boss of the New Orleans Pelicans, to round out the local squad, and make it more formidable for Southern league championship honors. A southpaw twirler and a good heavy hitting outfielder are what the little Pelican mogul is anxious to annex to the string of men that are to try out at the new Birdville barn yard, commencing Thursday, this week.

With six right-handers on his twirling staff, Manager Dobbs wants a man who serves shoots from the portside to offset the monotony. Dobbs is a great believer in "mixing 'em up" and he realizes a hurling department is not complete without a left-hander. Finis Wilson handled this role for the locals last season, but since Finis has cast his lot with the Federals, a man will be needed to fill his place.

Dobbs has about given up trying to get Otto Burns and is now out for a man to take "Ott's" place. Early Monday morning Johnny is expected to send word to his scouts to look him up a gardener who can swat the pill.

Eddie Edmondson is the man the local magnate is counting on to replace Otto, but it is doubtful if Eddie will be able to get out of the American association. The record made by this big fellow in the Texas circuit last year is expected to cause a couple of the double A managers to refuse to waiver on him.

Manager Dobbs may not have to look very far for a southpaw, as he received an application from a portside hurler, Jack Prill, a few days ago. Prill played in the International league last season, and is said to have a pretty fair record. Dobbs is now investigating his record.

In the event Edmondson is not landed Dobbs is contemplating giving Outfielder Meixel a tryout. Meixel was with New Orleans several years, but received an injury to his throwing arm which caused Ing to let out. For the past several seasons he has been in the Virginia league. Last year he batted over .300 and stole 44 bases. He tossed out 25 runners at the plate, which proves his "wing" is again right.

Chappell Says He'll Land Job

White Sox Costly Outfielder Expects to Grab Off Regular Berth for the Coming Season

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Add Larry Chappell to the list of enthusiastic White Sox players, who will be on hand next spring to make Manager Rowland's job as easy as possible. Larry, who is hibernating in Jerseyville, Ill., has come forth with the news that he will fight his finger-tips off for Rowland, and what's more, will be in regular in the field when the season opens.

The former Brewer is one person who was glad when the Sox made a change in managers. Like most of them, he wasn't particular whom they got, so long as they made a change. But the acquisition of Rowland was something even Larry did not dream of. Larry, however, is one of the few Sox who know Rowland well, for he used to play for the new manager in Peoria, when both were unknowns. For this reason Larry believes he will begin training this spring with everything in favor, and he expects to land a job catching flies.

Larry has respect for the raft of outfielders that Rowland will take along if he is counting on decorating the garden scenery, it means that one job will be left open for five or six others, providing some of them are not let out before the season opens.

John Collins will have to be conceded a regular job. John's hitting is a big help to the Sox. Then there is Happy Felch, another sensation from Milwaukee, who will demand attention. Ray Demmitt, Tom Daly and Bobby Roth form a trio of dangerous contenders who would be much more valuable if they could hit. It is the hitting of Chappell that is expected to come in handy in the coming race. If he shows as strongly as he promises there will be a practically new man on the team as far as the Sox fans are concerned. Chappell never could get along with Callahan, being one of those temperamental sort, that had to be treated with care.

Andy Slight, whose only claim to fame was the fact that he made the trip around the world last year with the touring White Sox and Giants, will play ball for Milwaukee this summer. He is one of the players who have been let out in return for Happy Felch. Slight did not play one full game during the 1914 season, being ill part of the time. He is said to be a good hitter, and, inasmuch as he is young, will have a good chance to return to the majors.

Huge Shipment Made by Buick

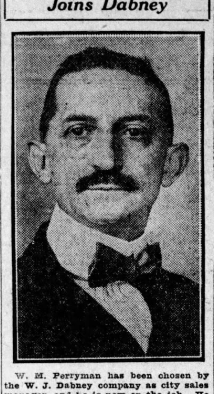

The largest trainload of automobiles ever hauled over two ribbons of steel left the Buick factory at Flint, Mich., on February 20. This train consisted of 100 cars, and its cargo was valued at more than half a million dollars, and the freight alone on the shipment amounts to nearly thirty-six thousand dollars.

This gigantic shipment was consigned to the Howard Automobile company, of San Francisco, and was made by the Panama Exposition Special over the Rock Island lines. It is claimed that the entire shipment has already been sold to users, and that delivery will be made promptly on receipt of the cars on the coast.

Buffeds Due in Athens Shortly

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 25.—In about ten days the Buffalo Federal league baseball team, headed by Manager Larry Schlafly, will arrive in this city to begin their spring training. Battery men will arrive here about March 3 and the rest of the team three or four laters later. Sanford field is rapidly being put in shape for the invading hosts. An arrangement has been made, whereby the professionals will have the field all of the morning and until 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon, turning it over at that time to Coach Joe Bean and his Red and Black candidates.

Joins Dabney

W. M. Perryman has been chosen by the W. J. Dabney company as city sales manager, and he is now on the job. He is one of the best known automobile salesmen in the city of Atlanta, and he will doubtlessly make the Paige and the Maxwell cars, the two automobiles handled by the W. J. Dabney company, move faster than they have ever moved before.

Higgins Boosts Pelicans' Stock

"Noisy Bob" Considers Dobbs Club Much Stronger Than It Was Last Season

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 25.—Keep your optics glued on this year's New Orleans Pelicans, if you want to get an early glimpse of the pennant winners in the 1915 free-for-all—this is the admonition of "Peppery" Robert Higgins, John Dobbs' receiver-in-chief.

"The Birds look 100 per cent better than last year to me," said Higgins in discussing the coming 1915 race. "The addition of Coyle and Flick has given our club just what it needed—a hard hitting infield.

"I consider Coyle the most dangerous pinch hitter in the circuit, and, in addition, he is one smart ball player. Flick will fit in grand style alongside Mickey. I have an idea that Dobbs will play Hendryx at third, while Riley will replace Barbare. That will be some infield.

"I do not know Dobbs' plans, of course, but we already have enough material assured in my opinion to put us jam-up in the running. Our battery department seems formidable."

Higgins is of the opinion that Walter Barbare will develop into a veritable sensation with the Cleveland Naps. "Barbare is the smartest young ball player I have ever seen," said Higgins, "and I am confident that he has a brilliant major league career in front of him. In addition to being a grand infielder and a caring base runner, he is a dangerous sticker. A lad that can hit .300 in the Southern should hit hard as an infielder in the majors."

Higgins left for New Orleans Monday in company with Sylvester, who stopped over in Chattanooga for a day with him. He is in the pink of condition and states that he is four pounds lighter than when the season closed last year. He is anxious for the opening song and expects a great season. He has been spending the winter at his home here raising chickens.

Nine Veterans Back at Sewanee

Tigers Start Baseball Practice This Week--Prospects for Winning Team Are Good

SEWANEE, Tenn., Feb. 25.—Baseball practice began at Sewanee this week, with about forty candidates reporting for the initial workout. For the first two weeks training will consist mainly of indoor setting up exercises and cross-country jaunts, as Coach Gardner wants to have his squad in good physical condition when the first real outdoor work begins. This will necessarily be postponed for several days to give the higher climate time to settle enough not to injure soft muscles and pitching arms.

Of last year's squad nine men are back in school, and with the new material now on hand in the freshmen class, prospects for a winning team are far better than those of last year.

Captain "Pat" Dinkins has played three years on the Sewanee team, besides having had experience in several years' playing among fast city teams in his home town, Atlanta, Ga. Dinkins has few peers in college circles in the art of receiving the fast ones behind the plate, and his throwing arm never fails to receive favorable comment, although small in stature, he gets them to base with the speed of a bullet.

Leftwich, the football all-American, comes with a good rep from Aberdeen, Miss., where he played on a crack prep school team, and promises to make Dinkins show his very best to retain the catching job. Walker, Hammond and Tolley, last year's pitchers, are again out for their old jobs, and with their past experience, will make valuable men, together with Crudgington a new man from Knoxville, who is reported to have wonderful speed and control. These four are already in very good trim and by the middle of March under Gardner's direction will be able to show something.

For the outfield, Bowden and Bruce will again be seen in their old places, and McGoodwin, who last year played first base, will be switched to the other vacant garden, and a complete infield will be made up from among the new men.

Among these, Wortham, Ellerbe and Forsythe are especially recommended as possessing the necessary stuff for college baseball on the infield, and with Gantt, last year's second baseman, should work up a pretty good defensive machine.

As the season does not open until the latter part of March, all of the candidates are receiving attention, and some among the freshman class may show the real article and leap into prominence. Among these, Sellers, from the Memphis High school, is said to be a good catcher, and Roulbac, also a football man, seems to know the vicinity around the first station very well.

Vols Expect to Fight for Miller

Nashville Club Sore on Browns Over Late Deal to Send Player to Louisville Club

NASHVILLE, Feb. 27.—The Vol moguls declared war on the St. Louis Browns Friday. They set in motion all their 48-centimeter guns and issued sealed orders to the flotilla of submarines. The Browns have declared a blockade around Eddie Miller, and the Vols are sworn to capture Eddie, no matter what it costs.

The first big gun fired by President Shropshire was to send to Secretary Farrell all the correspondence with the Browns over Eddie Miller. Get the proper stuff, Shroppy; go after 'em, tooth and toenail. Of course, the Vols may lose Eddie—and from this angle the chances against them seem about 99.9 per cent—but you gotta give 'em credit for putting up a fight.

Nothing can be done towards getting Eddie until Secretary Farrell has reviewed the case thoroughly, and it may be some time before he hands down a decision. Let's hope it doesn't take him as long to decide as it is taking Judge Landis to make up his mind on this rumptus between the Feds and O. B.

President Shropshire stated he had great hopes of landing Miller.

"I can't see how they can sell him to two clubs," stated Mr. Shropshire. "There is no baseball law in the world that will warrant any such action as that.

"Rickey, I take it, has absolute authority to dispose of any players according to his own notions. He is vice president and manager of the Browns, and we have telegram and letter from him confirming the sale to us.

"How Hedges could go over his head four days later and dispose of Miller to Louisville is a mystery that is beyond my comprehension.

"I do not believe that Rickey would have sold the player to us without first having asked waiver on him through the Class AA leagues, for he is too smart a man in baseball law to overlook an important feature like that.

"We will fight through every possible avenue to bring Miller to Nashville, because he would prove to us a most valuable man. He has speed on the bases, can hit the ball, and knows how to field. We want to get a winning club this season, and will do everything in our power to enforce our claim on Miller."

That sounds like fight talk. Doesn't it?

Braves Start for Macon Camp

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—The southern trip of the world champion Boston Nationals for preliminary training began tonight when a small party left for Macon, Ga. Secretary Herman Nickerson was accompanied by one player, Pitcher George Tyler, and the team's scout, Fred Mitchell. Several players were expected to join the party in New York.

Fred Tyler, a catcher, was notified at the last moment that his services had been sold to the Rochester club of the International league.

"Pans" galore besteged Rowland," writes an enraptured Chicago reporter. We've seen all kinds, but the galore species is new.

NEW HENDERSON

The Henderson Motorcycle company has opened a southern factory branch at 90 Edgewood avenue, with a full line of machines, parts and a very up-to-date and competent service department. This branch will handle the business for the southern states. E. W. Cauthern has been appointed branch manager and will be glad to have all of his old rider friends drop around and see the new two-speed machine.

The Henderson is a four-cylinder machine, built on different lines and principles from any other machine on the market.

Charleston Gets Local Catcher

Carl Eubanks, a local ball tosser, who has had considerable experience in minor leagues of this section has signed to play with the Charleston team in the South Atlantic season during the coming season. Eubanks formerly played in the Sally league, having been a member of the Macon club for one year. Since that time he has been with two or three other clubs, and played last season with the Cordele club. Steve Reagan, who managed Cordele will have charge of the Charleston outfit during the coming season, and is carrying Eubanks, Fillingim and Bankston along with him. Eubanks is a catcher, and his records in the Georgia State league last season indicate that he is ready for a promotion. He hit over .300 and also stood well up among the receivers of the league in fielding.

Farrell Announces Players' Releases

AUBURN, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Secretary Farrell of the National association of professional baseball leagues announced tonight that these players had been released by purchase:

By Winston-Salem, N. C., Luther Stuart to Galveston, Texas; by New Haven, Conn., Henry Chancey to Macon, Ga.; by Richmond, Va., Ted Sloan to Forth Worth, Tex.; Charles Strain, Cecil Gray, L. T. Ramey, J. T. O'Brien, to Richmond (International); Louis Woerth to Dayton, O.; by Pittsburg, Clarence Berger to Richmond, Va.

Christy Mathewson fears that three leagues will spoil major league baseball. If they can spoil the brand played by the National last year, we'll undertake to spoil Jess Willard as a boxer.

Cardinals Want Georgia Tosser

St. Louis Club Enters Negotiations for Fred Derrick, Now With the Portland Club

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 27.—Negotiations have been opened between President Hedges, of the Browns, and the Portland (Pacific Coast league) team for the transfer of First Baseman Fred Derrick, of the Beavers, to Branch Rickey's club. Hedges and Rickey started working toward procuring Derrick on the recommendation of Pitcher Bill James, of the Browns, who formerly was a teammate of the big first baseman in Portland.

James and Derrick were together in 1913 when James' good work with Portland resulted in his graduation to the Browns. James made the western tour and jaunt to Honolulu with the All-Americans and All-Nationals last fall, and Portland was included in the stops made by the teams.

On that occasion James again saw Derrick play and was so impressed with his work that he immediately wrote Manager Rickey to procure the first baseman. The deal is now pending, and it is said the Browns have a good chance of landing the Oregonian.

Derrick played in 144 games and batted .298. He also swiped 25 bases, a pilfering mark that is good in any kind of a league. Of the 14 first basemen in the league, Derrick ranked fifth, his mark being .988.

If Derrick should land with the Browns, the Portland club will have the unusual distinction of graduating the four members of its infield to the big show in one season. The three other specialists have already "gone up."

Rodgers, second baseman, who hit .292, will get a trial with the Giants. Kores, the third baseman, with a swat record of .296, will go to Cleveland, while Bancroft, the shortstop, the weakest hitting member of the infield quartet—.277—goes to the Phils.

Bancroft is the shortstop whom Manager Huggins, of the Cardinals, tried to snare. He was highly recommended by the original leader, but Billy and the Phils' agent, succeeded in closing a deal for the shortfielder a few hours before Hug got a chance to bid for the player.

Yankees Snub Fed. Flinger

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 24.—Jim Bluejacket, the Indian pitcher who jumped the New York Giants for the Brookfeds after being plucked out of the Three-Eye league in the middle of the 1914 campaign by Dick Kinsella, and Ad Brennan, the Phillies' former star southpaw, now allied with Joe Tinker's Chifeds, are in training in Hot Springs.

Brennan is stopping at the same hotel as Nap Rucker, the Brooklyn National's crack left-hander, and Charley Smith, who has just been released by Miller Bresnahan. The guests have noticed that whichever path Brennan takes when the mountains are reached by the trio Bucker and Smith go in a different direction. Bluejacket, stopping at a hotel outside of the Spa's loop, has not made himself known to the twenty or twenty-five organized baseball players here, though he came to town over a week ago from his home in Adair, Okla. Ray Powell, outfielder with the Providence club, who was with Detroit for a while in 1912, came over with Bluejacket. Thursday. Powell, practicing with the squad of New York at Majestic park, asked Boss Joe Kelley if it would be all right to have the Indian join them. As the time Kelley said is not the most objective, but thus far Bluejacket has not put in an appearance. Kelley stated: "I have since thought the matter over and I won't permit Bluejacket to work out with us."

Model 80
F. O. B. Toledo

Every Advanced Feature

But No Advance In Price

THE new Overland has one of the most advanced and most admired body designs of the season. The full sweeping stream lines are clean cut, trim, uninterrupted and perfectly proportioned. A slightly sloped cowl, a perfectly rounded radiator, and gracefully crowned fenders add both charming grace and excellent taste to this smart model.

The new Overland has a larger tonneau. You know how cramped and uncomfortable three adults usually are in the average car. There is plenty of room in the 1915 Overland—ample for three large people and enough length for the tallest.

The new Overland has the most advanced and most practical type of rear springs. They are of a new design, underslung, and much longer than heretofore. Being unusually flexible, their action absorbs all road shocks and rut jolts, and perfectly smooth riding is the comfortable consequence.

The new Overland has the most advanced electric lighting and electric starting system. All electric switches are conveniently located on steering column—directly in front of the driver. No stretching forward or bending down. Every electrical control right at your hand.

The new Overland has the most advanced ignition system. A high tension magneto is used which is independent of the starting and lighting unit. On most popular priced cars the cheaper battery system is furnished. As the magneto long ago demonstrated its superiority over the battery ignition, even though it costs considerably more, the Overland is equipped with magneto.

The new Overland has larger wheels and tires. 34 inch x 4 inch all around, with demountable rims, mean minimum tire expense, minimum tire trouble, and maximum riding comfort.

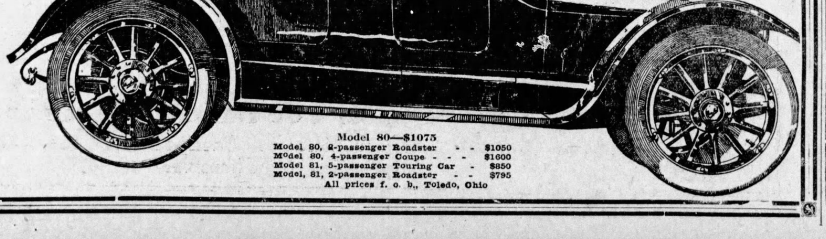

Yet, in spite of these and numerous other advanced and costly features the price has not been advanced.

Orders are now being taken for immediate delivery.

Here are some of the big features

Changes Galore Mark Off-Season In Big Leagues

Four Changes Are Made in Managerial Jobs, and More Than Fifty Players Shift Berths--Some Go Back to Minors, Others to the Federal League

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—More than fifty players and managers who were with major league clubs at the close of last season have been released or traded, jumped to the Federals or announced their retirement. The one man who has announced that he doesn't want a good job this year is Frank Baker. He is in a class by himself.

On the other hand, Harry Lord, third baseman of the Chicago White Sox, who retired last season, is showing symptoms of wanting to come back to the agonies of being a big leaguer.

Of the managers, Hank O'Day, of the Chicago Cubs, has been succeeded by Roger Bresnahan; Pat Moran has taken Charles Dooln's place; Bill Donovan has taken the position at the head of the New York Federals, which was vacated by Frank Chance, and Jimmy Rowland, an unknown, has taken charge of the Chicago Americans in place of Jimmy Callahan, who lost out shortly before "Kid" Gleason was also notified that he would not be needed this year.

Some of those who have been traded are Sherwood Magee, Lobert and Dooin, of the Phillies; Eddie Collins, of the Athletics; Buck Weaver, Nealloff, of Hamilton Stock, Al Demaree and Adams, of the New York Giants; Dugey, of the Boston Braves; Napoleon Lajoie, of Cleveland; Highand Pipp, of Detroit; Olson, of Cleveland; Bodie, of the Chicago Americans.

WENT OVER TO FEDERALS.

Walter Johnson, of the Washington team, jumped to the Federals and back again, as also did Ivy Wingo, of the St. Louis Nationals. Others who signed with the Federals are Plank and Bender, of the Athletics; Lee Magee, of the St. Louis Nationals; Konetchy, of Pittsburg; Mann and Deal, of the Boston Braves, and Austin, of the St. Louis Americans.

Pitcher Ed Reulbach received his unconditional release from Brooklyn before signing with the Federals. "Germany" Shaefer, the clown of the diamond, was unconditionally released by Washington and may sign with the New York Highlanders.

Other players who were unconditionally released were Billy Sullivan, the veteran catcher of the Chicago White Sox; Jack Coombs, Tommy Leach, Bill Sweeney, Eddie Stack and Charlie Smith, of the Chicago Nationals; Roy Miller, Josh Devore, George Wiltse and Mike Donlin, of the Giants, and Bobby Wallace, of the St. Louis Americans.

GO BACK TO MINORS.

Mike Mitchell was sent to the Richmond International league team. Claude Derrick was released to Louisville, as was also Bert Daniels. Other players who were sent to other clubs were Joe Kelley and Hamb Hyatt, of Pittsburg; Earl Yingling, of Cincinnati; Clarence Wares and Eddie Miller, of the St. Louis Americans.

Caldwell, who deserted the New York Highlanders last season, but who did not do any pitching for the Federals, returned to Donovan's team.

This does not complete the list of the changes made in the major league clubs since the close of last season, but it is enough to give the fans who have not been keeping their eyes glued to the sporting pages some idea of the many shifts made by the players in the last four months.

DARING DRIVERS PUT INDIAN TO TRYING TEST

The supreme test of motorcycle power, endurance and adaptability was illustrated last Saturday when an Indian motorcycle, with an Indian Maid side car attached, was driven to the top of Stone Mountain by Atlanta's two most experienced riders, Harry Glenn and Ed Wilcox. This mountain has been the scene of many remarkable tests of automobiles and motorcycles. Last spring Ed Wilcox carried a tandem passenger to the top on a 1913 two-speed Indian, but even this performance, which seemed at that time the final test of this class of vehicle, pales into insignificance beside the new record.

Both the riders and the machine deserve full credit for accomplishing this extraordinary feat. It took perfect control and more than usual nerve to pilot a three-wheel machine up the slippery grade, and none but the most experienced rider could have accomplished the feat. At the same time, the performance of the big Indian motor in carrying the two passengers and the side car, with its unusual strain, up a grade as steep as that of Stone Mountain, was nothing short of marvelous.

But what is still more remarkable from many standpoints is the fact that not only did they ride up the hill, but they also rode down again; for the difficulties encountered in making the descent were quite as formidable as in making the climb. In several instances the problems were even more unusual. For while the strain on the motor was relieved, the test of the brakes was even greater. That the two men were brought safely to the bottom without mishap is a great victory for the new automobile type brake which is now being employed on the Indian machine.

The machine used for the demonstration was Harry Glenn's 1914 two-speed Indian, familiar to all Atlantians who circulate around Five Points. The motor is a regular stock motor, and has been used for 3,000 miles. The only difficulty it encountered in going up the mountain was to keep the front wheel going up instead of slipping down. The most dangerous portions of the path had to be taken at very slow speed in order to make any headway over the shelving rocks; but the last half of the climb was over smooth stone, and this was taken without a stop over the steepest portions at much faster speed.

Straight-Side Beats Clincher

Goodyear Produces Figures to Show That Former Is More Popular Type Tire

That the clincher type of tire has ceased to be the standard and that the straight-side tire has overshadowed its predecessors are shown by some interesting comparative figures recently given out by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company. Goodyear naturally is interested in this situation, as Goodyear pioneered national tire advertising in newspapers and other publications, and Goodyear exploitation of the "No-Rim-Cut" tire has helped mightily to bring about the present situation.

"Two years ago, or in 1913," says the Goodyear statement, "about 50 per cent of new automobiles manufactured had Q. D. Clincher tires and rims. Of the remaining 50 per cent, part had universal rims for either type, and the rest rims for straight-side tires only. This statement, of course, excludes small cars equipped with regular clincher or 'non-detachable' tires.

"In 1914, cars equipped with Q. D. Clincher tires and rims dropped to 35 per cent and the Straight-Side jumped to 65 per cent. This season the change is still more pronounced. Only 17 per cent of the new cars carry Q. D. Clinchers and 83 per cent use Straight-Side tires. Indeed the vast majority of the latter class have rims adapted to straight-side tires only.

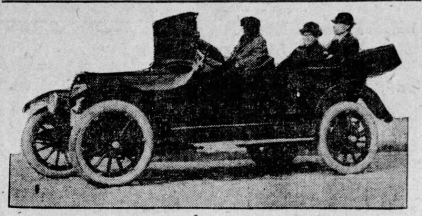

"When Goodyear pioneered the 'No-Rim-Cut' tire in 1906 and started to advertise it nationally shortly afterward, the advocates of the Q. D. Clincher did not take us seriously. They declared the clincher-type tire was the logical, ultimate type.' But times have changed.

"Recently trade journals have been advocating standardization to the point of abolishing one or the other type. We do not believe this will be done. The 'soft bead' or 'regular' clincher tire has become the standard in the smaller sizes and will probably so continue. But there has been a remarkable change in the standard of type in larger tire sizes and Goodyear, looking back upon its pioneer work in 1906 and its steady work of development since, believes the present situation interesting to the motoring public and trade."

Plata Coming Today

John J. Plata, zone supervisor of this territory for the Maxwell Motor company is expected in Atlanta today. Mr. Plata is on a regular tour of the southern states. The local branch for this company announces that the past week has been one of the very best of the season for the company.

HIS FIFTH OVERLAND

The above photograph is that of H. M. Burns, salesman for the Overland Southern Automobile company, and Mr. Frank Holt, of Montezuma, Ga., in the new model "eighty" Overland touring car which Mr. Holt has just purchased.

Mr. Holt is one of the most prosperous and best known farmers in Georgia and his selection of an Overland affords considerable credit to the Overland company. This is, however, the fifth Overland which Mr. Holt has owned. He purchased his first Overland in 1910 and drove the car 40,000 miles, finally disposing of it to a second party, who has since driven the car 30,000 miles and still has it in daily use.

Mr. Holt has owned a number of higher priced cars, but the service which he has received from the Overland has justified him in purchasing one of the new models.

LaFitte Signs to Coach Marist

Jim LaFitte, local exponent of catch and swat, has signed up to coach the Marist cadets in baseball during the approaching season. LaFitte expects to handle the LaGrange team in the Georgia-Alabama league again this season, but will put in the early weeks of the spring season with the local collegians. LaFitte has had wide experience in baseball matters, and should make an excellent instructor for the team. Practice work will doubtless be started within the next few days. Prospects are said to be very good for a winning team.

Harley Manager Here for Visit

T. A. Miller of Harley-Davidson Company Make Visit Here on Tour of the South

T. A. Miller, assistant sales manager of the Harley-Davidson Motor company, of Milwaukee, has been in the city for several days, visiting the southern branch of the Harley-Davidson Motor company. This is Mr. Miller's first trip south and from Atlanta will make a general tour over the southern states, covering the important points. Mr. Miller is greatly enthused over future prospects from the information which he has gathered already, and is expecting great business from the sales of Harley-Davidson motorcycles through the seven southern states from this branch.

Mr. Miller is the assistant to Arthur Davidson, and has taken the branch supervision in charge, as Mr. Davidson is taking hold of the foreign business. In fact, he has just returned from London, where he established a foreign branch to take care of the fast growing export business of the Harley-Davidson. Mr. Miller, in speaking of Mr. Davidson's trip to London, states that the war made a great impression upon Mr. Davidson, to such an extent that he has come home with the one idea, that if there is anybody in the United States who thinks or feels that this country ought to have a war, he would like to hold a ten minutes' conversation with him and tell him where he is wrong.

However, the company is expecting just as soon as peace has been declared that the foreign business will jump to large proportions.

Mr. Miller will return through Atlanta, after his visit to Florida, on his way back to Milwaukee. While here he has been the guest of Gus Castle, manager of the southern branch of the Harley-Davidson Motor company.

KILBANE DOES NOT CHOOSE WILLIAMS AT 122 RINGSIDE

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Johnny Kilbane, champion featherweight of this planet, absolutely refuses to be inveigled into a match with Johnny "Kid" Williams who dominates the bantamweight division of this universe. At least, the Kilbane Johnny will have nothing to do with the Williams Johnny until the latter Johnny makes a number of concessions—in the matter of weight, size of purse and place where the contest should be conducted.

For a while the gullible enthusiasts of Philadelphia were led to believe that the two champions would at last condescend to mix matters for their edification. Announcement was made that the forfeits had been posted, the date decided upon and its poundage settled, Wednesday evening, February 24, was thus designated as the all-important day.

Now it is all off. The reason advanced for the indefinite postponement of the battle is that Kilbane refused to agree to 122 pounds at ringside, the weight Williams demanded. It is said that Kilbane was ready to make the featherweight limit at 8 o'clock on the evening of the battle, but Williams would hear nothing of it.

Williams, however, has another plantation. The bantam boss is firm in his conviction that Kilbane fears him, and for that reason alone does not anticipate with delight a meeting with him.

"I am quite certain that Kilbane does not care for any part of my game. I have reason enough to believe so after the manner in which he treated the negotiations at the weight, saying that he was perfectly satisfied with the $5,250 offered for his end. He said, however, that he would waive the weight question—that is, would agree to weigh in at 122 pounds ringside if the ants were raised to $5,000. Here his bluff was called, for the club, promoter, at the instigation of my manager, consented to give Kilbane that sum if he would accept the match at the featherweight limit at ringside.

"That was the last we heard of Kilbane. Instead of grabbing the $5,000 for a six-round bout he is going about the country fighting second raters at $1,000 or less, per man.

It is not for us to say whether Kilbane can make 122 pounds at ringside. But it does seem queer that he should refuse such a big sum for so short a bout if he can make the weight, the only hinderance to the consummation of the match.

"If I thought Kilbane could make the featherweight limit, the division in which he is champion, I would not hesitate a moment in boldly announcing that he fears to meet me in the ring. I can see no other reason why he should spurn $5,000 for 18 minutes of boxing."

And here we have another notable personage picking on Mr. Kilbane. We have reference to Abraham Attell, who a few days ago back flaunted the featherweight championship; the same Abe Attell this Kilbane person won his title from.

The name of Attell at first appears inappropriate in a boxing discussion these modern days, but Abie will have his say, and list to it:

"I have been before the public of late as much as in former years, but I have not been idling away my time. I am still in active training; training for one more bout with the man who deprived me of the championship—Johnny Kilbane.

"You cannot convince me that I am not Kilbane's master. I beat him once before, in Kansas City. That was before we met for the championship. I think I am entitled to get another chance at my old title.

"With that goal in view, I am still going through the training grind. This ought to prove that I am sincere in my desire to engage in another bout. I do not care to take on anybody else; Kilbane is the man I want."

TRACK FOR YOUTH, TENNIS FOR THIRTIES, THEN GOLF

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 27.—"Young man, live cleanly, get plenty of sleep and exercise in moderation"—this is Trainer Jack Moakley, of Cornell's, prime rule for those who aspire to be healthy athletes. The man who developed John Paul Jones, Tell Berna and Alma Richards would recommend, after a man gets in fair physical condition, track athletics for the youth, tennis for the man in the thirties and golf for the man over forty. Long distance walking is good for all.

"The youth who intends to take up sports should first be examined by a doctor or some athletic authority. If he has a defective heart, lungs or shoulders, some special exercise should be first ordered to strengthen the weak parts," says Moakley.

"Many of our boys nowadays make the big mistake of rushing into sports without first learning their weakness. And this fault is carried still further by an overdose of athletics. Often do we hear of a boy working for several hours a day in a gym at the beginning and then becoming so stiff and sore from his overindulgence that he gives up athletics in disgust.

"Every one should take things easy at the start. Exercise in moderation and then gradually increase the amount. But be sure not to exercise as if it were medicine which had to be taken. Exercise as if you enjoyed it.

"For the youth I know no better form of exercise than track sports. It is the track performer who first catches the trainer's eye. In track sports there is a co-operation of muscles that no other game produces. At Cornell we make a special effort to develop a runner's arms. They usually receive the least development from sprinters and long distance runners."

Skipping from the subject of boys' games, Moakley had a word of advice for men around thirty years who want to participate in some sport.

"Their game should be tennis," he said. "It is a fine means of exercise. It is also strenuous and they shouldn't overdo it. Anyone who has been confined indoors and wants to play tennis at this stage of life would do well to first do considerable walking. I know no better means of getting in condition than the easy method of long distance walking. Walk in loose fitting clothes and comfortable shoes. This exercise will strengthen the lungs and improve the wind. Good wind is necessary in tennis and all other games."

GOLF FOR MIDDLE AGE.

And the men of middle age, who sometimes think they are too old to do anything in sports, came in for Moakley's consideration.

"They should play golf," was his advice. "It is not nearly as strenuous as tennis, but gives a wonderful amount of healthy exercise. I have been playing the game myself for nearly a year, and am still in what you might call the duffer class, but I gain a lot of exercise and recreation out of it."

DRY GOODS JOBBERS HAD ACTIVE HOUSE TRADE LAST WEEK

Many Visiting Merchants Were Here Buying Goods for Spring and Summer Season, Talk More Optimistic

The last week in February found a large number of visiting merchants in Atlanta. They were here buying spring and summer goods and as the result the wholesalers, particularly the dry goods wholesalers, had a splendid week of house trade. They report that the visiting merchants are all talking optimistically and looking forward to an active summer trade and an even more active fall season.

"We have had quite a nice house trade during the past week," said J. R. Little of Dougherty-Little-Redwine company. "A number of merchants have visited us and while their purchases have not been large, still they show that the merchants are beginning to look forward to the business of the summer and are filled with renewed hope and prospects. Trade during the past week has certainly been better than heretofore. Everybody is talking and feeling more optimistic."

J. O. Chambers of Brown, Perryman & Greene Co., reports fine house trade for his company during the past week. "In fact both myself and the house had one of the best week's house trade we have had since the August convention," said Mr. Chambers.

"We have had a nice house trade during the past week," said J. V. Mc. Whorter of Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company. "And not only was our house trade good but most of the road men are sending in orders right along. None of the orders it should be understood are for a very large amount, but they are representative. It shows that all the merchants are wanting goods and that they are buying on the right plan, as they need them.

Arthur Whitmeyer of Ragan-Malone company last week had the biggest house trade he has had since he has been with that firm. "It seemed like the good old convention weeks with me during the past seven days," said Mr. Whitmeyer. "A large number of my customers were in from South Carolina. All the South Carolinians declare that business in their section is showing improvement."

"We certainly have had a fine business during the past week," said C. K. Rambo, of John Silvey & Co. "We have read about the return of prosperity and we have heard of the times that it was on the way, but last week was the first time we have found the return of prosperity recorded on our books. The return was signalized by an increase in sales both in the road men and in the house trade, and likewise in collections. The billing department several days this week has been working up to the normal standard of days before the war depression."

ALL STAR PLANT IS RUNNING FULL TIME

Company Sees Steady Improvement in Trade--Commends Firing Line Ads

"We are finding business very good indeed," said W. O. Steele, of the All-Star Manufacturing company, makers of neckwear and suspenders and wholesalers of belts, garters and raincoats. "Our plant is running full time. We have had quite a number of letters from Georgia and the neighboring states asking for our new neckwear catalogue from the advertisement which we ran in last Sunday's Firing Line. Our catalogue is going out to the trade now steadily. We expect to mail out before we are through more than 5,000 copies."

ED. F. MALONE HAD FINE SOUTH GA. TRIP

E. F. Malone, of the Capital City Tobacco company, returned the first part of last week from south Georgia, where he spent two weeks visiting the trade with C. C. Phillips, who covers that territory for the Capital City company. "Business has improved and conditions are getting much better," said Mr. Malone. "Although the volume of business promises to be smaller than usual, nevertheless it will be entirely satisfactory. People are doing business now upon a conservative basis. They are taking no chances and they are determined to see their way out before they go into the purchase of any articles. As a matter of fact, the recent business depression will serve to put the business of the south upon a safer basis than it has ever been before. It will inaugurate an era of close attention to all features of merchandising which will result not only in profit and satisfaction to the wholesalers but to the retailers and their customers as well."

Georgia Pimientos' Furnish Basis for Thriving Industry

Pimientos Grown and Packed At Pomona Hold Own With Imported Goods

Hardly a week passes but what there is some new evidence of active enterprise on the part of Georgia farmers and manufacturers. Among the latest evidences of this is the business of packing pimientos, which is conducted by Wayman & Riegel at Pomona, Ga. Not only do they pack pimientos, which are Spanish red sweet peppers, but they grow these peppers on their farm at Pomona. They pack pimientos and also make a delightful pimiento catsup and relish. It can be thus seen that the enterprise is a Georgia one through and through. It is a matter of gratification that this is a Georgia enterprise and a matter of further congratulation that these pimientos show up to be fully equal to the imported Spanish product, and the manufacturers are able to give a larger size can for the same money.

The H. L. Singer company are sole distributors of these Georgia pimientos in the market here and they declare that this product is gaining wide popularity wherever it is shown and used.

PATTERSON HEARS OF NEW WAY TO SPELL CIGAR

Tells Incident of Recent Trip to Ybor City Near Tampa

R. H. Patterson, exclusive representative in the United States for C. H. S. cigars, tells an interesting story of a recent visit to Tampa, Fla., where this well known brand of cigars is made. In company with V. Val M. Antuno, manufacturer of C. H. S. cigars, he made a visit to points of interest in Ybor City, where most of the cigar makers live, and where Spanish is taught in the public schools and is very generally spoken. While they were in Ybor City a resident told them of a little girl in school who when called upon by her teacher to spell "cigar," replied, "C-H-S." "This is indeed a new way of spelling cigars but it is Mr. Patterson's opinion that the little girl was not so very far wrong, after all.

RICE & HUTCHINS' MEN HERE FOR ANNUAL DINNER

All the salesmen of the Rice & Hutchins Atlanta company were at headquarters last week for the purpose of getting ready for the road with their fall samples.

"All the salesmen are enthusiastic over their new samples and the prospects for the fall business," said E. G. Thomas, president of the company. "They are especially pleased with what is known as the 'millinery styles.' These styles comprise generally the cloth top shoes that have proved so popular."

While the salesmen were here they were tendered an annual dinner by the company at the Piedmont hotel on Thursday night, which proved a most delightful affair indeed. Those present at the dinner were Mr. Thomas and the following members of the road force: J. L. Williams, E. P. Stone, L. D. Slappey, P. J. Lee, Carl Warren, A. J. Garner and F. E. Thomas. The following were present from the house force: J. O. Steele, A. L. Kenyon, T. O. Callaway, R. F. Kenyon, O. L. Gresham, A. W. Norrell, Ray Donaldson and Guy Warren.

F. D. ITTNER TO JOIN FORCE OF BROWER CO.

Frand D. Ittner will be the latest addition to the sales force of the Brower Candy company. Mr. Ittner will assume his new duties on March 1. He will assist the secretary, W. M. Walker, in the office and will also work the uptown trade. He is an efficient and competent salesman and office man and his friends predict for him a big success in his new connection.

CLERKS AND CUTTERS TO MEET THURSDAY NIGHT

The Retail Grocery Clerks and Meat Cutters' union, which was reorganized on February 15, held a very interesting meeting on last Thursday. They will meet again on the coming Thursday at the Labor temple at 112 Trinity avenue at 8 o'clock. All the members are urged to be present, as important business will be transacted.

Plan to Come

March 8th to 12th.

In those five days we will close out for what they will bring:

500 CASES FLOOR GOODS.

These comprise:

Lots of one to five cases;
Lines we have discontinued;
Some factory seconds;
Sample lots not used.

In all it's the best and biggest lot of seasonable footwear we have ever offered in an undervalue sale.

More about it next week.

GA. PRODUCTS CO. OFFERS MARKET FOR FOOD CROPS

Organized to Handle Exclusively Ga. Farm Products at Wholesale

The Georgia Products company is the name of the new Atlanta organization formed for the purpose of dealing in Georgia agricultural products. The new company is headed by R. O. Cochran, who, together with his associates, has applied for a charter which will be received this week. The company will do a wholesale business in peas, oats, wheat, potatoes, grains of all kinds, and, in fact, all farm food products except fruits and perishable things of like character, and cotton. The purpose of the new company is to afford a ready market for all of the farm products raised in this state. It has been the complaint of farmers who have broken away from the one-crop system and gone in for diversified farming that they have had difficulty in finding a market for the products they have raised. The new company is organized to supply this need. All the wholesale business will be handled on a commission basis of 10 per cent.

The company has opened a retail department at 68 South Forsyth street, which is in charge of T. W. Bullard. Already it has assembled a wide variety of Georgia products. For instance, the flour comes from Cobb county, the hams and shoulders from Hall county, the canned peaches from Troup county and Acworth, ribbon cane from Smithville, and sorghum from A. J. Thomason, of Tifton, which is one of the tastiest and most attractive products the company has on display. There is also to be found water-ground meal from Campbell and Meriwether counties. The company deals only in articles which are the product of Georgia soil.

"We think that undoubtedly our plan of dealing in Georgia products will meet with big success," said Mr. Cochran. "We are receiving shipments at wholesale and are confident that the business can be increased both to the benefit of the company and the farmers of the state."

POST B, T. P. A. CONSIDERS ENTERTAINMENT PLANS

On Saturday night Post B, T. P. A., elected officers for the ensuing year. The election took place too late for the names of the new officers to be given in today's Firing Line, but they will be published next Sunday together with an extended account of the post meeting.

At this meeting also there was a full discussion of the plans of entertainment for the state convention which meets here April 8, 9, 10. There were reports from a number of the committees, and the details were set well under way. A more detailed account of the convention will be published in next Sunday's issue.

Ship Several Thousand Pairs of Shoes to British Metropolis to Be Distributed Among Retailers There

As an illustration of the wide character of the Rice & Hutchins' business, the Rice & Hutchins Atlanta company on last Thursday shipped ninety-two cases of shoes direct to London, England. The order amounted to several thousand pairs of shoes, which will be distributed to the London retail trade. This order came to the Atlanta company from the home office at Boston. It was shipped to Boston and will go to England by the Hamburg-American line. This is not only an indication of the international demand of the Rice & Hutchins products, but it also shows that Atlanta is capable of handling large business with foreign countries.

J. C. MASON WAS AT HEADQUARTERS FRIDAY

Had Fine Week's Trade--Will Be on Hand for T. P. A. Meeting

J. C. Mason, president of the Dixie Paper company, was a visitor at headquarters Saturday for the first time in six weeks. Mr. Mason's home is at Cuthbert, Ga. Recently he has been developing extensive new territory in Alabama. During the past week, however, he visited Georgia points and declares he has booked more business during the past week than in any one week this year. "I had specially big business on paper bags," declared he. Mr. Mason is an enthusiastic member of the T. P. A. and states that he will certainly be on hand for the big state convention which meets in Atlanta April 8, 9 and 10.

W. T. HEATH SOLD FINE OPENING BILL LAST WEEK

W. T. Heath, traveling salesman for the H. L. Singer company, sold a fine opening bill last week to a merchant at LaGrange, Ga. The bill consisted of a full line of over five hundred items for the retail fancy grocery trade. The Singer company from their large stock were able to fill it complete. "In my twenty years' experience in the wholesale grocery business," said A. W. Walker, of the shipping department of the Singer company, "I have never seen a finer or more complete bill than that which Mr. Heath had shipped to the LaGrange merchant."

BALDWIN SHOWED LARGE INCREASE IN BUSINESS

Well-Known Lodge Supply Man Returns From Visit to Headquarters

Len C. Baldwin, of Marietta, Ga., well known southern representative of Pettibone Brothers Manufacturing company, makers of regalia and lodge supplies, returned last week from Cincinnati where he went to attend the annual meeting of all the salesmen of the company. The Pettibone salesmen number twenty-two and cover all sections of the United States. Mr. Baldwin's sales in 1914 were $6,000 more than in 1913, although 1914 was supposed to be a hard year on account of the war depression.

Mr. Baldwin has been with Pettibone Brothers ten years and works forty weeks a year. "We think it correct to state that our company has put out more uniforms and lodge supplies than any company in the United States," said Mr. Baldwin. "We have contracts in Porto Rico and Havana, Cuba. We find that business conditions and sales in the south have been much better on an average than in the east or west."

Mr. Baldwin is a member of all the different secret organizations. His territory embraces Georgia, Alabama, North and South Carolina. Among his other forms of activity he is a member of the Shriners' band which last week gave a concert at the Lyric theater. He is also head of one of the largest Baraca classes in the state at his home in Marietta, Ga.

GOOD ADS POPULARIZE UNCLE SAM BREAD

How far reaching good advertising of a good product is, is exemplified in the popularity of Uncle Sam Bread, which is made by the Schlesinger-Meyer Baking company, of Atlanta.

The Atlanta public are thoroughly familiar with the interesting Uncle Sam bread advertisements appearing in The Atlanta Journal, but this advertising is also bringing results from other cities and towns where The Atlanta Journal is read.

In a series of Uncle Sam bread advertisements it was explained that one of the features is that Uncle Sam bread is made in a conscientiously clean bakery and that the dough is kneaded by machinery—and not by human hands.

This advertising was read by some ladies in a distant Georgia town and it actually created such a demand on the grocer in said town for Uncle Sam bread that he became convinced of the wisdom of selling Uncle Sam bread, and is now supplying it to his customers.

Schlesinger-Meyer Baking company say that they are getting numerous inquiries and orders by mail from grocers in Georgia towns and nearby states, and that they can fill these orders most satisfactorily because of their excellent shipping facilities.

E. Hudson Smacked Lips Over Bottle Of North Ga. Corn

But That Was All--The Bottle Contained Grains, Not Liquor

Joe Glover, wholesale grocer of Rome, Ga., on his visit here last Tuesday with the Rome Rotarians, brought with him a present for E. M. Hudson, of McCord-Stewart company. Mr. Glover was called upon for a speech at the luncheon at which the Atlanta and Rome Rotarians met in joint celebration. At the close of his speech he declared that he had brought with him a souvenir for Mr. Hudson and that it was a bottle of "Georgia corn." Mr. Hudson brightened up at this remark and it could be seen that he was licking his chops in anticipation of the delightful draught which he was soon to take from the big bottle, but when Mr. Glover tore the wrapping away, it was discovered that the "corn" was in the natural form of grains and not in the shape of liquor. "This shows what a tantalizing trick one man can play upon another," said Mr. Hudson. "At least there ought to have been enough dampness in the bottle to make the corn sprout."

Mr. Hudson keeps the bottle on his desk to exhibit to his friends and declares that had it been liquid he might be able to do more than exhibit it—he could share it with his friends when they call.

COMMITTEE NAMED FOR WHOLESALERS MEETING

At a meeting of the wholesale grocers and brokers on last Monday in the rooms of the convention bureau the following committee was named for the purpose of looking after the details of the entertainment of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' association which meets in Atlanta the first part of May. E. L. Adams, chairman; W. O. Stamps, H. L. Singer, C. B. Ponder and J. A. Campbell.

"During the past week we have been soliciting funds for the entertainment of the visitors," said Mr. Adams, "and we have met with surprising success. The response indeed has been very generous and we expect to have a nice fund with which to entertain the wholesalers when they meet here."

THOSE "MORNING GLORY" PRODUCTS ARE POPULAR

"Business and collections are very good indeed with us," said J. J. Simmons of Simmons & Snead, the progressive new brokerage firm, "notwithstanding present conditions. We are highly pleased with the trade we are having. It is increasing week by week. We attribute this both to the merit of our Morning Glory hams, bacon and lard, and also to the publicity which they have received through the Firing Line."

ALL COTTON SHOES ARE LATEST PRODUCT OF ATLANTA FACTORY

First Pair of the New Shoes, Made by J. K. Orr Co., Is Bought by Mark Prentiss of Nat. Commerce Chamber

Shoes made entirely of cotton is the latest product of an Atlanta shoe factory. The first pair of the new shoes was finished last week and was bought by Mark O. Prentiss, representative of the United States chamber of commerce, who was visiting in Atlanta and will soon go to New Orleans to make an address on cotton in the interest of his organization.

The shoes were originally designed for J. K. Orr, head of the shoe company, but when Mr. Prentiss became aware of their existence, he prevailed upon Mr. Orr to sell him the shoes in order that he might wear them at the time he makes his New Orleans speech. The only thing about the shoes that is not cotton is the heel, which is made of rubber, and a thin leather welt to which the cotton belting sole is attached. The newest thing about the shoe is the cotton belting sole. On records which have been kept of this material it is declared that it will last as a shoe sole longer than leather. The rest of the shoe is made of gray Palm Beach cloth.

"This gives us practically an entirely cotton shoes," said Mr. Orr in commenting upon the new product of his factory. "We grow the cotton in Georgia and make the cotton ducking here. It is a home product shoe in the best sense. It opens up a new field too for the use of cotton, and if it goes into wide general use it will free the shoe trade in a great measure from the high prices of leather that are now prevailing. The first pair, of course, were for a sample but we expect to have a general line of these shoes on the market for this summer."

SAMPLES AND SHIPMENTS

Morris Croft, of Ragan-Malone company, closed a very satisfactory week both upon the road and in the house. He declares that the bright open weather is causing everybody to feel good and to smile, and that trade prospects are decidedly better.

Josephus White, who travels Alabama for the A. M. Robinson company, was not heard from at the house for some time, but when he was he made good in grand style by sending in the largest order the house has had this season.

V. M. Hyatt was the top-liner at John Silvey & Co.'s last week. Mr. Hyatt had the best business that he has had since last July. He covers the north Georgia territory.

Mack Hirshberg, after finishing his Florida trip, will return to headquarters this week.

E. P. Lewis, of the McClure Ten Cent company, is up to his old tricks again. Last Wednesday he sold a big opening bill of 5 and 10 cents goods to J. B. Hay, of Dallas, Ga. Mr. Hay expects to open up his new 5 and 10 cent business on March 5. He was formerly of the Hay Hardware company of Dallas, Ga., and is a well known and popular merchant throughout his entire section.

Among the visiting merchants and patrons at John Silvey & Co.'s during the past week were W. S. Loyd, of Harana, Fla., who came on his usual spring buying trip; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Baughman, of Warner, S. C., and Walker Collins, of F. W. Collins & Co., of Baxley, Georgia.

Among the visitors and patrons of the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co. during the past week were Mr. Lowe, Duluth, Ga., Mr. Warnock, Chamblee, Ga.; Dr. T. B. Rice, Greensboro, Ga.; Dr. R. A. Mallory, Concord, Ga.; Dr. W. P. Allen, Woodbury, Ga.; Dr. H. D. Kemper, Marietta, Ga.; Dr. J. B. Carmichael, Red Oak, Ga.; T. J. Hewell, Jr., Dewy Rose, Ga.; Dr. W. D. Martin, Alpharetta, Ga.; Dr. R. S. Pounds, Redan, Ga.; Mr. D. D. Hunt, of Ye Garden, Athens, Ga.; Dr. Marchman, Bremen, Ga.; Dr. M. M. Head, Zebulon, Ga.; Dr. C. J. Tucker, Lithonia.

C. J. Sullivan, popular secretary-treasurer of the M. C. Kiser company, was ill at his home the last three days of the past week with grippe. He hopes to be back at his office, however, on Monday.

Sport Ramsauer of the shipping department of Fain & Stamps spent a very busy time last week getting out goods to the trade. He declares that business is coming in fine nowadays and keeps him on the jump and that he is delighted thereat.

P. G. Stanley, the popular traveler of the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co., has moved his home from Atlanta to Hawkinsville, Ga., for the purpose of being more convenient to his east Georgia territory, in which he is widely known and enjoys a constantly increasing patronage.

Leopold Hein, who covers north Texas for Montag Bros., came in to headquarters last week. Mr. Hein states that he will work in the house for several weeks before returning to his territory.

Max Samuels of the Hirshberg company returned to Atlanta Saturday for the week end from his Tennessee trip.

J. B. Smith, of the Dixie Paper company, was among the travelers who had a very successful week's business.

N. J. Kaufman, of Montag Bros., better known as "Red," is spending Sunday at the Gayoso hotel at Memphis, Tenn.

Among the salesmen of Kelley Bros. company who enjoyed a fine trade upon "Serv-us" brand of pure food products during the past week were H. A. Sewell, who covers the Birmingham division of the Southern, and E. Y. Culbreath, city salesman. The sales of these two "firing liners" were especially large, though all the rest of the salesmen are having good success with the popular Serv-us line.

John C. Black, who represents Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Co., was a visitor last Thursday at the Rosenfeld company. Mr. Black is manager of the newly opened Atlanta headquarters of the company. The Smith company is one of the largest carpet houses in the entire United States.

B. L. Fox of Montag Bros., came in last Wednesday morning from the road fill with grippe. He was, however, confined to his room only one day, being at the office on Thursday afternoon.

The "ins" at Fain & Stamps for the week end were W. T. Duncan, S. E. Smith, W. Y. Bailey, Cliff Edwards and W. T. Culpepper, of the road force, and W. A. Quaries, B. H. Messer and W. S. Gaston, of the city force. They were all present for the regular semi-monthly sales conference.

R. U. Ivey, who represents the Grand Lake Paper company, returned last week from a very satisfactory trip through south Georgia and Alabama. The Grand Lake company, makers of paper bags, wrapping paper and toilet paper, sell exclusively to jobbers.

Paul E. Mewborn, who travels North Georgia for the Brower Candy company, continues to send in satisfactory business. Mr. Mewborn is a new salesman of the Brower Candy company since the first of the year. He has now struck his stride in his new territory and is finding his sales increasing week by week.

J. P. Skelly, special representative of the American Cigar company, will arrive in Atlanta about March 1 and will spend several weeks in this territory featuring his company's Parex brand cigars. He will work the trade for the Capital City company, who are also featuring this popular brand of cigars. The company reports that they have already had very fine business on "Parex" and indications are that a splendid trade will prevail throughout the rest of the year.

S. Kinningham of the Hirshberg company, who covers the South Carolina territory, reports business conditions very much improved in the Palmetto state.

The salesmen of F. W. King & Co. are pleased with the very business is increasing. W. H. Arnold, who covers the out-of-town points for the company, continues to have an active trade, as is evidenced by the orders which are received from him. The city salesmen, too, are having lively business, and each week run a close race for first place on the sales list. The city salesmen are L. R. Wright, W. T. Daniel and W. T. Cooley.

KELLEY BROS. HAVE GOOD TRADE ON "SERV-US" LINE

Serv-Us Brand Includes Wide Variety of Pure Food Products and Accessories

The salesmen of Kelley Bros. company are finding that the "Serv-us" brand of pure food products, for which Kelley Bros. company are sole distributors in this territory, are meeting wide favor not only with the trade, but with the consumers as well wherever the goods are known and used. The "Serv-us" line embraces a wide variety of food products and includes also such articles as spices, castor oil, pepper, salad dressings, sage, milk, and, in fact, everything that is needed about the household in the way of food and food accessories.

"The 'Serv-us' brand of pure food products," said ... E. Kelley, of Kelley Bros. company, "is one of thoroughgoing merit and high quality. It meets a wide variety of tastes and demands, and it meets them in so satisfactory a manner that they naturally bring repeat orders from consumer to retailer and from retailer to jobber."

RUSSIANS, ON THEIR OWN BATTLEFIELDS, WHIP THE GERMANS

With Railroads to Their Backs, Czar's Forces Are Able to Bring Up Reinforcements in North Poland

AUSTRIANS DEFEATED IN EASTERN GALICIA

In the West French Claim Victories Over Kaiser's Forces at Verdun and Also in the Champagne District

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 27.—With Russian successes in the region of Przasnysz, north Poland, and Kolomea, east Galicia; the successful progress of the operations of the allied fleet in the Dardanelles and the decision of the allied governments to stop all shipping to and from Germany, Austria and Turkey, it is believed here that a new phase of the war is about to be entered upon.

While the success reported by Petrograd covers only a small portion of the long front in north Poland, and the Germans have been able to record a counter success near Kolno, the general impression among military men in London is that not only has the German offensive in the north exhausted itself, but the tide is turning in favor of the Russians, who with railways at their back, have been able to bring up more reinforcements than the invading army, whose communications, after Germany territory is left, must cross a country of marshes and, overflowing rivers.

Much more fighting, however, must be waged before a final decision is reached, and in the meantime the battle has been resumed in central Poland, where the Russians have made a slight advance, and the engagements in the Carpathians, eastern Galicia and Bukowina continue with unabated fury.

From what can be gathered from official reports, the Russians, despite the onslaughts made upon them from all sides, by Austrians and Germans, have been able to maintain their strength at all points and to throw in new troops where they were necessary. As a result, the Austro-German plan of compelling them to weaken their center by attacking the flanks seems to have failed, and while the Russians have been forced from east Prussia and Bukowina, they have been able to make a stand when reinforced, deliver counter attacks, which apparently are making some headway.

The only activity of any importance in the west is in the Champagne district, where the French continue their offensive, and where the official, according to the German report, has been quite spirited; and in the country to the north of Verdun where there have been heavy artillery engagements in which the French claim to have done damage to German guns and emplacements. French airmen have been dropping bombs on Metz.

General Luis Botha's army continues to make slow progress in German Southwest Africa, but this is hardly as interesting as the news that at the opening of the parliament of the Union of South Africa the guard of honor for the new British governor was composed of burghers in khaki, a duty which heretofore has devolved upon British soldiers.

In a letter to parliament, General Botha, who is at the front, said he anticipated the speedy conclusion of the operations and appealed for leniency for the rebels, especially the rank and file, who, he said, "in most cases acted under compulsion or were the victims of wrong leaders."

The British government's peremptory demand that work should be resumed in the trades where work was being done for the army and navy seems to have had a salutary effect in connection with the recent strike. The officials of the union advised the men to return to work immediately and the Liverpool dockers and other workmen have already followed the suggestion.

French Losses Are More Than Million, Say Germans

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—(By Wireless)—The Hamburger Nichrichten publishes what purports to be an authentic list of French losses in the first six months of the war.

The paper says the list was compiled by the French war ministry, but was not intended for publication. It gives the dead as 250,000 and the wounded 700,000, of whom 400,000 are described as slightly hurt. In addition 200,000 were reported missing.

"German Retreat Is Speeding Over a Widening Front"

(By Associated Press.)

PETROGRAD, Via London, Feb. 27.—The following official communication from headquarters was issued tonight:

"During February 26 the Germans appeared to pass to the defensive along almost the whole front. On the left bank of the Niemen, on the roads to Symno and Sorey there have been actions favoring the progress of our advance guard.

"North of Grodno the battle has been limited to an intense fire by the enemy. At the village of Tchernevo a German battalion with sappers advanced towards the Bohr valley. Our artillery, seizing the moment when part of the column had crossed to our bank, almost annihilated it. The survivors, consisting of five officers and a few score men, were made prisoners.

"The guns of the fortress of Ossowetz are successfully engaging the enemy's heavy batteries, which include eleven-inch and twelve-inch mortars.

"Our offensive at Przasnysz has been vigorously pursued. We have recaptured the town of Przasnysz, which the Germans had temporarily occupied.

"The German retreat is spreading over a constantly widening front, at some points assuming the character of a disorderly flight.'

"The prisoners we have taken up to the present number of forty officers and

GROCER AND WIFE BEATEN AND ROBBED OF $1,260 IN CASH

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Kelley Victims of Two Unmasked White Highwaymen in Inman Park Saturday Night

WOMAN USES REVOLVER BUT BULLETS GO WILD

Fashionable Neighborhood is Aroused by Screams and Shots, But Thieves Escape Before Help Arrives

After a desperate battle with two unmasked white men shortly after 11 o'clock Saturday night, W. L. Kelley and his wife, of 82 Sinclair ave., were robbed of $1,260 in cash on Washita avenue, a block from their home.

Both Mr. Kelley and Mrs. Kelley were armed with a revolver; Mrs. Kelley fired twice at the men, but missed. Kelley was knocked down and beaten with a heavy billy; Mrs. Kelley was struck on the head and arm. She fought frantically, but one of the men took from her the $1,260 which she carried in a handsatchel enclosed in a paper bag.

Mr. Kelley is proprietor of the Cash Grocery company, 37 South Broad street. The $1,260 represented the receipts from the store's Saturday business, which Kelley was taking home, as was his custom on Saturday nights, for safekeeping until Monday.

Screams and shouts from Mrs. Kelley, mingled with the two pistol shots, aroused the whole of the fashionable Inman Park neighborhood. The scene of the robbery was on a street lined with homes, with an arc lamp close by. Yet the desperadoes escaped before help came.

Dazed, bruised and shocked, Kelley and his wife were taken to their home by residents; the police were then notified, and Call Officer Fortson came from engine house number 12, on DeKalb Avenue.

KELLEY'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Kelley gave the following statement of the robbery to The Journal:

"Saturday's receipts at my store are the largest for any day in the week. They aggregated $1,260 Saturday. Mrs. Kelley came to town to accompany me home. It being our idea that highway men would not attacke me if I was with a lady. In order to divert suspicion we put the money in Mrs. Kelley's hand bag and then placed the hand bag in a paper sack which Mrs. Kelley carried in her hand. We did not leave the money in the small safe at the store because we feared yeggmen.

"We took a side avenue car home and left the car about 11:10. We walked down Washita to Sinclair and just before we reached the corner we saw two white men approaching us. When they came up to us one of the men shoved a pistol in my face and ordered me to hold up my hands. Being taken by surprise I obeyed his command. The two men had not paid any attention to Mrs. Kelley up to this time.

"As soon as Mrs. Kelley saw they had me she drew her revolver and fired, but missed both times. The other robber then struck Mrs. Kelley over the head with a billy and knocked her to the sidewalk and beat the pistol from her hand. He then took the paper bag from her.

"In the meantime the other man was going through my pockets. He even took my watch, $60 in money, my glasses, my letters and a rubber stamp from my pockets. He cursed me and inquired where my money was, but paid no attention to a shopping bag which I carried and which contained bundles. While the man who held the pistol on me was demanding the money the other robber, who had taken the paper bag from my wife approached and stated that he had the money, but my assistant did not believe him at first and continued to go through my pockets.

"Several of the men were masked. I am pretty sure I can identify the man who attacked Mrs. Kelley. In fact I recognized the voice although he kept his face turned away from me. I am pretty sure the robbery was well planned and that the man who attacked Mrs. Kelley knew of the money was in the paper bag, for after getting the bag he told his pal he had the money although he had never opened the bag to see it. Both men were shabbily dressed."

ALIES DEAL COUNTER BLW AT THE KAISER WITH BLOCKADE PLAN

Shiping to and From Germany and Her Allies Will Be Stoped Absolutely, According to Announcement

ATTCK OF SUBMARINES MAE ACTION NECESSARY

Probble Effect of Blockade on Attitude of U. S. Government Widely Discussed in Ofcial Washington

(By Associated Press.)

LODON, Feb. 27.—Great Britain, Franc and their allies have advised neutr countries that they hold themselvest liberty to stop all shipping to and frm Germany and the countries of her ass.

Pub announcement of this action will bmade early next week. The text of th declaration will set forth that this ecision is necessary because of Germ submarine attacks, but that Great Britain and France will respect the les of crews and passengers in any ships they may take.

The declaration is ent as reply to the American representations looking to a cessation of German submarine activities and the admission of free passage of German goods in German vessels. The declaration will not act cargoes shipped before the date it will advise to neutrals.

Thexact date carried by the declaration is not been announced, but it is probab February 27.

No pecial articles of commerce will be inclioned in the Britsn-French declarath. Cotton and foodstuffs, for example will not be specified but the termswill be general. The situation createwill be entirely justified, according to the English view, because of Germany unprecedented action in attempting aubmarine blockade regardless of damage to the crews and passengers of ships.

Shiping in the Baltic will not be affected except that Great Britain and her alliesprevent supplies from entering Norwa, Sweden and Denmark for re-exportain to Germany. Holland, by making it prohibited export list conform with e British contraband list and by the cation of The Netherlands interces gist—to which virtually all cargoes entering Holland are consigned with the government guarantee that they will not be sipped to Germany—has put the shipps in a position which will be affected little by the declaration.

It is believed here that the Scandinavian cntries doubtless will take similar actiono insure continuation of supplies from merica and elsewhere for home use. The Denmark, Sweden and Norway Ne repeatedly modified the lists of prohibited exports, their regulations for importation and re-exportation parenv have been unsatisfactory to Great britain, or the administration of the blockade has been unsatisfactory as canes have not moved to the Scandinaviacountries with the same freedom as to Holland.

Washington Is Stirred by Report of Blockade Plan

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Confirmation is lacking here tonight of the report rom London that neutral governmentshad been notified by Great Britain of her allies that a general blockade oGerman ports would be declared next week. The news dispatch to that effectaroused wide interest in official and diomatic circles, however, as to the probable course the United States govrnment would pursue.

Authrities on international law agree that belligerent has the right to "blockade an enemy's ports with a competenforce" and neutrals are bound to respect that right. They divide such blockas into two classes, simple or defact and public. The latter class is definedas one "where the investment is not or actually established, but where also public notification of the fact is made b neutral pbwers by the government officers of state declaring the blockade. Such a notification, it is addedy the same authorities, is considered nding not only upon a neutral state but also upon its citizens. The results to throw the burden of proof upon ie captured vessels seized while attemping to enter a blockaded port. The lckade is held to be in force until formanotification of its withdrawal has been pelved.

Thexact date of the issuance of the blocke notice, it is held, will be of the utmost importance, since a vessel sail-

THIS IS THE SIGN in front of the Peachtree tabernacle which Dean John R. Atkinson, of St. Phillip's cathedral, says is slangy and hurts him to look upon, and which Dr. Wilbur Chapman, the evangelist, has used as his slogan in many revivals. "Get Right About God," will be Dean Atkinson's subject Sunday night at the Savoy theater, in a sermon which he has announced will show a better way of teaching Christianity than Dr. Chapman's. In the Tabernacle behind the sign Dr. Chapman will hold his usual service Sunday afternoon and night and a special service to Men's Bible classes this morning.

ORDERS AGAINST SUNDAY DRINKS EFFECTIVE TODAY

Chief Beavers Begins Crusade Against "Tippling" in Clubs on Sabbath Day

The order of Chief of Police Beavers, instructing policemen and detectives to make cases against officials of any locker club of Atlanta found dispensing drinks Sunday is in force today. They were read for the first time Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock to the policemen of the evening watch.

These orders, which also instruct Detective Chief Lanford to detail two detectives to watch the clubs on Sunday, are, as Chief Beavers based on a state law and a city ordinance.

"I am simply doing my duty in enforcing the law," said the chief.

The state law quoted by Chief Beavers is aimed at "tippling" on Sundays, and is an old law, passed many years before the 1907 prohibition statute. It reads: "Any person who shall be guilty of any notorious act of public indecency or of keeping open a tippling house on the Sabbath day or the Sabbath night, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

The city ordinance under which Chief Beavers says he has authority to arrest offenders against the state law as quoted above, provides a $200 fine or 30 days, to be given by the recorder, for any person, firm or corporation who shall be found guilty of selling or of keeping for unlawful sale intoxicating liquors. This ordinance was also passed several years ago.

Officials of several locker clubs have come forward with the statement that they are making every effort to comply with the laws cited by the chief, and that, in addition, they are endeavoring to comply with every other law pertaining to locker clubs.

Rudolph Berger, Star Tenor of Grand Opera, Is Dead of Paralysis

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Rudolph Berger, Austrian tenor who has been singing at the Metropolitan Opera house here, died suddenly from paralysis of the heart tonight in his apartments.

A physician had been summoned by Guillio Gatti-Casazza, director of the opera house, to ascertain the singer's condition. While they and Madame Rappold, the tenor's wife were talking with him he died. He was about 36 six years old.

The tenor had been ill from muscular rheumatism for several days, but his condition was not supposed to be critical.

Berger was a singer of Wagnerian roles in this country and Europe. He made his first American appearance as Siegmund in "Die Walkure," in the Nibelungen ring cycle in February 5, 1914. He made only one appearance this year, as the elder Siegfried in "Die Gotterdammerung" in the ring cycle. He was to have sung Siegmund last Wednesday, but was too ill.

Through the death of Rudolph Berger, Atlanta opera lovers have lost the opportunity to hear him this spring in "The Magic Flute." He is well known in Atlanta. He sang for the first time here last spring, taking the title role of "Lohengrin." His tenor voice was one of singular beauty and tremendous power and range. Berger was a giant in stature, being over six feet three inches tall.

Madame Rappold, his wife, has also sung in Atlanta, where she has many friends. She married Berger about two years ago.

SHIP DACIA SEIZED BY FRANCE

Seizure of Cotton Steamer Expected Because Great Britain Questioned Transfer From German to American Registry

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, Via London, Feb. 28.—A French cruiser has arrested the American steamer Dacia in the channel and taken her to Brest. This announcement is officially made.

Subsequent to the capture of the Dacia, which was issued by the marine department, gave no details nor the name of the cruiser which took her under arrest.

The Dacia left Rotterdam January 31 with 11,000 bales of cotton to be trans-shipped to Bremen. It was fully expected at that time she would be seized because Great Britain questioned the validity of her transfer from German to American registry. The Dacia touched at Norfolk on February 11 then proceeded.

She was formerly a Hamburg-American freight steamship which had been used before the war in trade between Bremen and gulf ports. At the outbreak of hostilities she was tied up at Port Arthur. On December 26 she was purchased by an American and on January 4 American registry was obtained. It was then announced that she was to be used to move cotton, and loading was begun with a cargo to be taken to Rotterdam, thence shipped to Bremen, where it was already sold.

Representations were made immediately by the British embassy at Washington, questioning the validity of the transfer and it was generally understood that if the ship sailed she would be seized by British or French warships and taken before a prize court.

U. S. Government Awaits Action of Prize Court

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—While no official word had reached the state department tonight on the seizure of the American steamer Dacia, it is known that no protest by the American government is probable until a French prize court passes on the vessel's status. This has been the general policy in all similar cases.

The Dacia formerly was German-owned but was purchased by an American, who was said to have Furnished United States officials and the British embassy here with proofs tending to show that the transfer was made in good faith and that the former owners retained no interest in the vessel or agreement for her retransfer at the close of the war, or any share in profits that might accrue from operations.

The voyage of the Dacia has been regarded as a test case upon which final decision as to the right of neutrals to purchase vessels from citizens of belligerent countries might be based.

Accuses French Soldiers of Surrendering Too Easily

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—(Wireless to Sayville, N. Y.)—An army order has emanated from the French general staff headquarters, stating French soldiers surrender too easily, says the Overseas agency. "It threatens every soldier who is made a prisoner of war will be court martialed on his return."

PARIS, Feb. 27.—A snow avalanche in the department of Hautos-Alpes has completely buried the hamlet of La Caille. The houses are obliterated. It is believed some of the people must perish before they can be dug out.

CAPT. ENGLISH WILL WIN WITHOUT OPPOSITION

Dr. J. C. Vaughan and Robert Holland Also Certain of Board Places

While six places on the board of police commissioners are to be filled by the city council Monday afternoon there are only three contests. Efforts to bring out opposition to Captain J. W. English, of the Sixth ward, were abandoned late Saturday afternoon.

As a result three new men will be named on the board without a fight. These are Dr. J. C. Vaughan, who succeeds B. Lee Smith from the Fourth ward; Captain English, who succeeds J. F. Letton, from the Sixth; and Robert Holland, who succeeds George P. Dickson, from the Tenth.

J. D. Sisson, former councilman, is regarded as certain to be elected to the Fifth ward place although he is being opposed by Emory P. Brooks.

The races for the First and Third ward places are very close.

Dr. W. E. Foster, candidate advanced by the "liberal" forces, is being opposed in the First ward by S. A. Wardlaw, former councilman, and counted a friend of Chief of Police Beavers. W. A. Vernoy, the incumbent, is opposed for reelection from the Third ward by William Broadbent, a "liberal," who is being supported by friends of Mayor Woodward.

If Foster and Broadbent are elected it is claimed that the completion of the 1915 board will be decidedly "liberal," and that Chief of Police Beavers is likely to lose his position.

Remaining on the board are W. P. Fain, counted as a "conservative" and who has always supported Beavers; A. R. King, who is claimed by both sides, and R. T. Pace and R. C. Clarke, "liberals."

Two ex-officio members of the board, Mayor Woodward and Councilman Edwin Johnson, are counted as among the leaders of the "liberals."

Of the new men named of places, Captain English is counted as a "liberal" and Vaughan, Sisson and Holland as "conservatives." Exclusive of the two places in doubt, the liberal count shows:

Mayor Woodward, Captain English, Councilmen Johnson, Pace and Clarke —5.

On the other side are counted Fain, Vaughan and Sisson, with Holland and King inclined toward the conservatives.

The count shows that if the two doubtful races go "liberal," that element will have full control of the board, and there is a possibility of that element having control, even if the races go against them Monday.

The principal development of Saturday was the conceding of the election to Captain English. Councilman Jesse W. Wood, of the Sixth ward, has been casting about since the withdrawal of J. F. Letton from the race, for a man who would run against Captain English. Saturday afternoon he stated that sufficient opposition to Captain English to warrant putting another candidate in the field had not materialized.

The admiralty announcement says landing parties are now ashore in the allied fleet. With their assistance three of the four forts at the entrance to the Dardanelles have been silenced and blown and the fourth was damaged badly.

HOW FORTS WERE SILENCED.

The admiralty statement says:

"The entrance to the Dardanelles was guarded by four principal forts, namely: Cape Helles battery, Fort Seddul Bahr, Fort Orkanieh and Fort Dardanos on Kalossi Tabia, which will be described for convenience as A, B, C and D. Those forts were armed as follows: A, two 9.2 guns; B, six 18.2 guns; C, two 9.2 guns; D, four 10.2 and two 5.9 guns.

"The weather having improved, although the wind was still from the southwest, the attack on these forts was resumed Thursday morning (February 25) at 10 o'clock.

"The Queen Elizabeth, Agamemnon, Irresistible and Gaulois began by deliberately bombarding Forts A, B, C and D, respectively, at long range.

"Fort A replied. One shell at 11,000 yards hit the Agamemnon, killing three men and seriously wounding five. The Irresistible and Gaulois made excellent practice on Forts C and D, while the Queen Elizabeth concentrated with great accuracy on Fort A, putting both of its guns out of action by about 11:30 a. m.

FLEET IS NOW NEAR NARROWEST POINT IN TURKISH STRAITS

Mine Sweepers Clear Waters and Ships of Allies Steam on Toward Constantinople, Bombarding Inner Forts

TURKISH GOVERNMENT MAY MOVE TO SCUTARI

Panic Now Reigns in Turkish Capital and Many Inhabitants Are Fleeing, Says Report From Athens

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Feb. —After having completed the destruction of forts at the entrance of the Dardanelles, the allied fleet of the British and French warships, the greatest which has ever been in action, are now attacking the inner forts, which heretofore have stood between Turkey and invasion by the sea.

Apparently the outer forts could not withstand a great bombardment, and when they had been levelled, and deserted by their defenders, men were landed from the ships to complete the work of demolition, while mine sweepers cleared a passage for ships in the straits.

More serious work is now ahead for the all-important fortifications are at Kilid Bahr and Chanak, which guard the narrowest part of the straits, which the fleet is now approaching. There is no doubt, however, that the allied commanders have instructions to make their way to Constantinople in spite of all obstacles and have been supplied with the best means for carrying out these orders.

A complete list of the ships engaged is not available, but reports from Athens and other points say that twenty large vessels are taking part and the report, that the British battleship Agamemnon, up to Friday night mentions no less than ten of these. Previous reports mentioned only that they were engaged on Thursday or Friday, the period covered by the admiralty statement.

NEW SHIP LEADS.

At the head of the fleet is the Queen Elizabeth, one of England's latest superdreadnaughts, which has been commissioned since the war began and which mounts eight 15-inch guns. The Queen Elizabeth took part in the bombardment, so that for the first time these monster weapons had been used, and according to the admiralty report, they did their work "with great accuracy."

Other ships which assisted in silencing the outer forts were the British battleship Agamemnon, which was struck by a Turkish shell and had three admiralty, up to Friday night mentions no less than ten of these. Previous reports mentioned only that they were engaged on Thursday or Friday, the period covered by the admiralty statement.

Other vessels, including the French battleship Beuvet, and one or two British cruisers, are in the vicinity to render assistance should it be required.

The Fort Durdams, which the ships attacked Friday after the entrance to the straits, however, is one of mines, is not far from the narrows, and it is probable that the big and more important attack has begun by this time.

SULTAN READY FOR FLIGHT.

Reports from neutral Balkan states say that the residents of the islands in the Sea of Marmora have been ordered to evacuate their homes and that an imperial train is waiting to take the sultan to Asia Minor.

So far as Great Britain is concerned, however, the most important immediate result of the initial successes is the reduction in the price of wheat, which has dropped two shillings a quarter.

"There is a panic in Turkish Constinople, and many inhabitants are leaving," says the Athens correspondent of the Weekly Dispatch. Internal trouble is imminent. The cabinet has decided to transfer the seat of government to Brousea, Asia Minor.

ADMIRALTY'S STATEMENT.

The admiralty announced tonight that during the bombardment of the Dardanelles fortifications the battleship Agamemnon had been struck and that three men were killed. The announcement made known that the Dardanelles operations are still proceeding.

Friends of James Meade Are Certain He'll Win

Much interest is being manifested in the race for recorder pro tem, which will be decided by council Monday afternoon.

James W. Meade, a popular young newspaperman, and Harry White, a real estate man, are opposing W. H. Preston, who is seeking re-election to the position he has held for a number of years.

It is generally conceded that no candidate will receive a majority on the first ballot and friends of Mr. Meade are claiming that he is certain of election, when a break comes in the ranks of the supporters of either of the other candidates.

STEAMER BRINGS BIG CARGO FROM GERMANY

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The American steamer City of Memphis brought into New York today from Bremen 900 tons of assorted German merchandise.

The City of Memphis, on her outward voyage took from Norfolk nearly 9,000 bales of cotton, and reached Bremen January 27 without incident throughout the voyage. On the return she was delayed by heavy seas.

THOUSANDS DIE EVERY YEAR FROM RESULTS OF A NEGLECTED COLD

And to Neglect a Cold in the Beginning Is to Run a Pretty Big Risk.

Practically every case of pneumonia is antedated by a cold which becomes pneumonia. Sometimes the patient is unfortunate enough to contract fresh cold before he or she has entirely recovered from pneumonia, and consumption results. The death rate for pneumonia has for many years been 25 per cent, and the medical world seems unable to reduce that rate. Every one knows that the death rate for consumption, or the "great white plague," is 100 per cent. Millions of dollars have been spent to find a cure, but a temporary remedy is, so far, the best that can be done. A bad cold is directly traceable to an inactive liver, poorly oxygenated and cool off around jar, 25c. Jacobs' Pharmacy, Atlanta. Insist on Jacobs'.—(Advt.)

becomes closed, the blood recedes from the surface of the body and a congestion is produced. The same condition exists if one sits in a draft, or gets wet. The liver finds its efforts overcome by pressure of the blood, also the food one has eaten remains in the stomach or bowels, the liver being unable to perform its functions. The head gets hot, the feet cold and the bowels constipated. Right there and there is the danger point. JACOBS' LIVER SALT is needed, and needed badly. The bowels, when such conditions arise, MUST be kept open. The system must be relieved of congestion, JACOBS' LIVER SALT is the greatest known relief. It beats calomel. It will rejuvenate the liver, send the blood racing through the veins, dispel the congestion and make the patient feel as if life is worth living. It is a simple remedy, but like many simple things, important. Try it today. One-half

NEWLANDS INTRODUCES RESOLUTION FOR PEACE

Senator Wants Wilson to Invite Neutrals to Urge Belligerent to Quit

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—A resolution authorizing the president to invite a conference of neutral nations to urge upon the warring powers a discontinuance of hostilities and a subsequent peace conference was introduced today by Senator Newlands, of Nevada.

The conference would be held in Washington and the resolution sets forth its purpose as follows:

"First, a discontinuance of hostilities; second, a withdrawal of the forces of each nation within its boundaries and retirement from captured territory; third, a conference with warring powers looking to the calling of a peace conference; and fourth, the establishment, with the approval and cooperation of the belligerent nations, of an international court tribunal or executive body with power to submit to questions arising between nations, and to enforce its findings."

"The Vengeance and Cornwallis then ran in under cover of long range fire and engaged Fort A at close range. The reduction of Fort A was completed, while Forts C and D opened a very slow and inaccurate fire.

"The Suffern and Charlemagne next delivered an attack on Forts C and D, advancing to within 2,000 yards of them. It was then seen that they were in no condition to offer an effective resistance.

"The Vengeance, Triumph and Albion were then ordered in to complete the reduction of the forts. All four were reduced by 5:15 p. m.

"Sweeping operations, covered by a division of battleships and destroyers, were immediately begun. The enemy set fire to a village at the entrance as darkness fell.

"A report also has been received of the operations of February 26. The straits had been swept up to four miles from the entrance. The Albion and Majestic, supported by the Vengeance, proceeded to the limit of the swept area and began an attack on Fort Dardanus shore. The fire in reply was ineffective.

"After being shelled from inside the straits the enemy retired from the forts at the entrance and during the afternoon demolishing parties were landed at Kum Kale and Seddul Dahr (Sedd-El-Bahr) from the Vengeance and Irresistible. Forts A, B, D and C were then completely, and Fort D was partially demolished.

"The enemy encountered in Kum Kale were driven out over the Mondere bridge, which was partially destroyed Two field guns, concealed near the Tomb of Achilles, were also destroyed, and four Nordorfelts covering the entrance were destroyed. Our casualties on the 26th, were one killed and three wounded."

Twenty warships of the allied fleet entered the Dardanelles at noon Saturday and bombarded the other forts, according to a dispatch from the Athens correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company. The message adds that a battleship bombarded a Turkish camp on the Gulf of Saraos.

Correspondent Describes Dardanelles' Bombardment

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—(Via London).—The Constantinople correspondent of the Tazeblatt, who witnessed the bombardment of the forts at the entrance to the Dardanelles by the British and French fleets, sends a dispatch dated noon, February 26, as follows:

"Four hostile warships appeared at 8 o'clock this morning before the entrance but the fire against the outer forts was weak. The enemy's mine sweeping vessels could clearly been seen among the big armored ships. Nothing noteworthy happened up to 9 o'clock.

"The bombardment yesterday lasted fully eight hours. The Anglo-French ships bombarded almost uninterruptedly the outer forts Orhania and Kum Kale on the Asiatic side, and Ertheergil and Sedd-El-Bahr on the European side were unable to silence completely any of them, although the ships finally approached within short range of the forts and showered them with shells from their heavy artillery. Sedd-El-Bahr and Kum Kale particularly were subjected to a most violent fire.

"In the afternoon I rode with a Turkish brigade commander to Kum Kale and from a distance of half a mile watched the gallant fight of the forts until evening. For hours the flashes from the eleven hostile warships, which lay at short intervals before the entrance to the straits could plainly be seen with the naked eye.

"The Turkish losses were remarkably small. There were a dozen dead in Sedd-El-Bahr and Kum Kale. The fire from the forts scored good successes. Several hostile warships, including the Agamemnon (a British battleship) were severely damaged. One ship is reported to have caught fire."

Allies Hurl 1,000 Shells At Dardanelles Forts

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, Feb. 27.—The allied fleet yesterday fired a thousand shells at the Dardanelles forts, says a Havas dispatch from Athens. It continues:

"The British fleet discharged its guns at a distance of about 12 miles. The battleship Ocullos (French) distinguished herself, contributing largely to the destruction of Fort Sedd-El-Bahr.

"Today forty vessels advanced as far as Fort Orkhanish and swept the Turkish encampments. They then bombarded In Tepeh, which they destroyed.

"Submarines protected by French vessels and aeroplanes constantly moved about. Torpedo dragging was effected methodically.

"According to information from authoritive sources the arrival of numerous injured soldiers caused a panic in Constantinople. Special trains are constantly under steam at Haidar Pasha ready to transport the imperial family and the treasury to the interior of Asia.

"During the bombardment of fort Sedd-El-Bahr ammunition depots blew up, killing many defenders, among whom were numerous Germans."

England and France Trying to Steal March on Russia?

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—(Wireless to Sayville, N. Y.)—An Overseas agency statement today, credits the Tages Zeitung with saying England and France are attempting to steal a march on Russia, by reaching Constantinople ahead of the Russians. Their hope, the statement says, is to prevent Russia from obtaining exclusive control of Constantinople.

Turkish Government May Move to Scutari

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Bombardment of the Dardanelles forts by the Anglo-French fleet has caused apprehension in Constantinople, according to advices to Washington, and Turkey is considering removing the seat of the government to Scutari, opposite Constantinople on the Asiatic side of the Straits of Bosporus.

The approach of the allied forces has caused some of the foreign embassies and legations to ask for instructions in case the Turkish government moves, but Ambassador Morganthau, it is understood, has decided to remain in Constantinople unless otherwise instructed. Some departments of the Turkish government, it is said, will remain in Constantinople even if the others go.

Forcing of Dardanelles Is Continued Methodically

PARIS, Feb. 28.—The ministry of marine has issued the following statement regarding operations in the Dardanelles:

"The Anglo-French fleet continued methodically during February 26 the operation of forcing the Dardanelles. The mine dragging was effected without incident up to four miles from the entrance. Three battleships advanced in the strait as far as the limit of the dragging operations and successfully bombarded the batteries while a detachment which was landed finished the demolition of the four forts which had been cannonaded and reduced the day before.

"The loss of the combined fleet in this operation was insignificant, one man being killed and three injured."

GERMANS MOWED DOWN LIKE STRAWS OF WHEAT

Out of Detachment 300 Only 5 Are Living nd They Are Prisoner

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, Feb. 27.—A descripti of recent fighting between Ypres and Menin, Belgium, is given in a dispatch from the French official "eyewitness," ile published today. The message follo:

"The Germans prepared a gst effort against our trenches at the Chateau Hermitage, on the road from pres to Menin, beginning with a violent shelling on February 19, which ruined the telephone lines connecting the trenches with the post of command. Ainfantry attack followed north of throad to Menin, several columns, preded by sappers with hand grenades, acing the assault.

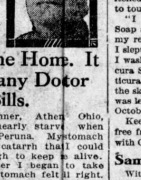

"Our artillery and infantry st them with a heavy fire and machine ins took them in the flank. Entire gross of our assailants were brought down. The enemy succeeded, however, in penetrating part of our trenches. Here wcounter-attacked, but progress was nde painfully, and at same time it enemy brought up reinforcements onfantry and artillery and all our efts failed until evening when we recapred part of the lost trenches.

"We made another attack the morning of February 20, wch was stopped by the enemy's violenshelling. A second attack also was repsed, but a third progressed to within thy yards of the trenches. We dug in here and brought up machine guns and mortar while other machine guns on bomthrower prepared to take the enmy in the flank.

"The fourth attack began at o'clock. Machine guns in front and onhe flank opened fire while petards, bomt and artillery fire covered the entire as of the trenches with projectiles. Tenemy tried to retreat an hour after e began the attack, but all leaving thtrenches fell under rifle and machine-un fire. Then the infantry charged al killed the last defenders, excepting ve men. At 4.30 o'clock the lost trenchewere entirely recovered.

"The German losses were vy heavy. The five prisoners taken and thy were the only survivors of a dachment of 300 men. Fifty dead were found in the recaptured trenches and 150 more on the adjacent ground. Ourartillery also caused heavy losses among the reinforcements, which were ught to come up to assist their comdes. In the two days the losses of tenemy were more than 400 killed nd 600 wounded; our losses were 50 dad and 80 wounded."

FINDS A CURE FOR PELLAGRA

All Skin Eruption Gone, Doctors Now Convinced Mrs. Vaughn Is Entirely Well

Mrs. C. H. Vaughn, Millville, Ark., writes: "There is nothing I ever could do but what I can do it now. There is no sign of skin eruption. One of our local doctors told me that my cure was one of the grandest things that ever happened—not only for me, but for the whole community, to let them know that there is a cure for pellagra.

"All the doctors that waited on me are convinced that your remedy is a real cure."

There's the true word from a cured patient. If you have pellagra, or know of anyone who suffers from Pellagra it is your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn, who has fought and conquered the dreadful malady right in the heart of the Pellagra belt in Alabama.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off; sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red with much mucous and choking; indigestion and nausea, either diarrhea or constipation.

There is hope. Get Baughn's Big Free book on Pellagra, and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., Box 2002 Jasper, Ala., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure.—(Advt.)

ERUPTION ON SIDE ITCHED FEARFULLY

Felt as Though On Fire. Couldn't Bear Anything to Touch It. Used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. Skin Cleared and No Trace of Trouble Left.

R. F. D. No. 3, Lexington, Okla.—"I had a severe eruption on my right side which was about four inches wide and extended half way around my body. It came suddenly, was bright scarlet in color and I felt as though I was on fire all the time. The eruptions commenced exactly like prickly heat and looked like it. They itched fearfully. I couldn't bear anything to touch me at all.

"I sent at once for a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and my relief dated from the first application; I slept that night for the first time in days. I washed the eruption well with the Cuticura Soap, dried them and applied the Cuticura Ointment. It was not long before the skin cleared and no trace of the disease was left." (Signed) Mrs. W. W. Harbison, October 27, 1914.

GA. JUDGESHIP BILL GOES UP TO PRESIDENT SOON

Senate Recedes From Its Objection to the Cullop Amendment

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The senate this afternoon receded from its objection to the Cullop amendment to the south Georgia judgeship bill. The vote was 30 to 10. All that now remains before the measure becomes a law, with the approval of the president, is for the house to recede from an inconsequential amendment relating to the division of business between the two judges of the southern district. It is believed certain that the house will do this, and that the president will approve the bill early next week, following which he will nominate a new federal judge for southern Georgia.

The nomination and confirmation by the senate of a new judge will practically mark the passing of Judge Emory Speer's activity as federal jurist in the southern district of Georgia. It is believed that most of the litigation in the federal court of this jurisdiction will be tried before the new judge to be appointed.

MENTIONED FOR JOB.

So confident is the expectation that the bill will become a law that Senators Smith and Hardwick have notified a number of applicants to submit their claims and qualifications for appointment to Attorney General Gregory.

It is understood that any one of the following, whose applications will be considered, will prove entirely acceptable to the senators: Wallace W. Lambdin, of Waycross; Robert J. Travis, of Savannah; Joseph E. Pottle, of Milledgeville; Thomas S. Felder, of Macon; Charles L. Bartlett, of Macon.

The action of the senate in voting to accept the Cullop amendment came as a distinct surprise even to the membership of the senate itself. Heretofore, the senate has steadfastly defeated all legislation of this kind.

The Cullop amendment provides that the president shall make public all indorsements of the applicant named for the judgeship. Objection to this provision was based on the idea that it was an invasion of the president's constitutional rights in the matter of appointments and a bad precedent to establish. The bill was called up at the very heel of today's session by Senator Hoke Smith, who, with his colleague, Mr. Hardwick, had worked industriously all day to induce senators to waive their objection to the publicity amendment. It was realized that the bill was doomed to defeat if the senate did not recede.

Senator Root, of New York, led in opposing the acceptance of the publicity amendment.

Senator Smith said that while theoretically he was opposed to the Cullop amendment, he felt so anxious for the passage of the bill that he was willing to yield his objections.

The amendment from which the house must recede before the bill is signed by the president, provides that the business of the southern district shall be assigned by the senior circuit judge of the district. There is a federal law providing that in districts where there are two judges and they fail to agree as to the division of the business, the senior circuit judge shall make the assignments. The senate believes this provision adequately covers the situation, and therefore did not accept the house amendment.

AD MEN DECLARE WAR ON FAKE ADVERTISING

Prepare Bill to Be Presented at Next Session of the Legislature

Fraudulent advertising and "fly-by-night" merchants who mulct money from the consuming public through "fake" bargain sales, will be attacked by the Atlanta Ad Men's club in a vigorous campaign now under way. One of the weapons it intends to use will be a bill to be introduced in the Georgia legislature at its next session making possible the criminal prosecution of merchants guilty of these practices.

Colonel Walter P. Andrews, attorney for the club, and representative elect from Fulton county, will introduce the measure, which has the endorsement also of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association, made up of the biggest shop owners in Atlanta, whose advertising bills run up into the thousands of dollars each year. The Ad Men's club wants all advertising to be "absolutely truthful," and it asks the cooperation of every reputable merchant in the state in the campaign it has under way.

MAN FINED MAY BRING CHARGES AGAINST COPS

Row With Policeman Costs C. W. Drake a Fine of $3.75

"The only mistake you made was in going back and asking the policeman to arrest you. So I'll have to fine you $3.75."

Thus ruled Recorder Johnson Saturday afternoon on the case of C. W. Drake, who was charged with disorderly conduct by Patrolman Gordon, who arrested him on Whitehall street last Thursday night.

Mr. Drake claimed that he and his wife were trying to force their way through a crowd gathered on the sidewalk in front of a vaudeville theater, and that the officer refused to help them get past. He said Patrolman Gordon had insulted him, but admitted "jawing" the officer after he had gotten by the crowd.

Mr. Drake was so indignant about the affair that he has stated he will prefer charges of false arrest against Policeman Gordon.

ATTORNEY GENERAL GRICE HOME FROM WASHINGTON

Solicitor Dorsey and Attorney Alexander Will Return in Few Days

Attorney General Warren Grice returned to Atlanta yesterday from Washington, where, with Solicitor Hugh Dorsey, he had argued for the state against the Frank appeal before the supreme court.

Solicitor Dorsey and H. A. Alexander, the latter of Frank's counsel, are now in New York, and will return home in a few days.

Mr. Grice, on his arrival yesterday, said he had no comment to make on the case and he, of course, could not say when the supreme court is likely to decide it.

Indian Will Lead Officers to Place Piutes Are Hiding

(By Associated Press.)

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Feb. 27.—Because, as he claims, Chief Polk killed his brother Thursday night, "Dutchy," a Piute Indian, is on his way to Bluff to lead Marshal Nebeker's posse to the hiding place of Polk and Posey, the Piutes, according to advices from Bluff today.

"Dutchy" says his brother was killed by Polk, and the widow escaped from the hostile camp that night, crossing the San Juan river to bring him the news.

C. R. BELK FINED $10 FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

Privilege of Higher Justice Is Exercised by Judge Johnson

Judge Johnson inaugurated a new feature in recorder's court Saturday afternoon, when he exercised the privilege of higher justice in appointing an attorney for the defense.

C. R. Belk, of 132 Cooper street, whose automobile ran down Mrs. W. B. Arnold, of 158 Richardson street, on Pryor street between Trinity avenue and Garnett street, on February 8, told the court that his attorney, R. B. Blackburn, hadn't yet arrived when the case was called.

"Well, I'll give you another lawyer and a good one," said Judge Johnson, and named Attorney C. P. Sims to plead for Belk. Attorney Sims had just finished cross-examining the first witness when Attorney Blackburn arrived and took charge of the case.

Belk was fined $10.75 for reckless driving.

CLUB WOMEN WILL AID BOARD OF EDUCATION

Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin Explains Recent Resolution Passed by Federation

The Atlanta Federation of Women's clubs at its recent semi-annual meeting went on record as working in cooperation with the board of education, and under the direction of that body for the general betterment of school conditions.

Mr. Samuel Lumpkin, president of the federation, and Mrs. William Percy, a leading member, declare that a few words were changed in the publication of one of the federation's resolutions, and this may have left a different and erroneous impression on the public.

The resolution adopted by the federation, respecting the recently organized School Improvement association was as follows:

"Whereas, the executive board extends the cooperation of the city federation to the Atlanta School Improvement association, recently organized, in all that it undertakes for the betterment of the public schools of our city, which has the approval of the board of education, and most cordially invites the association to become a member of the city federation."

The resolution was published as saying: "We hope its efforts will have the approval and co-operation of the board of education."

Another resolution adopted at the same meeting and referring to the schools, is as follows:

"Whereas, the Atlanta City Federation stands for all that is humanitarian and non-political, and

"Whereas, the fact that a child is the most sacred and important trust of both father and mother, and

"Whereas, the fact that home influence and education are the two factors that make for good or for bad citizenship,

"Resolved, that we, the women of the Atlanta City Federation of Women's clubs, approximately 8,000 in number, recognizing that many of our public school buildings are inadequate and unsanitary, and the equipment insufficient, offer our co-operation and pledge our untiring efforts to the board of education in every effort they may make for the betterment of our public schools in Atlanta, and do most earnestly request that they make such repairs and changes as far as possible in the buildings and to insure the health and safety of our children."

Recorder Johnson Releases Man and Gives Him Dollar

Recorder Johnson read his title clear to the "Humanitarian Judge" Saturday afternoon, when he voluntarily dug down in his jeans and fished out a dollar to send a man to Nashville.

R. L. Roland, arraigned in court on the charge of soliciting alms on the street, told the recorder he was trying to beg enough money to get back to Nashville.

"Have you got enough?" asked Judge Johnson.

"All but a dollar."

"Well, here you are; beat it," said the judge, as he handed out a crinkly bill to Roland.

And for the next five minutes the judge was besieged by facetious policemen and court attaches who declared they wanted to take a little trip, but lacked just about one dollar of the wherewithal.

SUCCESS OF CHARITY BAZAR NOW ASSURED

Each Day Will Be Feature and Tickets Are Selling Fast

Saturday's sale of tickets for the big Charity bazar to be held at the auditorium from March 2 to 6 inclusive, indicated that the affair will be a success and that charitable institutions of the city will be netted a handsome sum. The proceeds of the bazar will go to the Home of the Friendless, Home for Incurables and Georgia's Children Home society.

The bazar will offer daily programs of vaudeville, band concerts—all of high class—and booths will be distributed throughout the auditorium at which novelties, necessities and luxuries will be offered to visitors while the program is in progress.

The bazar opens Tuesday, "Governor's day" and Governor Slaton has promised to lend his presence to the occasion. Wednesday will be "Home of the Friendless day;" Thursday, "Home for Incurables;" Friday, "Georgia Children's Home society," and Saturday "Grand Mardi Gras day."

On Grand Mardi Gras day the Atlanta girl who has received the most votes in the popularity contest will be crowned queen with elaborate ceremonies and those next in line in the race will be made maids of honor and also awarded some of the valuable prizes offered by the association.

Belgian Relief Ship Carried Great Load Of Food and Clothes

Milk, pork and beans, macaroni, soap, peas, coffee, sugar, prunes, salt, new, cotton clothes—these and many other products were packed in the hold of the St. Helena when she steamed out of Charleston harbor last week for Belgium.

The St. Helena is the British ship chartered to take to Belgium the donations received throughout Georgia and the Carolinas by the Belgium Relief committees.

Dr. F. E. May, of Atlanta, chairman of the Georgia committee, returned last week from Charleston, where he saw the St. Helena sail. He wants to tell Atlantians and Georgian just what they sent to Belgium. From the local office was sent: groceries, 142 boxes; milk, 2,360 cans; pork and beans, 2,602 cans; lard and cooking fats, 232 cans; macaroni, 36 packages; soap, 1 package; rice, 5,822 pounds; flour, 12,165 pounds; peas, 4,340 pounds; beans, 1,000 pounds; coffee, 350 pounds; sugar, 700 pounds; prunes, 100 pounds; oatmeal, 420 pounds; grits, 580 pounds; tea, 5 pounds; salt, 200 pounds; crackers, 1,800 pounds; new cotton clothes, 850 pounds.

From the state of Georgia, $6,500 in foodstuffs and clothing was sent to Belgium during December; during January and February to date $7,350 worth.

Representatives of the Pathe motion picture company went to Charleston with Dr. May to film the departure of the ship for a picture which will be spread broadcast over the United States to advertise the work for Belgium. Several of the scenes will be taken in Atlanta.

SALE OF GRAND OPERA TICKETS IS ON THIS WEEK

Guarantors Will Be Given the First Chance at Boxes and Season Tickets

The sale of boxes and season tickets for the 1915 season of Metropolitan grand opera in Atlanta begins this week.

The sale for guarantors only will be in room 303 on the third floor of the Third National Bank building, and will begin at 10 a. m. on Wednesday, March 3, when boxes only will be on sale. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week the guarantor's sale of season tickets will take place in the same room, the sale beginning each day at 9 o'clock.

Monday, March 8, at 9 a. m., the public sale of season tickets will begin at the Cable Piano company, and at Phillips & Crew Co., where the sale will continue until March 27.

Dates for the sale of tickets for single performances will be announced later.

The guarantee for the 1915 season of opera has already been over subscribed and every indication points to a 1915 season that will rival those of past years in financial as well as artistic success.

All guarantors are requested by the association to bring their written notices with them or, in case a representative is sent, to give the representative a written notice stating the number of seats desired. In no event will guarantors' seats beside to a person other than a guarantor on a verbal order.

Announce a New and Startling Change of Policy

SINCE STARTING our sensational cut-price cash sale in February we have been flooded with requests from thousands of our best charge and cash customers to operate a cut-price store for cash.

THESE REQUESTS were based upon the fact that the man who pays cash is entitled to a special consideration of a lower price; it costing more than 10% to charge goods.

CUT PRICES FOR THE CASH BUYER

and regular retail prices for all charge purchases

THIS IS A NEW DEPARTURE in the clothing business, but we feel assured that it will be welcomed by every cash spender in Georgia—it's another victory for the almighty dollar—another advancing step in modern merchandising by which we will be able to increase our value-giving beyond all competition.

SEE OUR WINDOWS of new Spring Clothing, Hats, Shoes and Furnishings, and realize what great savings cash makes possible at Daniel's—only standard grades of merchandise; every article guaranteed—your money back if not satisfactory.

What Does Your Mirror Say to You

If Your Face is Not Fair You Are Not Fair to Your Face. Use Stuart's Calcium Wafers and Banish Pimples, etc.

Before beauty can ever be realized it must have a complexion that adds to its lustre, that makes a magnificent face contour radiate an artistic color. The charm of all beauty rests chiefly in the clear skin, the pure red blood, the soft creamlike complexion.

It is an Exquisite Joy to Look in My Mirror Now—Stuart's Calcium Wafers Gave Me Back My Clear Complexion."

Stuart's Calcium Wafers act directly upon the sweat glands of the skin, since their mission is to stimulate the excretory ducts. They do not create perspiration, but cause the skin to breathe out vigorously, thus transforming perspiration, gas, gaseous vapor. The calcium sulphide of which these wafers are composed consumes the germ poisons in the sweat glands and pores, hence the blood makes a new, smooth skin in surprisingly short time.

You will never be ashamed to look at anyone in a mirror, once you use Stuart's Calcium Wafers. Nor will your friends give you that hinting look, as much as to say—for goodness sake, get rid of those pimples.

There is no longer any excuse for anyone to have a face disfigured with skin eruptions, when it is so easy to get rid of them. Simply get a box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers at any drug store and take them according to directions. After a few days you will hardly recognize yourself in the mirror. The change will delight you immensely. All blemishes will disappear.

CREAM FOR CATARRH OPENS UP NOSTRILS

Tells How To Get Quick Relief from Head-Colds. It's Splendid!

In one minute your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh will be gone.

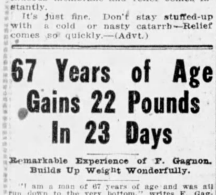

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh—Relief comes so quickly.—(Advt.)

Remarkable Experience of F. Gagnon. Builds Up Weight Wonderfully.

"I am a man of 67 years of age and was all run down to the very bottom," writes F. Gagnon. "I had to quit work. I was so weak. Now, thanks to Sargol, I look like a new man. I gained 22 pounds with 23 days' treatment. I cannot tell you how happy I feel."

FAST "THE PRIME," BUT STOUT, STURDY AND ATHLETIC

After I had taken Sargol for ten or twelve days I could see for myself that I was gaining weight at a rapid rate," writes Homer Ihli. "I gained 9 pounds in 19 days. I never felt better in my life."

"Your Sargol has done wonders for me," states John Celka. "I have gained 21 pounds and look and feel like a new man."

ing for a blockaded port in ignorance of the fact that it has been blockaded has been held not liable to condemnation. A treaty of 1794 between Great Britain and the United States made this specific provision and proclamation issued in Washington declaring blockades during the Civil war follow this theory. It has been the general international rule, it is said, for neutral vessels in ports to be blockaded to be allowed at least fifteen days after the blockade is announced in which to leave those ports without cargo. After that time they are subject to seizure.

If the notification of the Anglo-French blockade of German ports is accepted by the United States government, as in accordance with international law, it is assumed that formal warning will be given American ship owners and shippers in a proclamation by the president. Government officials refused tonight to discuss the matter in the absence of official confirmation of the British plan. It was made clear, however, that such notice, when received, would be subjected to rigorous inspection as to its conformity with international precedent.

It is noted here that the London dispatch does not specifically designate the proposed British action as a "blockade," and if the formal announcement observes the same distinction in terms, new problems may arise.

In a general way the British action might then be similar to the German war zone declaration, with the exception that it gives assurances for the lives of those aboard vessels halted. The British plan apparently is even more far reaching than the German, however, since "all shipping to and from Germany and her allies" is aimed at according to the London official view as the object of interference, neutral vessels being endangered only because of the difficulty in ascertaining their nationality in the prescribed zones.

No comment was obtainable on this phase of the problem, but it is assumed those will be among the considerations weighed by Washington officials in determining upon any course of action when the formal notification of Great Britain intention is received.

Would Have England Stop Practices Inimical to U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—A resolution demanding that Great Britain discontinue "all unlawful acts and practices" which, it declares, are inimical to the peace and safety of the United States, was introduced in the house today by Representative Dietrick, of Massachusetts. The resolution would direct the president to "demand of Great Britain" notice for the cessation of such acts. It was referred to the committee on foreign affairs.

Liverpool Congested With Ships Waiting in Port

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 15.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Never in the history of this port has the congestion of shipping been so great, nor have the Liverpool warehouses ever been so crammed with foodstuffs as at present. Importers believe that even should the German submarine blockade prove effective there is enough food now stored here to feed the country a year.

Perhaps no city in England bears less trace of the war than Liverpool. No military or naval activity than Liverpool. No military removed from the war of Zeppelins, it is brilliantly lighted at night and gay by comparison with London. Liverpool is not a naval base. Activity along its miles of docks is feverish, because in spite of the usually ample dock facilities, at least 30 heavily laden steamers are tied up.

Clyde Line Strikers Ordered to Return to Work

GLASGOW, Scotland, Feb. 27.—Via London.—The peremptory order of the government yesterday for the resumption of work on Monday by the ship yard engineers at the Clyde yards, on strike for a wage increase has produced speedy results. Strikers committees decided today to advise the men to return to work immediately.

Two Small Craft Sunk by German Converted Cruiser

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Lloyd's correspondent at La Concepcion, Chile, sends this dispatch:

"The steamer Skerries reports that the British bark Kidalmon and the French bark Jean were sunk by the German converted cruiser Prinz Eitel Fredrich in December. The crews are at Easter Island and have refused to be taken off."

Bellegerent Powers Silent on Removal of Mines

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—No word came from either Great Britain or Germany today concerning their attitude on the American government's proposals for the removal of mines, the abandonment of submarine warfare on merchant ships and the shipment of foodstuffs for the civilian population of belligerents.

Both sides were understood still to be considering the American administration's suggestions. Replies were not expected for two or three days. From the press reports of England's plans for reprisals, decided on before the American proposals arrived, officials did not draw much encouragement for the success of their plan. They are hopeful, however, that if an acceptance of all the proposals is not possible now, there at least will be an acquiescence by all the belligerents in the suggestion that mines be removed from the high seas except those directly guarding the coast defenses and harbors.

Inquiry as to the form of the Washington government's latest diplomatic correspondence with the belligerents over the war zone problems brought the information from reliable sources today that the communication sent identically to Great Britain and Germany was of an informal character with a suggestion of three articles which might be the basis for a "modus vivendi," tentatively known among diplomatic papers as an exchange of notes and regarded as a temporary agreement designed to cover an emergency situation until the points at issue usually can be further deliberated upon.

The suggested articles which might become the "modus vivendi," cover a plan, the details of which are not worked out in the notes for the supervision by agencies certified to by the United States government of the distribution of imported foodstuffs to the civilian population of belligerents. The other two articles deal with the removal floating mines and the abandonment of submarine attacks on merchant vessels. The text is comparative-ly brief.

German Budget Calls for $2,510,500,000

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—Via London, Feb. 27.—The federal council adopted today the finance ministry's estimates, including 10,042,000,000 marks ($2,510,500,000) for extraordinary expenditures. This amount is for war on the war. The estimate of ordinary expenditures is 3,325,000,000 marks ($330,750,000).

Almost all the amount to be devoted to war will be raised by loans.

No redemption of war loans is provided for, as methods for such redemption can only be decided upon after the war. The treasury bonds credit is fixed at 1,000,000,000 marks ($250,000,000).

Funds to provide for those killed in the war amounted at the beginning of February to 41,938,900 marks. The armament levy is estimated at 950,000,000 marks, of which it is expected, two installments of 320,000,000 marks will be paid.

No separate colonial estimates will be presented as the war has interrupted all communication with the colonies.

The increase in revenue in the ordinary budget is estimated at 25,906,450 marks and the increased expenditures at 180,269,000 marks.

SUNDAY'S WAR NEWS IN BRIEF

The great allied fleet of British and French warships has destroyed the forts at the entrance to the Dardanelles. The first lines of mines guarding the strait have been swept away, battleships have proceeded up the narrow stretch of water and now engaged in bombarding the inner fortifications.

The former German steamer Dacia, now under the American flag, laden with cotton for Germany, has been taken by a French cruiser, in the English channel and diverted to a French port. Speculation, which has been rife, regarding the whereabouts of the Dacia and what action the allies intended to take, has now temporarily been set at rest.

Neutral countries have been advised by Great Britain and her allies that they hold themselves at liberty to stop all shipping to and from Germany and to and from the countries allied with Germany. This action will be publicly announced next week and it is explained that it is due to the German submarine attacks. The terms of the declaration are general, no specific articles of commerce being mentioned.

Russia, according to official announcement from Petrograd, has recaptured the important city of Przasnyaz, north of Warsaw, which a few days ago it was thought Germany would use as a base for operations against the Polish capital. The official Russian statement speaks of important operations in this territory, but here, it is averred, the Russian offensive has been vigorously pursued with the German retreat "spreading" constantly and constantly widening front.

In the west the French have made progress in the neighborhood of Mesnil-les-Hurlus, in the Champagne district, where about a third of a mile of German trenches have fallen into their hands.

It is understood that the allied fleet now pounding at the Dardanelles is under instructions to penetrate into the Sea of Marmora and thence to Constantinople. Twenty warships are believed to be engaged in the shelling operations. While advices declare that a panic prevails at Constantinople.

The German federal council has adopted the preliminary budget estimates, which include $2,510,500,000 for extraordinary expenditures. This amount is for war. Almost all of this amount will be raised by loans. The estimate of ordinary expenditures is $330,750,000.

Admiral von Pohl, chief of the German admiralty staff, has been selected as successor to Admiral von Ingenohl.

PROPOSE TO MEDIATE WITHOUT AN ARMISTICE

Emergency Peace Federation Would Submit Proposal to Warring Nations

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—A conference of the neutral world powers to sit while the war continues and submit to the warring nations without the necessity the of an armistice was proposed today at the national conference of the Emergency Peace Federation by John A. Aylward, representing the Wisconsin Peace society. The plan is known as the Wisconsin peace plan.

Miss Jane Addams, chairman of the executive committee of the Federation, presided. Under the Wisconsin plan the proposition, based on the principle that all navies, armaments and keys of the seas be neutralized and placed in the hands of a peace league, and that territorial disputes be settled by some method based on recognition of nationalities, would be presented to the belligerents by the neutral conference. Each warring nation would be asked to adopt the proposition, provided at the others adopted it.

Edward A. Filene, of Boston, vice president of the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce in 1912, held that the one practical path to peace lies indirectly in influencing the people of the warring nations through their countrymen in the United States.

"It is impossible," he said, "to talk either of peace or terms of peace, in the warring countries at present. We have, however, an opportunity to influence the masses in these countries indirectly through the millions of their co-nationalists in this country."

Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, of Boston, secretary of the Woman's Peace party, declared America's duty in the present crisis to avoid war and to prepare preparations for war. She urged the calling of a conference of neutral nations to educate the public on the principles of world organization. "Of the eight nations which own nine-tenths of the world's armaments, we alone are free to think and lead," she said. "The world's permanent peace requires no change of human nature—only the same co-operation of Great Britain, the United States, Germany and Russia."

An address prepared by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York, was read at the conference. Rabbi Wise was not present.

2,600 soldiers; our captures are constantly increasing. Our cavalry continues in pursuit of the retiring Germans.

"There has been no change on the left bank of the Vistula, on the Dunajec river or in the Carpathians.

"In eastern Galicia in the Bosnatow districts we have repulsed desperate Austrian attacks and captured in the last five days nineteen officers and 1,592 soldiers, taking also five machine guns."

Russians Claim Capture of 186,000 of Their Foes

PETROGRAD, Via London, Feb. 28.—An official statement describes Russian feats in the recent fighting:

"As a German battery southeast of Przasnyaz was impeding our offensive," says the statement, "Captain Gourdoff sent out several armored automobiles under fire in the direction of the hostile battery, and at a distance of twenty yards they killed all the gunners. Captain Gourdoff was killed at the very moment his valor had turned the battle in our favor.

"Our troops captured Przasnyaz after a day of extremely hard fighting. The booty taken was so great that up to the present it has been impossible to estimate the exact amount.

"The garrison of Ossometz sortied and captured several German officers engaged in making observations in the outskirts of the town.

"Since the beginning of the war General Brussiloff's army has captured 1,900 officers and 186,000 soldiers."

French Take 500 Metres of German's Trenches

PARIS, Via London, Feb. 27.—The following official communication was issued by the war office tonight:

"In the dunes near Lombaertzyde, one of our patrols captured a German trench, killed the occupants and took a machine gun.

"In Champagne our progress of Friday evening to the north of Mesnil-les-Hurlus has made us masters of five hundred metres of German trenches, where we made about one hundred prisoners and captured two machine guns and one quick firer. This attack was brilliantly carried out with the bayonet.

"A strong German counter attack was repulsed during the course of Friday night. Today we made fresh progress to the west of Forthes and to the north of Beausejour, in Lorraine at Laneuville, near the village of Parroy, a German attack was repulsed."

General Situation in Carpathians Unchanged

(By Associated Press.)

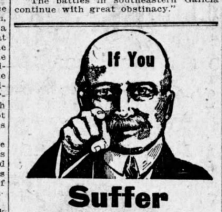

VIENNA (via London), Feb. 27.—The following official communication was given out here tonight:

"At some points on the Polish-Galician frontier there have been lively artillery duels.

"The general situation in the Carpathians is unchanged. There has been vigorous fighting in the Sector of Toukholka and Wiszkow.

"A fresh attack on our position in the Uper valley was repulsed with heavy loss to the enemy, after bitter fighting at close quarters. Thereupon, finding regiment left on our positions 300 dead and at least an equal number of wounded. Seven officers and 1,000 men of the regiment were taken prisoners, unwounded.

Relief for Catarrh Sufferers Now FREE

How the Remedy for Catarrh Was Discovered.

By the new method the nose and throat are treated by an effective local remedy applied directly to the affected membranes.

The Elixir, taken into the stomach, has a direct influence upon the mucous membranes of the throat and lungs and cures the disease by removing the cause.

THIS terrible disease has raged unchecked for years simply because symptoms have been treated while the cause of the trouble has been left to circulate in the blood, and bring the disease back as fast as local treatments could relieve it.

C. E. Gauss, who experimented for years on a treatment for Catarrh, found that after perfecting a balm that relieved the nose and throat troubles quickly, he could not prevent the trouble beginning all over again.

On test cases, he could completely remove all signs of Catarrh from nose and throat, but in a few weeks they were back.

Careful experiments and investigations have shown that as the troubles were expelled from the nose and throat, the real cause of the disease was overlooked and in a short time the Catarrh would be worse than ever. Mr. Gauss has gone way ahead of the ordinary methods of treatment and has provided a remedy that

Removes the Cause

and Immediately Gives Relief to the Nose and Throat

Reese Jones, of Scranton, Penn., says that after trying many other treatments, he used this new method and—"My nose is now entirely clear and free and I am not bothered by the disease any more. The New Combined Treatment is worth its weight in gold."

Temporary relief from catarrh may be obtained in other ways, but the New Combined Treatment must invariably be accepted for permanent results.

Sarah J. Cape, Mount Pella, Tenn., says, "I suffered the pains and distress of catarrh for thirteen years and needless to state, tried nearly every method. But by your new method I was completely cured and you cannot imagine the joy that has come over me."

Trial Treatment FREE

This new method is so important to the welfare of humanity that we will send a trial package free from any form of catarrh, that the opportunity to actually test it and prove its results, will be gladly extended without cost or obligation.

A large trial treatment, with complete, minute directions, will be sent free to any catarrh-sufferer.

Send no money, take no risks, make no promises. Simply clip, sign and mail the coupon and the test package of the New Combined Treatment will be sent, fully prepaid, together with the valuable book on Catarrh.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked hair delightfully beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair, but nothing like the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and nobody can match a darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly, that just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, and by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—(Advt.)

Give Your Blood The Vital Spark

Drive Out Impurities and Make the Skin Smooth and Clear.

Poisons in the blood, so undermine the health as to leave the system in a low state of resistance. But use S. S. S. for a brief time and you feel a new vim and spark of blood vigor. It sweeps its way all through the body, dislodges rheumatism, relieves catarrhal conditions, clears the throat and bronchial tubes, dries up all skin eruptions, enables the kidneys, liver, bladder and lungs to work promptly and effectively in carrying impurities out of the circulation. S. S. S. is the best known medicine for the blood and has the confidence of a host of people. They know it is made of roots, herbs, barks and experience has shown that it accomplishes all that was ever expected of mercury, iodide of potash, arsenic and of other character minerals.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. today at any druggist. Read the important folder wrapped around the bottle. It tells of the work being done by the famous medical department, with aids and helps that have proven of wonderful value to those suffering with blood disease. For a special book on the subject written by an expert, address The Swift Specific Co., 57 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. For nearly half a century S. S. S. has been the safeguard of a myriad of people who are living examples of what wonders can be accomplished by this famous blood purifier. Get a bottle today, but refuse all substitutes.

STEGLER STANDS READY TO IMPLICATE OTHERS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

NEW YORK, March 27.—Richard P. Stegler, the German reservist, arrested on the charge of fraudulently obtaining an American passport, will be instructed by his lawyer to plead guilty in case he is indicted for conspiracy, according to Charles H. Griffiths, the lawyer, and, as a witness for the government, Stegler, it is thought, will implicate others in the conspiracy charge.

Mrs. Annetta Pope Stegler, the Atlanta wife of the reservist, is using every effort to get the Washington authorities to free her husband. She claims Captain Boy-Ed, a German naval attache at Washington, led Stegler into the project.

Stegler stands ready, his attorney says, to the stand as a government witness in any action the federal authorities might take against other persons possibly involved in the alleged conspiracy.

"All information in this case in my possession or which I may be able to secure," said Mr. Griffiths, "will be turned over to the government for such disposition as they desire to make use of it. And all statements made by Stegler will be made under oath by him in any proceedings which the government may desire to institute. If any proceedings should be started against any of the persons whom Stegler implicates, Stegler would desire to become a witness for the government."

That Captain Boy-Ed, naval attache of the German embassy, had called Stegler a traitor to Germany because he had refused to go to England as a spy, was the statement which Mr. Griffiths said Stegler made to him today in the Tombs. Stegler declared, according to his attorney, that when he insisted to the naval attache that if he was to undertake the mission, he must have a written guarantee that his life would be financially provided for, Captain Boy-Ed had said: "You are mercenary?" and that when he refused to go: "You are a traitor to your country."

"I told him," Stegler was quoted as saying, "that I had taken out my first papers as an American citizen."

GREAT BRITAIN'S LOSS IN OFFICERS IS 4,623

1,394 Killed, 2,629 Wounded and 690 Reported Missing

LONDON, Feb. 16.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—From January 25 to February 16—21 days—the British forces in France and Belgium lost 84 officers killed and 151 wounded, while 25 were reported missing.

This information is conveyed in the official officers' casualty list issued today. The Cold Stream guards lost five officers killed and five wounded in these three weeks.

Great Britain since the begining of the war has lost 1,394 officers killed and 2,629 wounded while 690 have been reported missing.

U. S. WAR CORRESPONDENT TO VISIT BRITISH FRONT

War Office Permits Six Newspaper Men to View Fighting

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Six newspaper correspondents are to leave London next Monday for the British front. They are going under auspices of the British war office. Among them is one American.

This will be the first time newspaper men have been permitted to visit the British lines. The same six men went to the French lines some weeks ago.

There are in all eighteen correspondents credited to the British war office. They will go to the front in detachments of six each, the second group starting when the first returns.

Buy Diamonds That Are Worth While

Our interests and the interests of our customers are identical. We do not mean by this merely that it is good business to render good service.

We invest heavily in diamonds, and naturally take care that they are carefully and efficiently graded, weighed and priced. This we do ourselves, as diamond specialists.

Diamonds carefully bought are an investment. They are particularly safe, marketable and appreciate in intrinsic value. They are not subject to manipulation or depreciation.

Our diamonds are marked in plain figures; nothing is hidden. If a stone is not perfect, the shape or cutting not correct, or if it is "off color" it is so marked.

Every diamond is absolutely guaranteed to be just what we sell it for, and you are therefore fully protected, as it is graded and classed to its real intrinsic value.

We are never too busy to give you courteous attention, whether you are ready to buy or merely seek information.

WOMEN SEEK WORK FOR WOMEN; MONEY BADLY NEEDED, TOO

Mrs. Beaumont Davison Chairman of Movement to Give Aid to Unemployed--$1,000 in Cash Is Asked

A movement to give aid to a large number of unemployed women in Atlanta has been started by a group of prominent women who have already taken preliminary steps toward this end.

Mrs. Beaumont Davison has been made chairman of the organizing committee, the first work of which is to secure the necessary money to establish a bureau of information; to create, through active committees, work which can be put into the hands of women, and to establish a temporary workshop where women out of employment can be given work which will afford them a living wage.

"There are 250 young women on the waiting list of the employment bureau of the Young Women's Christian association, and we are finding employment for them as fast as we can," said Mrs. William Witham, representing the Young Women's Christian association, "and we are willing to give the benefit of our organized bureau to the movement to help the thousands still unemployed."

WORK IS WHAT'S NEEDED.

"What we need is work for the women to do," said Mrs. Emily McDougald; "not only for the trained worker, but also for the poor woman who may not be skilled but who nevertheless must live. For this needy class the workshop temporarily seems to be the only solution.

"I am willing to do anything in the way of work for these women, for I hope to know the situation is a critical one, that few women who have not actually gone among the unemployed women know of. They need work at once, and I have found a willingness on the part of many women to help develop this work for them, if approached," said Mrs. Davidson.

"We cannot hope to accomplish anything," urged Mrs. A. P. Coles, "without a sum of money with which to begin the proposed movement. Besides the place where the workshop could be opened, we must have materials to put into the hands of the women to work with. It is an emergency that calls for the sympathy and aid of all the women in Atlanta and I believe that they will aid if called upon."

Mrs. Coles then made a motion to make an appeal through the Sunday papers, to ask that a beginning be made by 1,000 women being asked to give a dollar each toward helping that 4,000 unemployed women. The money may be sent to Mrs. Beaumont Davison, the chairman, at her office, on the fourth floor at 30 West Alabama street. She will be there from 10 to 5 o'clock Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next.

WANTED---

One thousand women to give $1 each to the movement started to help the 4,000 unemployed women registered in Atlanta. Though the employment bureau of the Associated Charities, and that of the Young Women's Christian association, are agencies actively at work continuously at work in this direction, there is need in the present emergency for a well-defined movement to furnish work for women; to establish a bureau where the employer and employe can come together; the final purpose to establish temporary work shop where women can earn a living wage, and find a market for their wares. The movement, depends upon the co-operation of the women of Atlanta in establishing the basic sum upon which to start the work.

Georgia State Bonds.

Large banking houses and investment companies throughout America are manifesting much interest in the forthcoming sale of three million, five hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars worth of State of Georgia refunding bonds, bids for which will be received at the Governor's office up to noon, March the fifteenth. Though the State reserves the privilege of rejecting any or all bids, it now seems that satisfactory offers sufficient to dispose of the entire issue will be made. The character of Georgia's State bonds is so assured, the safeguards about them are so ample, and the resources behind them so abundant that they rank among the world's highest securities and are prized by experienced investors.

The State authorities are especially desirous, however, that the greater portion of this issue be purchased by Georgia citizens and Georgia interests, and to that end the denominations of the bonds will be five hundred dollars and one thousand dollars, at the buyer's option. As a matter of State pride and self interest, our people will do well to bid in a liberal share of their own Commonwealth's securities.

In Georgia, these bonds are exempt from every form of taxation, and in all States they are exempt from the federal income tax. Bids may be submitted on a basis of four per cent, four and a quarter per cent or four and a half per cent interest, and separate proposals at any of those rates may be offered. No bids for less than par will be considered, and only enough bonds to retire the three million, five hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars will be sold. The bonds will mature as follows: Two hundred thousand dollars on July the first, 1935, and two hundred thousand dollars each year thereafter up to and including July the first, 1944, with one million, five hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars' worth maturing on July the first, 1945. Interest will be payable semi-annually in Atlanta or New York.

There could be no broader or sounder security than that which stands behind State of Georgia bonds. The State's entire property, including the Western and Atlantic railroad, is pledged for their payment, and the Constitutional safegards with which they are hedged about are as adamant. The Western and Atlantic railroad is worth from two to three times more than the State's entire bonded indebtedness. Further, the State is required to set aside each year one hundred thousand dollars to be applied exclusively to its bonded debt.

These and many other resources make this State's bonds as secure as those of the national Government. They will appeal to conservative investors everywhere. They ought to appeal with peculiar force to Georgia investors; for, as Governor Slaton has pointed out, their earning value will mean most to Georgia, if they are held by citizens of this State.

Mexico has been so quiet of late that one becomes suspicious of a move on the part of the syndicated presidents to dissolve and allow the people to solve the problem.

The death of a motion picture actor who was shot in a battle scene portrayed in California, leads to the interesting speculation as to whether it was a European battle, and, if so, how it came to wander so far from home.

Mills for Food Crops.

"The grain grown in South Carolina should be put in proper shape to be consumed in South Carolina. All through this State, especially in the Pee Dee section and north thereof, are many old mill points and water mills that formerly ground out corn and wheat and that could be used today. There is nothing better than home-ground grits; the imported lacks the flavor of the home-ground. We are, therefore, urging our people to consume home products, and to use the surplus in feeding hogs and cattle. Splendid co-operative efforts have been put forth in South Carolina by commercial bodies and the State agricultural department in carrying on the educational campaign, which is certain to produce beneficial results."

Thus the secretary of the Charleston chamber of commerce describes in a letter to the Manufacturers' Record the plans of an alert people to solve the problems and to grasp the opportunities which now confront the entire South. Especially interesting to Georgia is his reference to the need of mills for handling grain in the territory where it is raised.

Last autumn Georgia farmers planted one hundred and seventy thousand more acres of wheat than in the same season of 1913—an increase of one hundred and eighteen per cent. That is a cheering fact, but if all the possibilities it implies are to be enjoyed, means for turning this wheat into flour and for marketing it must be provided. So, too, of other grains and of food crops generally.

The State Chamber of Commerce, in co-operation with local trade bodies and enterprising individuals, is doing substantial work in this regard. It seems, indeed, that there will be no lack of home markets for Georgia foodstuffs; certainly there will not be, if the present campaign is carried duly forward. The prospect warrants every farmer in devoting his best energy to food crops and in producing at least enough food staples to supply his own needs.

The fact that the generals in the European war are thirty miles behind the firing doesn't seem to interfere with the activities of the men directly at the front.

If the Allies Get the Dardanelles

If the French and British fleet now hammering at the doors of Dardanelles pierces that waterway, reaches the Sea of Marmora and reduces Constantinople, the Allies will have won a far-reaching and, perhaps, decisive victory. As an immediate result of that achievement, Turkey would be rendered powerless, so that the Russian armies in the Caucasus and the British forces in Egypt could be released for service on European fields. Furthermore, once in control of Constantinople, the Allies could hasten developments in the Balkans; they could drive terms with Bulgaria and open a way for Rumania to enter upon its long expected march against Austria. It is likely, too, that Italy, seeing the drift of events and anxious for her interests, would be constrained to join the ascendant Powers. Russia's vast stores of grain, now awaiting shipment on the shores of the Black Sea, would become available for France and Great Britain. The sway of the Allies would be widened and strengthened, while the Teutonic empires would be more than ever isolated.

Both from a strategic and commercial point of view, the strait known as the Dardanelles, so called from the two castles which fortify its narrowest part, is one of the world's most important waterways. Forty-four miles long and varying in width from four miles to less than one mile, it unites the Aegean with the Sea of Marmora, which in turn is connected by the Bosporus with the Black Sea. It was the Dardanelles, known anciently as the Hellespont, that Xerxes ordered whipped when its currents swept away the bridge of boats by which he purposed to reach the Grecian shore. It was across the Dardanelles, too, that Alexander the Great led his army to the conquest of the East. Century after century, this strait was a center of world struggles, until finally in 1356 the Turks pressed over the boundary and gained a grip which they held. Of the Dardanelles subsequent history, a recent writer says:

"No longer a frontier of Eastern and Western conflicts, it nevertheless preserved its political importance, an importance derived first, from Turkish control of Mediterranean and Black Sea commerce, and, later, from the complex diplomatic game in which the great Powers of Europe sought to balance themselves, one against the other, and each to make that balance contribute to its own advantage. Russia's only ports on warm water were in her Black Sea territory. Conventions of the Powers, however, held her shut up fast within the inland sea. For a century these conventions stood between Russia and her ambitions to have an outlet on the Mediterranean.

"By a five Power treaty in 1841 it was arranged that no ship of war of any nation other than the Otterman should pass the Dardanelles without express permission of the Porte. The closing of the strait was reaffirmed at London in 1871 and at Berlin in 1878. Even merchant vessels were obliged to have passes, which they were required to show to the authorities at the narrows. Vessels might pass through only during the daytime, yet they were required to pay a small lighthouse fee. When Turkey threw in her lot with Germany and Austria the Dardanelles became closed to commerce."

Dispatches indicate that the bombardment of the French and British fleet thus far has been so effective that warships of the allies have pierced the entrance. The task of the allies is formidable, however, and will require adroit and persistent action. If it is successful it will be worth such sacrifices as it may demand.

If a man is miserable it is usually because he thinks he is.

Some men reach the top through their own shrewdness and some through the stupidity of others.

The air is full of liquor tidings. Now comes France with a proposal to limit the number of new bars. If this thing keeps up, the state of Maine will be the only place where a man can get a drink.

New Light on Iceland.

Iceland is not commonly regarded as a tourist resort, or a land of letters and art. Nevertheless, it is both these, according to Mr. Gudmundur Magnusson, who contributes an engaging article on this subject to the current number of the American-Scandinavian Review; and Mr. Magnusson knows, for he is an Icelander himself. Of the natural beauty of his native island, he writes:

"The scenery combines a wild grandeur with ingratiating charm in an infinite variety of characteristic landscapes. The mountain formations are majestic and powerful in outline, showing traces of the volcanic forces which are still active in some places. The large cupola-shaped mountains, which rise like Oriental temples from the ocean or the level plain, their tops covered with perpetual snow, are very impressive. To this must be added a wealth of mighty and beautiful waterfalls, great lakes, steaming springs, and craters still warm. The view is usually wide and open, and the play of colors fascinating, especially in the fair, mild summer nights. The air is clear, healthy, and invigorating, streaming alternately from the wide sea and from the snow-covered mountains. This natural beauty attracts many tourists to the country, and large ocean steamers, filled with travelers, visit it several times each summer. Owing to the lack of transportation facilities, most of them must be content with seeing the coasts. When we get railroads, modern hotels and other conveniences, Iceland will, no doubt, become a popular tourist country."

Though Iceland lies north of the southern boundary of the Arctic ice region, the Gulf Stream, which encircles the country, buffets back the drift-ice and softens the island's climate. The mean temperature in 1912, we are told, was thirty-nine and four-tenths degrees Fahrenheit, and forty-eight and nine-tenths degrees for the four summer months. This record, it should be noted applies to the southern districts, over which masses of vapor from the Atlantic are continually sweeping.

The country's chief industries are farming and fishing, the people being divided about half and half between these pursuits. Stock raising is the farmers' main source of income. Potatoes and cabbage are raised extensively for home use. The climate is not suited to grain, but in many regions the pasturage is excellent. The production of butter and other dairy products has increased greatly in recent years, and are now finding a profitable market in the British Isles. Icelandic horses also have become an important export.

Two-thirds of the country's wealth is produced by its fisheries. A century ago, it is said, Iceland did not possess a decked vessel, but now fishing is carried on by nearly two hundred large decked vessels, and twenty-three steamers, besides a number of row boats and motor boats. "Most of the fish is salted and dried and then sent to the Mediterranean countries; but some of the steamers sell it fresh to England."

Iceland's most urgent need is facilities of transportation. On this point, Mr. Magnusson says:

"With a population of 87,000, scattered over a mountainous and watery area of 100,000 square kilometers, it may be readily understood that to relieve this want has been beyond the strength of the Icelanders. Practically the entire traffic is carried on by sea, with the aid of Danish, Norwegian and to some extent of Icelandic steamers. Small trading-posts have been built along the entire coast line, and some of these have grown to cities of a few thousand inhabitants.

"The fact that the route of traffic lies outside of the country instead of within it has had the fatal effect of drawing the population from the fertile lands of the interior down to the barren coast, where life pulsates more rapidly, but where the inhabitants easily sink into poverty and misery, while the grassy plains of the upland are lying fallow. A railroad would effect a radical change; trading-posts would be built along the main route, and from them the surrounding land would be brought under cultivation in ever-increasing circles, and thus form a more solid basis for the wealth of the country. The question of railroads is becoming more and more urgent."

Despite its obstacles and limitations, Iceland has moved steadily forward, since it was given control of its own affairs some forty years ago. Within that time, the national income has multiplied a hundredfold and large improvements, such as the building of roads, bridges and telegraph lines, have been made. To quote again: "Trade and transportation have doubled. The growth of general prosperity among the people in the country and the towns alike is evidenced by the fact that more than thirty savings banks have been established, all of them having large deposits."

In Reykjavik the island's largest town, stands a statue of the great Danish sculptor, Thorvaldsen, who was the son of an Icelandic woodcarver. That memorial, erected by the people is significant of the little nation's spirit. Mr. Magnusson observes that Icelandic literature which bloomed so richly in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries has never died.

"Poetry," he says, "has flourished in all times, and there is hardly any period of our history which is not represented by fairly good skalds. Last year we celebrated the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of the poet Hallgrimur Pjetursson. He was the greatest and most spiritual hymn-writer that Iceland has produced, and his memory was honored by giving services in all the churches of Iceland on the first Sunday in Lent.

"It is in the course of the last century, however, that the literature of Iceland has bloomed as never before. A very considerable literary activity in all fields has grown up in a comparatively short time, and has sufficed to carry the name of Iceland far out over the great ocean which surrounds the island.

"Hitherto all our higher intellectual life has been nourished from the Danish university, but on June 17, 1911, the centenary of the birth of Iceland's great champion of liberty, Jon Sigurdsson, an Icelandic university was established in Reykjavik. This institution is yet in its infancy and has not even a roof over its head, but in the future it will surely before a firm center for the intellectual life of Iceland and, perhaps, also an important link in the educational development of the North."

Iceland was in the stormy path of the Vikings who discovered Greenland, and thence made their way to the northeastern shore of America centuries before the voyage of Columbus. Lying so far out of the course of transatlantic steamship lines, the island has been almost forgotten by the world. It is especially interesting, therefore, to learn that it is a land of distinctive charm and promise.

Public opinion is never tongue tied.

To have a good time is easy if you have a vivid imagination.

FEDERAL DETECTIVE BUREAUS

III.---Customs Agents

By Frederic J. Haskin

THAT a cordon of watchfulness may be thrown around every inch of the borderland of the United States to prevent goods coming in without the payment of duty, requires the development of an extensive organization, and a large force of men. The special agents of the customs service have this work in hand. It is only one of their duties, but by far the most interesting. They handle also that infinite detail which has to do with the valuation of merchandise. They watch vigilantly the importers of the nation, so that the government will not be defrauded by under-valuation, and this work borders upon that of the detective. Finally, they spread the net that makes the calling of the smuggler a precarious one.

This does not necessarily mean that they watch all merchandise that crosses the borders, and depend upon catching violators in the act. The web is vastly more complicated. It is so contensive that it is dangerous for any individual to sell imported goods below the normal price at any point in the United States without arousing suspicion. It reaches so far that valuable, dutiable goods may not be bought at any point in the world without a fair chance of the customs agents of the United States becoming aware of it.

Getting goods past the inspectors at the ports is at times possible. There is the case of the traveler abroad who mailed a foreign magazine to an accomplice in this country. It would have reached its destination, but for the fact that the wrapper became torn and a postal clerk decided to put on another. Not being in a hurry he turned the leaves of the magazine. In the center of it he found a space cut out and filled with valuable gems.

There was another case of a millionaire merchant who, returning from Europe, brought a great quantity of jewelry and succeeded in getting it into this country. To thus defraud the government is regarded as something of a joke by the average amateur smuggler. He always talks of it. The government has many ears and soon picks up a bit of information which leads to an investigation. In this case it was the merchant's partner who gave the government the tip. The partner got tired of the swaggering and boastfulness of the man of the jewelry. He was hailed before the department at Washington and assessed duty and fines amounting to $26,000.

Now, if the jewelry in either of these cases had found its way into market, there would have been a strong probability of its discovery. The individual who offers such jewelry to a dealer at a price less than the normal, places himself under suspicion. If a dealer buys it, and sells it to a customer for a smaller price than that for which it can be bought from a competitor, the customer is likely to tell the other dealer, and that individual will know that, without some irregularity, the price in question could not have yielded a profit. He suggests his suspicions to a representative of the government. So does smuggled goods usually sound its own alarm.

But the more important cases are those of imports on a gigantic scale, when a little juggling means large amounts lost to the government. The sugar cases in New York were the greatest of these. The manner in which another sugar port fell under suspicion, and was shown corrupt, is simpler and more readily illustrative.

A special agent was investigating this port on suspicion. He did not know that there was anything wrong, nor had he an idea how frauds were being perpetrated. He knew that the sugar samplers were the men who would most easily go wrong, and began by watching them. He loafed about the docks, ate where these men ate, drank in their saloons, became acquainted with them, drifted into a position of a boon companion of some of them. The readiest indication of corruption in men in positions of trust is the possession of more money than their work should yield them. None of these men seemed to have much money. He learned, however, that their work for the government lasted for but seven months in the year, and that they must depend on the refiners for employment the remaining five months. This employment, one of them indicated, depended on whether they did the right thing by the refiners. Here was indicated a motive for incorrect sampling.

If sugar sampled 96 to 98 per cent pure, the duty on it was a half cent higher than it if sampled 92 per cent, so the refiners wanted it to appear to be of the lower grade. The special agent, by observation and through the confidences of the samplers, learned the methods by which the low grade tests were being obtained. Wet sugar, having more water in it, would give the low sample. So the sampler would always run his hollow tube into the wet side of the sack. A few drops of sweat from his brow would materially affect a small sample. He was even seen to spit in a sample. Thus was he able to keep down the grade of the sugar upon which the duty was paid, and thus was a specific loss of $117,000 at this port recovered by the government.

The "sleeper trunk" fraud in New York was made possible through the corruption of government agents. Thirty-six fashionable dressmakers were involved. They would purchase gowns in Paris and pack them in trunks such as travelers use. These were turned over to a shipping agent in Paris, who had been corrupted. From his lists of travelers who had recently returned to America he would select names and to them he would send the trunks of gowns as "left baggage." When these trunks arrived in New York the individuals to whom the names really belonged would not call for them, as they were expecting no baggage. They would remain around the steamship baggage rooms for a while and would be set aside as "sleepers," a name applied to uncalled-for baggage. It was here that a corrupted American inspector came in. He was paid handsomely to mark these trunks "inspected." Finally, an expressman would appear with a check and claim the trunk, this check having been sent on from Paris. Thus would the gowns reach the dressmakers without the payment of duty.

But two of the dressmakers quarreled. One of them, thus angered at another, wrote to the customs officials about the "sleeper trunk" scheme. The thirty-six were arrested and paid fines ranging from $1,500 to $5,000 each.

Americans who visit Canada are sorely tempted to purchase fur overcoats. These may be bought much cheaper than at home. But there is the possibility, even probability, that the purchaser will be held up on the border and forced to pay duty. The fear of this often prevents his making the purchase.

An enterprising Canadian dealer found that it would be possible for him to make many sales if he would guarantee that the duty need not be paid. He found a way to sell coats under these conditions. To be sure, it necessitated his going into the lumber business on the American side, but that was simple. To his lumber yard he shipped large amounts of the materials there sold, and in each shipment were hidden the overcoats he had disposed of to Americans. Having them thus on the American side, he would take them to the express office and they would go forward. All worked well until the volume of business done by a small express office attracted the attention and aroused the suspicion of a customs agent. It was then easy to get to the bottom of the smuggling scheme. The overcoats that had already been shipped to Americans were traced, and their recipients were forced to pay the duty. On this score $10,000 was collected in Chicago alone.

The profit that may be made by selling opium upon which no duty has been paid results in some of the most ingenious smuggling schemes that are anywhere hatched for the deception of the customs official. Ships arriving at Pacific ports from the Orient call forth most careful searching and unrelaxing vigilance. The inspectors, for instance, once found hermetically sealed in cans and floating in the water tank from which the passengers of a steamer drank, enough opium to have put all San Francisco to sleep. On another occasion, a pipe which seemed to be one of the water mains of the ship, was found to be a conduit full of opium. A pound of this drug, outside the United States, may be purchased for $5, while the prevailing price within its borders is $27.50 or thereabouts. There is consequently a handsome profit for the smuggler.

ON MEETING THE SCHOOLMASTER

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

THE other day a schoolmaster showed me a list of questions he put to his pupils to test their general information. It occurred to me that such a list might be diverting for the public at large.

Read these questions at the family dinner table tonight, or at your club meeting, and see how they are answered. It is not exactly the school teachers' list, but it was suggested by his.

Name the nations now at war.

What is the name of the present pope, of the czar, of the kaiser, of the governor of your state, of your congressman and your senator?

When did the buffalo nickel come into use?

What are derby hats made of?

Name four materials used in making an ordinery loaf of bread.

How should you bind up a severed artery; a severed vein?

Name four flowers that grow wild in your neighborhood.

Tell something about these persons: Shackleton, Brand Whitlock, Sir Edward Grey, Ruben Dario, Maeterlinck, Shaw, Burbank, Kreisler, Laurier, Rostand, Krupp.

What is the foot-and-mouth disease; the hookworm, the comma bacillus?

With what author do you associate these names: Ulysses, Aeneas, Portia, Christian, Jean Valjean, Mr. Micawber, Don Juan, Arthur Dimmesdale, Hypatia, Beatrice?

Locate the Parthenon, the Taj Mahal, the Vatican, St. Mark's, the Ryks museum, Fujiyama, Orizaba, Mukden, Rheims, St. Lazare, Chapultepec, Nome.

With whom do you associate these sayings; "Keep your powder dry," "Innocuous desuetude," "watchful waiting," "the eternal feminine," "far from the madding crowd," "the Star Spangled Banner," "distance lends enchantment," "monarch of all I survey," "my kingdom for a horse"?

What do these phrases mean; White elephant, contraband of war, local option, hit the trail, rendezvous, quid pro quo, ex-diviflened, whole hogger, lifer, recidivist, comme il faut, I should worry, non sequitur.

Arrange in the order in which they lived: Washington, Charlemagne, Caesar, Lincoln, Elijah, Bismarck, Abraham, Luther, Rafael, Socrates, Kant, Plato.

Why does an apple fall, a stick float, a bomb explode, and a fountain play?

How much is 0 divided by 1?

Utter twenty words, with moderate speed, one after the other, without repeating or hesitating—any English words.

Close your eyes and, without previous preparation, name twenty objects in the room you are in.

We say a "flock" of birds; of what would you use the terms, bevy herd, group, company, crowd, batch, lot, heap, collection, congregation, horde, drew, gang, band, squad, swarm, school, shoal, covey, drove, galaxy, cluster, set, pack, bunch, assortment, sheaf, shock, mass?

What do we know, anyhow? Maybe we ought to go to school with the children.

Gypsy Song.

How can we stay in the town
Now that the Winter is done?
Somewhere a willow lets down
Her flowing hair in the sun.
Somewhere a Road is turning,
And Dawn's camp fire is burning—
And oh, my heart is yearning
To go, my golden one.

Give me your hand and run
Out to the Road that we know.
Scatter the dew in the sun,
And our hearts will sing as we go,
"Somewhere the leaves are making
A tent that is ours for the taking—
Somewhere, when stars are waking,
Our own camp fire shall glow."

When, on the Steeps of Sleep,
Our tent of stars shall glow,
Let us send through stillness deep
This song to the hearts below,
"Somewhere a Road is leading
To something some hearts is needing—
Somewhere a Road is leading,
If you will only go!"

—GLENN WARD DRESBACH in the New York Times.

Shakespeare Says---

Have more than thou showest,
Speak less than thou knowest,
Lend less than thou owest,
Learn more tha nthou trowest,
Set less than thou throwest—
And thou shalt have more
Than two tens to a score.—The Fool in Lear.

A Monument to Sea Gulls.

In gratitude to the birds whose timely intervention saved their crops and probably the lives of many settlers, the citizens of Utah have recently dedicated a monument to sea-gulls, which bears a graceful bronze representation of two birds lighting upon the granite shaft. The episode which this strange monument commemorates is part of the early history of the State. In the year 1848 the pioneers of Utah saw their crops devoured by a visitation of black crickets, which descended in countless millions upon the land and destroyed every vestige of green. A second crop was planted with the same result, and the settlers, now on the verge of ruin, saw their promising young wheatfields once more attacked by the pests. Acres that were green and beautiful in the morning were swept absolutely clean of vegetation by night, and starvation threatened the colony, which was at that time so hard to reach from the older states. It was then that a miracle happened in the shape of a vast number of sea-gulls that attacked the hordes of insects and destroyed them before the second crop was totally ruined. It is interesting to note that a descendant of one of these settlers was the sculptor of the monument, which in addition to its pair of gulls, bears bronze reliefs showing the incident.—"Curiosities," Strand Magazine for March.

Quips and Quiddities

Recently Jones collided with a spell of hard luck, and in order to make his pork and beans and his appetite meet he was compelled to pawn his watch. While the watch was yet in hock a friend asked him the time of day.

"Why, what has become of your watch?" asked the surprised friend, seeing Jones yank out a timekiller of the turnip brand.

"Here it is," smiled Jones, extending the cheap ticker. "Anything the matter with your optical apparatus?"

"Yes; but that's a silver watch," persisted the friend. "The one you used to have had a handsome gold case."

"I know it did," was the grinful rejoinder of Jones, "but circumstances alter cases."

THREE SPECIAL REVIVAL FEATURES DURING WEEK

Bible Class Demonstration Has Been Arranged for Sunday Morning

Three special features will mark this week's services in connection with the Chapman-Alexander revival campaign now under way in Atlanta.

Sunday morning there will be a Bible class demonstration, with representatives of the organized Bible classes of Atlanta in special reservations at the tabernacle. They will gather in groups in their respective localities and with bands playing and banners flying will march to the big hall. There Dr. Chapman, at 11 o'clock, will preach a special sermon to them. Only men will be admitted to this meeting. There will be the usual Sunay afternoon and evening meetings to wich men and women will be invited.

Wednesday will be set aside at the tabernacle as a "Day of Rejoicing." Those attending these services on that afternoon will be urged to bring with them gifts of groceries and provisions which will later be turned over to the poor of Atlanta through the Associated Charities.

Friday will be "Old Folks' Day" and the special guests of the evangelists will be the aged people of Atlanta and their friend. A special committee of ladies, headed by Mrs. Robert P. Maddox, Mrs. Frank Inman and Mrs. Archibald Davis, will furnish automobiles for the oldest and most infirm men and women who want to go to the meeting. Mrs. Maddox on Saturday issued an appeal to automobile owners in Atlanta to volunteer the use of their machines for that afternoon. She asks that those willing to lend their cars to the committee for a few hours get in touch with Mrs. Inman, Mrs. Davis or herself.

Dr. Chapman has announced topics for two of his evening meetings this week. They are:

Monday—"The Unpardonable Sin."

Tuesday—"Is Future Punishment Eternal and What Is It?"

Big afternoon topics follow:

Tuesday—"How May I Know That I Am a Christian?"

Wednesday—"Day of Rejoicing."

Thursday—"Drifting."

Friday—special sermon to the "Old Folks."

The regular afternoon and evening schedule will prevail, with meetings each afternoon at 3 o'clock, excepting Monday and Saturday and each evening at 7:30 o'clock, excepting Saturday. Dr. Chapman will preach and Mr. Alexander will lead the song service at each meeting.

The doors of the tabernacle where the Chapman-Alexander meetings are being held will be opened at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning, and the ushers are requested to be on hand by 10 o'clock.

BELGIANS RECEIVE EVERY PENNY GIVEN FOR THEM

Leader in Relief Work Declares Not One Cent Is "Grafted"

"If a man gives a bushel of peas to the Belgian relief fund, every pea will go to a starving person in Belgium. We want the public to understand that those associated with the work of the committee are not receiving one cent for their services."

This is the statement of Jefferson D. Davis, a New Yorker with a Dixie name, who was in Atlanta Saturday on his way to Birmingham. Mr. Davis is one of the leaders in the work of the American commission for relief in Belgium, and is traveling through the south for the purpose of welding closer the various southern branches of the national committee.

While in Atlanta, Mr. Davis was the guest of Dr. F. E. May, chairman of the Georgia committee.

"The public has the idea," said Mr. Davis Saturday, "that somebody is grafting off the Belgium relief fund. This is absolutely a mistaken idea. Not a penny goes to overhead charges, all those connected with the work give their services free, and it doesn't cost a thing to send food to Belgium, not even freight charges.

"The Belgium relief fund is not an American organization, it extends the world over. It began in Italy, and the United States is doing only a part of the work in feeding those starving people.

"We want the public to realize, too, that the work is only begun. Belgium is destitute so long as a foreign power is in her territory, her people hungry, her supplies cut off.

"The Belgium relief committee has treaties with six nations whereby our ships bearing supplies shall go in unmolested. But it will be many, many months until the war is over and then some, before we can quit sending food to Belgium. I must urge the public to continue its contributions, for this organization will go down in history as the greatest benevolent fund the world has ever known."

GA. SURGEONS MEET AT AUGUSTA IN 1916

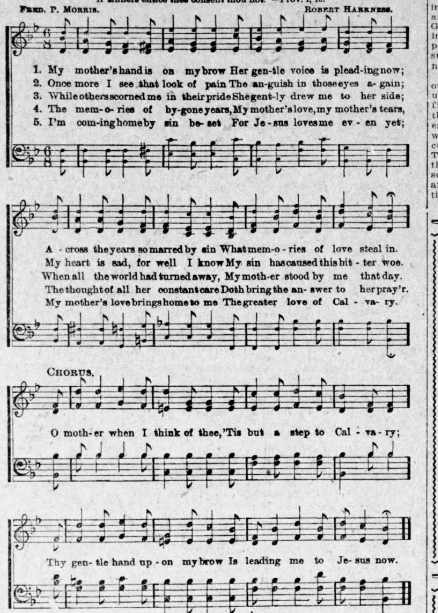

The members of the Georgia Surgeons' club, whose third annual clinical meeting came to a successful close Friday at the Hotel Ansley, voted unanimously to accept the invitation of Dr. Whitley W. Battey, of Augusta, and hold their next annual convention, in February, 1916, at Augusta. At this time the physicians will inspect the medical department of the University of Georgia, which is located at Augusta.

ALEXANDER'S Songs and Stories

Memories of Mother.

FRED. P. MORRIS. ROBERT HARKNESS.

Words and Music Copyrighted 1907, by Chas. M. Alexander. International Copyright Secured.

A SOUL-WINNING SONG.

"Memories of Mother" is one of the most effective and touching of the new gospel hymns. Everywhere in our mission it has been sung in the business men's meetings, and always it has melted the hearts of men in a remarkable manner. It was written by Mr. Harkness in his native town of Bendigo, Australia. During my second missionary tour of the world we were conducting meetings in Bendigo, and one day I handed Mr. Harkness the words of the hymn to set to music. He called his mother into the room, and playing over the melody, asked her what she thought of it. His mother's eyes filled with tears, as she replied that she thought the hymn would be the means of bringing back many a wandering boy. And her prediction has come true.

Of the hymn Dr. Chapman says: "It has interested more men than any hymn written in a generation, and I believe, has been the means of doing more good than any other gospel song produced by this great hymn-writer. Rich and poor, old and young alike respond to its pleading. It has literally sung its way round the world."

ULM MAKES STATEMENT ABOUT GEORGIA'S BONDS

Executive Secretary of Governor Slaton Shows There Are No Better Securities

Major A. H. Ulm, executive secretary to Governor Slaton, has prepared a most interesting statement showing that there are not better gilt-edge securities than Georgia state bonds. This statement is intended as information for the prospective purchasers of the refunding issue of $3,525,000 bonds for which Governor Slaton will open bids March 15.

Copies of this statement and any other information desired may be had upon application to the governor's office. Major Ulm points out that all of the state's property, including the Western and Atlantic railroad, for which they were originally issued, is pledged as security for the payment of these bonds. The bonds are in reality, mortgages on the state's property, which fact is fully set forth in the bonds themselves. They are immune from state and federal taxation.

Georgia, says this statement, is perhaps the only state, if not the only government of consequence in the world, which is in the unique position of owning commercial property worth several times what it owes. The proceeds of the sale of any of the state's property must be applied to the reduction of the bonded debt and can be used for no other purpose whatever. Each year the state must set aside a sinking fund of $100,000 for the retirement of its bonded debt.

MISS KIMSEY'S FUNERAL TUESDAY IN WHITE CO.

The funeral of Miss Icie Kimsey, who died Saturday morning at a private sanitarium, after lingering illness of nearly three years, will be held Tuesday at the Chattahoochee church in White county, with interment in the church yard. The body is at Burkett-Simmons' chapel.

Keep the Children Bright and Happy

Happy youngsters must be healthy. The digestive organs of children get out of order as readily as those of their elders, and the result is equally distressing. When the bowels are clogged with an accumulation of refuse from the stomach the child naturally becomes cross and fretful from the discomfort, and is often punished for temper when medical attention is really what is needed.

The next time your child is cross and unhappy, without apparent reason, try giving it a mild laxative. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a mild, pleasant tasting combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, and is especially recommended for children because of its freedom from all opiate or narcotic drugs and its gentle action. It is sold in drug stores everywhere. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.

The Broad Way

Leads to Goodyear Tires

Some 400,000 Have Found It

Take It a Little Way

This is not to sell you Goodyear tires. It is to ask you to try and compare them. The future will depend upon results.

Our plea is this: Countless men who did compare found that Goodyears averaged best. Thousands of new users adopt them each month.

No other tire ever won so many. Last year—our 15th year—men bought about one Goodyear for every car in use.

Don't Ignore the Facts

This army of Goodyear users is composed of men like you. They want quality, sturdiness, safety. They want trouble-saving and low cost per mile. Goodyears best met these wants.

They best met rim-cuts, blowouts and loose treads. Three exclusive Goodyear features best combat these troubles.

They proved safest, because the base in each Fortified Tire contains 126 braided piano wires.

And our All-Weather tread best met puncture, wear and skidding. That's because it is tough, double-thick, sharp-edged and resistless.

Have Tires Fortified

Mishap and misuse may lead to trouble, even with Goodyear tires. But why not fortify against them in the best ways known?

That's what we do in Goodyear Fortified Tires—in five ways employed by no other maker. These protections cost us fortunes. They are at your service and you should prove them out.

Price Reduction

On February 1st we made our third big price reduction. These reductions in two years have totaled 45 per cent. Today Goodyear tires, more than ever before, offer you most for the money.

More than that, they offer you the utmost possible in tires, measured by cost per mile.

Any dealer can supply you Goodyear tires. If the wanted size is not in stock, he will telephone our local branch.

¶ Bank accounts, fed regularly, grow big and fat like pigs.

¶ Start it with $1.00 or more, feed it a little every week and at the year's end you'll have---better than the hog---

¶ A well-grown bank account.

Irregular Prices and Moderate Trading Featured Stock Market

Copper Was Strong--Other Speculative Favorites Including Steel, Pacific and Coalers Made Only Fractional Changes

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Irregular prices and moderate trading were the features of today's session on the stock exchange. The movement was upward at the outset, followed by general declines and an uneven close. Amalgamated Copper was strongest of the active list, its rise being accompanied by rumors that large orders for the metal had been received from abroad. Other speculative favorites, including United States Steel, the Pacifics and Coalers, made only fractional changes either way.

Foreign exchange was easier, the rate for London bills being slightly under yesterday's final quotations, while remittances on Germany repeated recent low record figures. It is expected the coming week will bring developments of importance to the various markets for exchange, with further gold imports from Canada.

Weekly trade reviews refer to renewed expansion of business, particularly in the southwest, with increasing promise for winter wheat prospects. Retail trade in most sections is expected to be stimulated by the first indications of spring weather.

Foreign news of interest included dispatches of a probable Swiss loan by our bankers. The amount mentioned is relatively small and if carried out may take the form of treasury notes. A more cheerful tone prevailed in London's markets, but the volume of operations there, especially in Americans, was little more than nominal.

The week's bank statement fulfilled expectations by showing no new changes of importance. Reserves in bank vaults underwent small contraction, with a correspondingly light decrease in excess reserves.

Announcements that Western Pacific would probably default on its bond interest and that receivership proceedings would be instituted against the road excited little interest by reason of the fact that such action had been foreshadowed.

Today's bond market was irregular with total sales (par value) of $1,133,000.

STOCK MARKET TRADING HIGHLY PROFESSIONAL

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—In keeping with its recent course, this week's stock market was again mainly under the domination of foreign influences. This was demonstrated in the further demoralization of the various markets for foreign exchange, virtually all of which moved more in favor of this country, but brought little relief in the way of gold imports.

Dealings were of a limited character and almost wholly professional, traders taking the short side because of adverse European developments. Later, however, there was considerable covering of these contracts and prices made general improvement. Lack of investment demand was a discouraging feature, impending interest and dividend disbursements for March evoking little anticipatory inquiry.

The action of the grain and other commodity markets denoted concern respecting the outcome of negotiations between this government and several of the belligerent nations, but estimates now available point to a record-breaking volume of foreign business by this country for February.

Domestic trade continues spasmodic, bank clearings showing marked improvement at certain industrial centers, with some backwardness elsewhere. Home financing proceeded smoothly, the success of several recent flotations reflecting the ease of money at leading reserve sections.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF DRY GOODS MARKET

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Primary cotton goods markets have been generally quiet. Prices on most lines hold steady, but on some of the wide print cloth yarn goods there has been a slight recession varying from 1-16c to ⅛c a yard. Staple brown domestics are barely steady, while bleached cottons and printed goods held firm. Wide sheetings, sheets and pillow cases and pillow tubings continue firm. There is an improved demand for some of the lining fabrics, especially petticoat linings. Staple ginghams are steady, southern lines now being held generally at 5c against the low point of 4½c last year. Dress ginghams under a few brands are being sold steadily, but the general trade in them is not active. Cotton duck continues in steady demand for export for war purposes and shipments are considerably above normal. Duck for general commercial purposes continues generally quiet.

Retailers have been buying wash goods and white goods more freely for immediate and nearby delivery, the fine printed wash fabrics for dress purposes being particularly actice. Agents handling the best known lines of napped cottons are satisfied with the volume of fall business done, but there are other lines unsold and prices continue in favor of the buyer. Shipments of goods on old orders are full and steady with frequent requests for anticipations of delivery.

Prices are as follows: Print cloths, 28-inch 64x64's, 2¾c; 64x60's, 3⅝c; 38½-inch 64x64's, 3 15-16@4c brown sheetings, southern standards, 6c; denims, 9-ounce, 12c; tickings, 8-ounce, 11½c; standard prints, 4¾c; staple ginghams, 6¼c; dress ginghams, 9¼c.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Picayune says: The weekly figures of the visible supply would be portentious if conditions were at all normal. As matters actually stand it is impossible to say how many thousands of bales the deadlock at certain European ports has prevented from passing into spinners' stocks. The truly wise opeerator will therefore give statistics a wide berth so long as the war continues to tie up cargoes at the other end of the voyage.

In the meanwhile it may be well to note that 11,831,000 bales have so far been brought into sight, against 13,081,000 bales last year. If the crop of 1915 be taken at 16,500,000 the south must hold 2,777,000 bales more than were sold a year ago. This surplus will not be very burdensome if the exports and the spot demand keep up, but a slump in the outgo would put the interior on its mettle.

Yet one must always remember that the price is lower by 4 cents than it was in February of 1914. The immense difference may not discount all the changes that have occurred meanwhile; nevertheless, most of them have surely been reflected from day to day, and from week to week. Besides no immediate statistics would be decisive if the crop of 1915 were known to be a small one. From this point of view the acreage is the prince in the play.

Forecast:

Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi: Probably rain tonight and Sunday; moderate northeast and east winds.

Tennessee: Probably rain tonight and Sunday.

Virginia: Fair tonight; Sunday partly cloudy, continued cold; fresh northwest winds.

Louisiana: Unsettled tonight and Sunday; probably rain; colder in northern portion Sunday; moderate to strong easterly to southerly winds on the coast.

Arkansas: Tonight and Sunday rain; colder Sunday.

Oklahoma: Tonight cloudy; rain or snow in eastern portion; colder; Sunday partly cloudy.

East Texas: Tonight partly cloudy; probably rain in extreme eastern portion; colder; Sunday partly cloudy; light to moderate westerly to northerly winds on the coast.

West Texas: Tonight and Sunday generally fair.

Southeast storm warning: Texas coast, disturbance developed near mouth of Rio Grande and will move northeast, attended by strong east-southeast winds, probably increasing over the west gulf.

Cotton opened lower on small trade. South sold a little. Schill bought. Likely to see a sagging market.—Bache & Co.

STOCK GOSSIP

Dow, Jones summary: Baldwin Locomotive works for year ending December 31, shows deficit after dividend of $1,449,000, versus surplus of $2,217,000 in 1913. Ohio public utilities commission approves New York Central reorganization plan. March dividend disbursements, $120,000,000, versus $115,000,000 in 1914. Duns review says volume of trade continues moderate but is fairly well maintained. Failures this week 518 versus 664 last week and 350 last year. Readjustment of finances of Western Pacific to be announced today. Allies favor complete tie-up of German food. Cotton may be made contraband. Asquith to make a statement Monday. Submarine blockade ineffective, 1,391 vessels have entered or left port since February 18. J. J. Hill blames the politicians for business troubles. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. sure to select Missouri Pacific directors. New York stock exchange men criticised at sensational hearing in connection legislative committee on stock quotations bill. Joseph Leiter says farmers keep wheat high.

J. S. Bache & Co. say: Stocks were well supported with few exceptions and activity in specialties expected to increase. On any slight recessions the good standard stocks are a purchase as trend appears to be for betterment in prices.

Logan & Bryan say: The market is very likely to reflect from time to time the trend of events in Europe which will be the principal influence governing the course of values.

RENEWED HEAVY BUYING CAUSED RISE IN WHEAT

What Closed 2 1-2 to 4 1-4 Cents Higher--Corn, Oats, Pork, Lard, Sides Strong

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—More of a friendly feeling toward the buying side of wheat was manifest today. Failure of Liverpool quotations to reflect fully the decline here yesterday encouraged bulls. Opening ¼c down to ⅜c up, prices advanced all around.

Opinions that long delays might be expected in opening the Dardanelles helped stop the talk ofunlimited wheat shipments flooding soon past Constantinople. The close here was strong at 2½@4¼ net advance.

Lively shipping inquiry from the seaboard helped corn. It opened ⅛@¼c to ⅝@½c higher and moderate gains followed.

Rains and snows in the west acted as a prop to corn and it closed strong, 2¼ to 2½@2⅝c net higher.

Oats climbed with wheat and corn.

GRAIN MARKET OPINIONS

Ware & Leland: Course will be determined by export demand and facilities with shipment can be made and the progress which allies make toward opening the Dardanelles.

KIKng Farnum: Think it dangerous to sell wheat at this level.

Corn: Market in better position to respond to buying than it has been in a long time.

Walter Fitch: Look for drastic swings from time to time in wheat.

Wagner & Co.: European outlook reduced to a few words means that Germany, if successful in her blockade, will force peace ideas. If unsuccessful, her exports will proceed.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co.: Yesterday's break is increasing bearish sentiment, particularly as applied to the July delivery and local professionals are operating on that side. May corn at 70 cents is cheap enough for the time being.

FIDELITY FRUIT AND PRODUCE CO.'S MARKET LETTER

ATLANTA, Feb. 28.—The Atlanta market is in a good, healthy condition. We are able to clean up almost on arrival all fresh vegetables out of Florida that are of good quality and properly packed at very satisfactory prices, both to the grower and the Atlanta trade. The excessive rains during the last sixty days have caused the movement of fresh vegetables to be from fifteen to thirty days late. Having had bright weather for the past few days has caused quite a change in the entire situation, and the vegetables are now in better shape. We look for heavier receipts from this time on. This will apply especially to celery and tomatoes. The crop of each is cut short somewhat, but with bright, warm weather the tomatoes will mature and get in condition for shipping. With the cleaning up of the California celery our market is just about ready for the Florida crop. Such vegetables as eggplant, pepper, lettuce, beans, squash, cucumbers, new Irish potatoes and cauliflower have been coming in in a very small way. Any good stock has sold at good prices. Of course, the poor quality or poorly packed stock has sold very cheap. We are being supplied with all staples such as Canadian turnips, Danish cabbage and yellow, red and white onions at very reasonable prices, quality of the best. New Orleans is supplying us with bunched vegetables of the best quality, such as turnips, carrots, radishes, spring onions, parsley, spinash, mustard and head lettuce of fair quality, all of which is in good demand at very satisfactory prices.

In fruit we find that our market is strong with the slight advance in oranges and barrel apples. Florida oranges of good quality have advanced within the last ten days from 25c to 40c per box. Tangerines are in very light receipt, market advancing while grapefruit seems to be just about the same in price, although there has been a little heavier demand within the last few days. Pineapples in very light receipt, good stock showing color selling at very satisfactory prices on arrival.

Strawberries of the best quality are now being received from Florida in open crates, also in refrigerators, all of which are being sold readily at good prices. We look for the strawberry movement to be quite heavy within the next few days, which, of course, will cause the price to decline, but which will greatly increase the consumption.

Our market is being supplied now with cold storage apples, principally Baldwins, out of New York. The large size, well colored, are in demand at very satisfactory prices. Ben Davis, Russets, Greenings are in light demand at prices 25c to 50c less than the Baldwins. Western box apples are now moving better and we are being supplied, however, with the best stock, all of which are selling at satisfactory prices.

In Poultry the heavy receipts for the last few days has caused our market to decline from 1c to 2c per pound on poultry of all kinds. The same can be said of eggs, receipts are very heavy and the prices very low considering the season of the year with no immediate prospect of an advance.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 27.—The visible supply statistics for the week are unfavorable. Mill takings, 300,000, versus 331,000 bales last year. The visible increased 71,000 bales, versus a decrease last year of 105,000 bales. Total American visible 5,975,000 bales, versus 4,307,000 bales last year. Political news over night was also against the market.

Washington announces a sharp increase in government insurance rates.

The financial chronicles summary for the week says: "Rain quite general during the week, but mostly light. From Texas we are advised that some acreage that was to be devoted to wheat will now go to cotton or other crops, owing to the delay by rains to planting of cereays."

Liverpool was lower than due on futures and spots. The Liverpool stock of American cotton is 176,000 bales larged than last year.

Our market opened about 6 points lower and soon weakened to 8.31 for July, although the trading was limited on account of its being Saturday and the market had the benefit of some short covering before Sunday. Political news, particularly the threatened cotton contraband declaration by Great Britain, the advance in insurance by our government and the bearish visible supply statistics tended to increase bearish views.

The weather map shows a general rainfall over night west of the river; no rain in the eastern half of the belt. Precipitation was heavy in central and south Texas. Indications are for clear and cold weather in the Atlantics, except possibly some rain in the southeastern quarter. Clearing and much colder in Oklahoma and Arkansas; further rains in the southwestern quarter of the belt.

The present outlook for next week depends altogether on political developments. A further check to shipping as is now threatened would infallably increase the pressure on our markets.

JAY, BOND & CO. COTTON LETTER

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The market today ruled at a small decline under moderate selling pressure. At the lower level, however, buying was sufficiently large to steady the tone. With the exception of Liverpool's selling, transactions appeared to be principally liquidation of old business over the week end. There is a disposition to expect Great Britain to adopt severe retaliatory measures against Germany's naval policy, which, in its course, is expected to affect cotton shipments to the latter country. This is causing liquidation here and curtailing demand to some extent.

Fear That Cotton Might Be Made Contraband Caused Heavy Selling

Trade Interests Were Buyers on the Decline and Prices Later Recovered Most of the Loss on Covering Over Week-End

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—An early decline in cotton was followed by moderate rallies, and the close was very steady, net 4 points lower to 1 point higher.

Apprehensions that cotton might be made contraband seemed to be largely responsible for the selling movement. Recent press advices from London have led the trade to expect an announcement of some sort from Great Britain regarding its attitude toward German commerce within the next few days, and the talk around the floor today reflected quite a general fear that even if cotton was not definitely made contraband, some measure might be adopted which would greatly restrict future shipments to either Germany or Austria.

The market opened at a decline of 4 to 5 points, and during the middle of the session sold about 7 to 9 points net lower under scattering local liquidation and New Orleans selling.

Trade interests were buyers on the decline, and prices later recovered most of the loss on covering, which was probably promoted by the comparatively heavy spinners' takings for the week. Closing prices were practically the best of the week.

Notwithstanding the predictions of a decreased export movement, the amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the close of business yesterday was 451,914 bales, or nearly 30,000 bales in excess of the amount at the same time last week. Spinners' takings for the week footed up 419,25[illegible] bales, against 286,851 for the same week last year.

It was announced by the president of the cotton exchange after the meeting of the board of managers yesterday that all obstacles to classing tinges and stains would be removed within the next few days, and some of today's selling may have been inspired by predictions of increased shipments here from the south for contract delivery, although there was no indication of increased offerings against actual during today's trading.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 27.—Fear that England was about to add cotton to the contraband list caused much selling in the future market and a small decline today. Covering of short cotton by bears who wanted to realize profits over the week end, however, kept the tone steady and caused a complete recovery toward the end of the session. The close was at a net loss of only 1 or 2 points. At the lowest the trading months were 6 points under yesterday's close.

Bulls were nervous because of the situation abroad, and exporters are said to have withdrawn from the market. Telegrams from the interior of the belt said that the restrictions around shipping were having a most unfavorable effect, and were making fresh business of any importance almost impossible.

Another unfavorable feature was the weather over the belt, which was against planting of grains. Traders consider that delay to planting of other crops will make it more difficult to hold down the cotton acreage when the time comes for planting the new crop.

CERTIFIED PROPERTY STATEMENTS

A prominent western credit man says: "Perhaps most of us have exalted ideas of our own property, and an applicant for credit might, in good faith, make statements which must be discounted 50 per cent."

If banks and the larger business houses were to insist upon certified statements by public accountants, there is no doubt but that the annual loss from bad debts of some one hundred odd million dollars would be substantially reduced.

The services of a qualified certified public accountant cost far less than the average loss of money through poor credit.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF BROAD STREET

Broad Street Rapidly Coming to the Front as a Busy Retail Section--Many New Business Enterprises Centering Their Attention on Broad Street

Broad street! There may not be much of romance in the name, but there's plenty of it in the rather rapid manner in which Broad street, Atlanta, has developed within the last two or three years.

It hasn't been so long ago that Broad street was a rather barren looking thoroughfare, and the business houses that then did business on Broad were few and, in some blocks, far between. There were more vacant lots than there were stores, and somehow or other people didn't travel that way very much. They went and came on Peachtree and Whitehall, or on Forsyth, but they generally passed up Broad.

Times change, however, and streets and neighborhoods change, too. It has been that way with Broad street. From a street that a few years ago was little traveled, Broad has developed into a busy thoroughfare. From a street with few businesses on it, Broad has grown into one with dozens of prosperous business houses lining its sidewalks.

A LOGICAL RETAIL STREET.

People are talking about Broad street and business men all over the city have their eyes on Broad. "It's a logical retail street," is the expression that many business men have used, in discussing its possibilities. Whitehall and Peachtree will, very naturally, always be the busy streets that they are today, but as Atlanta grows and the business life of the city expands, other streets will come into prominence as busy streets also. And, from the way in which Broad street has developed for the last few years, it looks as if Broad will be all that its best wishers hope for it. It looks as if it will, within the next few years, be one of the most popular retail streets in Atlanta.

BROAD STREET TODAY.

The Journal publishes this morning a number of photographic views taken on Broad street within the last week, and in connection with these views some of the interesting facts about the street. On these pages, too, are published thirty-four advertisements that came from off Broad street. In other words, this page and the two that immediately follow are intended to show the facts in regard to Broad, its development, its possibilities, and the substantial character of the business houses on the street.

Broad street starts from the intersection of Broad and Peachtree, at Luckie, and runs through the heart of the business district to Mitchell. It is one of the wide streets in the city, and its location, between Peachtree and Whitehall on the one hand, and Forsyth on the other, makes it a street of possibilities. There are perhaps, more street cars that run the entire length of Broad than any other street in the city. The posts for a great White Way have already been placed in position, and it will not be long until the lights of this white way will transform the Broad street of night-time.

The many business interests whose advertisements appear in these three Broad Street pages are each and every one deeply concerned in the street's welfare, and they are each and every one boosters for Broad street. Some have been on the street for many years, some have only just moved to Broad, and a few are now getting ready to move, but one and all, they believe in Broad street and in Broad street's future as a retail street.

SOME OF BROAD STREET'S NEW-COMERS.

Among the merchants and business men who have only recently moved to Broad street are the Tripod Paint company, whose new store and ware rooms on North Broad are attracting the attention and causing favorable comment of the entire city; Rogers stores, with one already on Broad, and a new one that has just been opened, making the fifty-eighth Rogers store in Atlanta; the Strand theater, whose Broad street entrance is a feature of the new movie house; the Broad Street Market, one of the clean, sanitary markets of the city, that openly and publicly invites the public to "ask the food inspector"; S. Low, the ladies' tailor, who has very recently established himself in the Inman building; and last but by far not the least, High's Pure Food Store, that very recently celebrated the first anniversary of its founding. This store—High's Grocery—has proven one of the street's big successes.

TWO RECENT REMOVALS TO BROAD.

Two of the important recent moves to the street have been, not so very long ago, the Timms Jewelry company, now a part of the business life of the street, and the J. B. Fallez company, who moved to their present location at the corner of Broad and Alabama just about a year ago. The Fallez store is known as the lace store, and is now celebrating its first anniversary.

TO MOVE TO BROAD.

One of the important moves to Broad is that of the Lester Book and Stationery company, which will move from its present Peachtree location to the corner next that now occupied by the Tripod Paint company.

SOME OF THE STREET'S OLD STANDBYS.

There are quite a number of merchants on Broad who have occupied their places of business for a great number of years. These men have grown up with the street, and have contributed their full share in the development that has come about.

Starting at the Mitchell street end of Broad, there's Bass Dry Goods company, right "at the head of Broad street," so to speak, that has occupied its present location for nearly half a decade. It has for a long time been one of the popular department stores of the city.

Then just off Mitchell on Broad, there's the Globe Clothing company, with its two entrances from Broad street, running clear through to Whitehall. The Globe has occupied its present place of business for nearly a quarter of a century.

There's E. D. Crane company's buggy and wagon store, with its "Horse Harness and Mule Millinery," then McClure's wholesale house, which contains also the offices for the ten McClure retail stores. There's the Dozier & Gay Paint company's store, with as complete a stock of paints as one can find. There's the the Baylis Office Equipment company, the store that really starts South Broad off, being No. 1 South Broad; then the Banta-Cole Jewelry company, and a little further down the Brown-Cochran Furniture company's store.

McMillan Bros., Seed company is one of the stores that has been on South Broad for a good long while, and it is one that has done its part, along with others that have been on the street for a number of years, to help make Broad the popular street it is today becoming. The Kress stores are one of Broad street's big drawing cards, and the entrances to both stores are busy centers. Smith Bros. & Lee have the only nursery and tree house on the street.

PRINTING REPRESENTED.

The printing industry is represented, and Bennett's Printing House has been one of the factors in the street's growth and development. David P. Darrington operates a job printing house on Broad also, and has been on the street for a good long while.

The Journal Way--One of Broad Street's Latest and Most Important Improvements

The Journal Way. A reinforced concrete walk, several feet wide, connects Broad and Forsyth streets, and is one of the latest and most important improvements made on the street. It will afford a quick passageway from the Broad street viaduct to the Forsyth street bridge. Several stores have already been opened along the new Journal Way and a door opens off it into The Journal business office.

The Globe Clothing Company's big store extends from Whitehall through to Broad street, and is used as the "shortest cut through" by hundreds of people every day. In fact, we advertise "Globe Avenue" as being the most direct route through from Whitehall to Broad or from Broad through to Whitehall.

As the photograph above shows, we have two entrances on Broad street, and the customers who come in the Broad street doors find the same courteous salespeople waiting to serve them as do those who come in our Whitehall entrance. We believe in Broad street, and in its future as a retail street, and we have taken particular pains to make our Broad street entrances appeal to shoppers on Broad street.

district, it will also develop into an office building street. The Inman building on South Broad is admirably suited for offices, and will doubtlessly become one of the popular office buildings of the street.

Child's Cafe is located at 10 South Broad street.

BUSINESS HOUSES ON NORTH BROAD NOT ALREADY MENTIONED.

When you cross the viaduct, the first business house that attracts your attention is Kistner's market, an up-to-date market and fancy grocery; then there's Edmondson's drug store, one of the old standby's of Broad street, having been on Broad street for twenty years.

Coursey & Munn's drug store, 25 North Broad, at the corner of Marietta, is one of the handsomest and most conveniently arranged drug stores in the city of Atlanta, and would be a credit to any street. Then, a little further up, Tumlin Brothers' cigar store, at the corner of Broad and Walton, is a characteristic Tumlin store, and is a drawing card for that particular vicinity.

EXCELLENT STORE SPACE FOR RENT ON BROAD STREET.

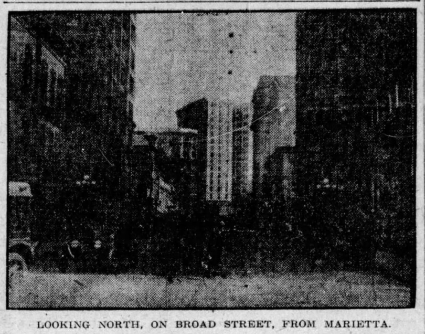

There are quite a number of new store buildings that have just recently been completed on both North and South Broad, and the following named real estate dealers and renting agents have locations that may be rented: Forrest & George Adair, A. ATLANTA TURN VEREIN TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

The forty-third anniversary of the Atlanta Turn Verein will be celebrated Wednesday evening, March 3, with an elaborate program. Newman Laser will act as toastmaster and among the speakers will be Lawton Nally, John Y. Smith, Walter P. Andrews and Judge Arthur Powell. Music will be furnished by Wedemeyer's band.

The officers of the Turn Verein are Fred Wedemeyer, president; Herman Bleim, vice president; Julius Bruckner and Carl Kelbler, secretaries; Herman Steinichin, treasurer.

The members of the Turn Verein and their families will attend.

LOCAL ELKS TO ASSIST BIG BROTHER MOVEMENT

The Atlanta lodge of Elks, in furtherance of the big brother movement, will be host to newsboys and waifs of the street at the Y. M. C. Andrews, songs and instrumental music, and in conclusion a big pie for each boy who attends.

The Big Brother movement is being enthusiastically boosted by the Elks lodges all over the country, having been indorsed by the grand lodge and all local lodges being requested to do their part in making the movement a success.

GIRL SCOUTS MOVEMENT IS BOOSTED IN ATLANTA

Miss Kellogg, of National Headquarters, Plans to Enlist Aid of Others

With one already well established troop of Girl Scouts in Atlanta to cite as an example of the pleasures and benefits derived by the members, Miss Louise B. Kellogg of this city, who is connected with the national headquarters of the Girl Scout movement in America, has launched a campaign to organize a large number of troops with several hundred girls enrolled.

As a means of stimulating interest she plans to show pictures of Girl Scout camps in motion picture shows and to take girls to the meetings of local Girls Scouts, whose rendezvous is at Rock Springs Presbyterian church north of the city on the Piedmont avenue road.

The Girl Scout movement was started in England by General Robert Baden-Powell at the same time he started the Boy Scout movement. The form of organization for the girls is the same as for the boys. The motto is the same: "Be Prepared." The salute is the same, three fingers of the right hand raised to the forehead.

Like the boys, the Girl Scout troops go on long hikes in the woods for nature study, hold summer camps near lakes and streams, learn to build camp fires, cook their meals, and otherwise enjoy a free and wholesome life outdoors. They wear a uniform consisting of blue blouses, short blue skirts, wide-brimmed hats and becoming blue ties.

AGENT OF ROCK ISLAND HAS PROOF OF PROSPERITY

V. M. Cluis Notified of Shipment of 100 Buick Cars to Frisco

V. M. Cluis, commercial agent in Atlanta of the Rock Island railroad lines, does not have to look far to see signs of prosperity. He has just been notified by his company of a shipment of 100 solid carloads of Buick automobiles from the Buick plant at Flint, Mich., to San Francisco.

The machines were shipped on a special train, consisting of 100 special automobile cars, the train being nearly a mile in length. The total value of the automobiles was more than $500,000. The freight charges alone amounted to $25,560.

And the best part of the story, from a prosperity standpoint, is that every one of the cars is already sold to individual purchasers by the Buick agent in San Francisco.

The First Anniversary of the Linen Store

Tomorrow we celebrate our first birthday. It comes to us with the feeling that time has indeed flown. Just a year ago we were making our initial bow to the Atlanta public in a new business. We believed that Atlanta needed a "Linen Store," a place where it was possible to shop with confidence, where plain statements were always made, and where prices were always the lowest.

At the commencement of this, our second year, we feel that we must express our thanks to the thousands of ladies who have become our customers. Many of these have become warm personal friends, desirous and anxious for our success. To one and all we tender our gratitude, and assure them of our keen desire to do better and better as we grow.

The Linen Store is also becoming well known throughout the South, and we can say with pride that our mail order business is becoming of importance. We also take pleasure in expressing our thanks to our out-of-town supporters, assuring them of our desire to please them at all times.

CAPT. J. M. SUMMERS, PIONEER CITIZEN, DIES

Confederate Veteran With Distinguished Record, Succumbs Saturday

Captain J. M. Summers, a pioneer citizen of Atlanta and a Confederate veteran with a distinguished record for bravery on the field, died yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. M. Busha, 603 Lee street.

Captain Summers was born December 24, 1830. He commanded Company F, of the Forty-Second Georgia volunteers, in the Confederate army and several times was commended in the reports of superior officers for valiant conduct under fire and for the intelligent and skillful handling of his men in close places.

Captain Summers settled here in early manhood and saw Atlanta grow from a village to a metropolitan city. He was widely known and held in high respect. His death, which came after a lingering illness, will bring sorrow to the hearts of many friends.

Surviving him are four daughters and three sons as follows: Mrs. C. G. Hannah, and Mrs. H. M. Busha, of Atlanta; Mrs. F. E. Neely, of Alman, Ga.; Mrs. J. M. Cox, of Birmingham; T. M., B. H., and J. D. Summers, all of Atlanta.

The funeral services will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the First Christian church, of which Captain Summers was for many years a member, with the pastor, Dr. L. O. Bricker, presiding, and interment will be in West View.

Deaths and Funerals

MRS. W. T. HENDRIX.

Mrs. W. T. Hendrix, seventy-five years old, died at her home, 10 Brown place, Saturday afternoon at 6 o'clock. She is survived by two sons, J. W. Hendrix, of Newborn, Ga., and J. A. Hendrix, of Buford, Ga.; four daughters, Mrs. C. H. Vance, Mrs. Charles Christian and Mrs. J. R. Harwell, of Atlanta, and Mrs. R. E. McCreary, of Shelbyville, Tenn.; two brothers, J. W. Morrow, of Hernando, Fla., and J. T. Morrow, of Bethlehem, Ga.; two sisters, Mrs. T. N. Haynie and Mrs. W. S. Wills, of Gainesville. The body will be sent Monday morning at 7 o'clock to the old family home at Buford, where the funeral and interment will be held.

FUNERAL OF INFANT.

The funeral of W. J. Campbell, three-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Campbell, will be held this morning at 11 o'clock from the chapel of Harry G. Poole. Interment will be in West View.

EDITH COFFIN MULLIN.

Edith Coffin, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher N. Mullin, died at 10 o'clock Saturday morning at the residence, 5 Angier place. The funeral will be held at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the residence, and interment will be at West View cemetery.

FUNERAL OF MR. JOHNSON.

The funeral of Mr. Allen M. Johnson, who died Friday night, will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence, 399 Fraser street. Interment will be in Oakland.

MRS. VIRGINIA CADLE.

Mrs. Virginia Cadle, forty-nine years old, died at noon Saturday at the local sanitarium. The body was taken to Barclay & Brandon's chapel, and will be sent to Hephzibah, Ga., this morning at 7:30 o'clock for funeral and interment. Mrs. Cadle is survived by her husband, W. E. Cadle, 14 South Mayson avenue, and two daughters, Mrs. J. S. Pope and Miss Lula Cadle.

FUNERAL OF MRS. LANIER.

The funeral of Mrs. Casanda Jane Lanier, who died Saturday morning, will be held this morning at 9 o'clock from the chapel of A. O. & Roy Donahoo. Rev. W. L. Rainwater will conduct the services. Interment will be in Hollywood cemetery.

MR. ARTHUR HEYSER.

Mr. Arthur Heyser, aged twenty-four years, died last night at 7 o'clock at the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Heyser, 567 Edgewood avenue. He is survived by his parents and two brothers, Grover E. Heyser, and Joseph Heyser. The remains will be forwarded to Augusta Monday morning for funeral and interment.

MRS. SEVILLE SHARP.

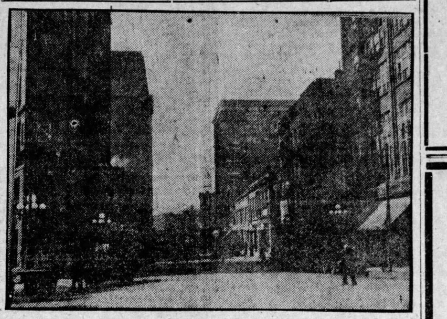

Mrs. Seville Sharp, twenty-eight years old, died at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon at her home, 16 Gray street. She is survived by her husband, G. A. Sharp, four children, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. McLung, of Carrollton, and four brothers and two sisters, of Carrollton. The body will be sent by Barclay & Brandon over the Atlanta & West Point railroad this morning at 9:10 o'clock for funeral and interment.

MR. THOMAS OSCAR HALL.

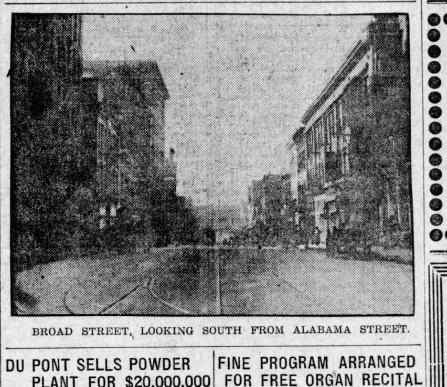

Mr. Thomas Oscar Hall, 66 years old, died Saturday night at 11:30 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. W. Henson, 160 Lee street.

Mr. Hall is survived by his wife; three sons, Dr. C. T. Hall, of Cochran, Ga., H. F. Hall, of Nashville, Tenn., and J. C. Hall, of Atlanta; three daughters, Mrs. W. W. Benson, Mrs. W. R. McCord, and Miss Adelaide Hall, of Atlanta; three sisters, Mrs. J. J. Barnes, Mrs. Josephine Daniel, and Mrs. Mollie Shropshire, of Atlanta. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

McMillan Bros.' Seeds Are Good Seeds
From the start our idea has been to furnish such seeds, give such satisfaction, value and service, as would make you think of us first when you want anything in seeds. The basis of all our dealing from the very first has been absolute reliability, and we have customers who have been doing business with us continually ever since we opened the doors of our modest establishment. We early learned that reliability in the seed business depended considerably on our thorough knowledge of seed stocks. This could be acquired only by experience and careful selection of our growers.
We have men connected with our company who have been in the business since childhood, whose whole time is devoted to the subject of new varieties, ever on the alert, procuring and proving them, and listing the hardiest and best, and keeping the standard up to the highest mark. Thus we know our stocks, and we believe we are justified when we say—

DR. CHAPMAN PLEASED WITH REVIVAL RESULTS

Evangelist Says There Were Over 1,000 Persons Converted in First Week

BY DR. J. WILBUR CHAPMAN.

I am delighted with the results of the meetings thus far. The invitation has been given for one week only, and, although we do not lay stress upon results expressed numerically, there have already been over 1,000 converts.

The numbers might have been doubled or even trebled if I were disposed to use methods which are more extreme, and which, as used by some evangelists, seem to be effective. But I am always fearful that if the pressure is put upon people is too heavy their action may not be an intelligent one and the results may not be permanent.

I am seeking to do for the pastors and the churches of Atlanta what I should like to have a visiting evangelist do for me if I were the pastor of a church and had invited him to labor with me.

I am quite sure that some of the names recorded on the converts' cards are the names of people who tre already members of churches, and in signing their names they have simply expressed their determination to live consistent Christian lives; but, of course, the great majority of names represent genuine conversions.

I am particularly impressed with the great number of young men making a decision for Christ. I am confident the work will go forward in a great victory for righteousness which will be felt by the entire community.

PARADE ORDINANCE UP FOR PASSAGE MONDAY

Whitehall street will know no more circus parades if an ordinance, which received favorable report from committee, passes council on Monday afternoon.

The ordinance, which would prohibit parades on certain portions of Peachtree and Whitehall and Forsyth, was introduced in council last year, but was held in the committee until Friday.

Other ordinances reported favorably by the committee include a measure by Councilman Claude L. Ashley to create a board of plumbing examiners to rigidly examine all plumbers before they are allowed to work in the city.

GET RIGHT WITH GOD!

BY WILLIAM W. ROCK.

YOUR days are like the down upon the grass,
That flies before the summer wind and rain;
In wonderment you watch them quickly pass.
You know you will not walk this way again—
GET RIGHT WITH GOD!

Your years speed swiftly as a tale is told.
Then learn at once to lose that you may gain,
To love Right more than riches, Good than gold.
You know you will not run this race again—
GET RIGHT WITH GOD!

Your life is but a transitory thing,
A perishable web, a slender skein;
And if you mourn or triumph, sob or sing,
You know you will not weave this warp again—
GET RIGHT WITH GOD!

"Today if ye will hear His voice"—TODAY!
"Thy harden not your heart;" the call is clear,
And daily grows the danger of delay,
Brief is Life's span; Eternity draws near—
GET RIGHT WITH GOD!

CLUB WOMEN INDORSE DOMESTIC SCIENCE AS REGULAR SCHOOL STUDY

Resolution Will Go to General Council in Hope of Securing Appropriation for Work in June Budget

A resolution strongly urging the establishment of domestic science as a part of the regular course of training for the girls in the upper grades of the grammar schools of the city has been passed by the Atlanta Federation of Women's clubs.

The resolution has been presented to the city board of education, whose members are understood to be in sympathy with the resolution, and will now be presented to the mayor and general council, in the hope of securing an appropriation in the June budget sufficient to start the training in at least one grammar school next September.

The resolution originated in the educational committee of the Atlanta Woman's club. The committee appointed a subcommittee consisting of Mrs. Spencer R. Atkinson, Mrs. P. J. McGovern and Mrs. William L. Percy to draw suitable resolutions on the subject, and the resolutions drawn by the subcommittee and approved by the main committee, were presented to the club and approved by the club as a whole, and were then presented to the federation of clubs and adopted there.

THE RESOLUTIONS.

The resolutions are herewith reproduced in full:

"Atlanta, Ga., Jan.

"To the Board of Education,
"Atlanta, Ga.

"Gentlemen:—We, the members of the Woman's club, of Atlanta, wish to present for your consideration the great need for the teaching of domestic science and normal training in the public schools.

"In doing this, we wish to commend the wisdom of the board in incorporating domestic science in the course of study for the Girls' High school, and at the same time to call your attention to the fact that since a large percentage of the pupils in our public schools never reach the High school, this work does not now touch the very children who need it most, therefore, the question has been only partially solved. We wish to urge therefore that the same great privilege be extended to the girls of the upper grammar grades.

We realize fully some of the practical difficulties which will stand in the way of this work, but we believe that the benefits to be derived will far outweigh all objections which may be offered.

In explanation of our position on the question, we beg to submit some of the arguments in favor of teaching domestic science and manual training in our public schools.

(a) In our opinion the chief function of our schools should be the preparation of our boys and girls for life. Any subject, therefore, which contributes, either directly or indirectly to the usefulness of the individual and to the welfare of society is entitled to a place in the curriculum.

DAILY LIVING.

(b) We believe that no subject could be added which would react more directly or more beneficially upon the lives of all the people than a study of the science and art of home-making.

(c) We believe, furthermore, that any system of education which does not look toward fitting the pupil for daily living, has failed to realize its highest possibilities, no matter how thoroughly it may have taught him "the three r's."

(d) It is our belief that the power to do things is of far greater importance to the child's future welfare than the ability to memorize facts about things. Such subjects as domestic science and manual training would afford abundant opportunity for developing the constructive power.

(e) We are convinced also that the enrichment of the course of study by the addition of subjects, like domestic science and manual training will create a stronger interest in the school on the part of the pupil, and that because of this interest a larger number of children will voluntarily remain in the schools than is the case at present. It is a well known fact that lack of interest in the school work rather than economic stress, is the chief cause of the "dropping out" in the upper grades. If the child can be made to feel that he is getting at school something of immediate and vital importance to him we believe that his tendency to leave school too early will disappear.

(f) We believe also, that the teaching of the various phases of home making from a scientific standpoint, will give dignity to tasks which would otherwise be regarded as mere drudgery, and will thus transform the work of home making into a social service of the highest order. In this way home making will attract a larger number of girls than it does at present, thereby preventing many of the social evils which now exist.

HOME MAKERS.

In view of the fact that the large majority of the girls leaving our public schools ultimately become home makers we believe that the fundamentals of home making should be taught in our public schools and recommend that a course in domestic science be given, including the following lines of study: A study of food values, the preparation of food, the principles underlying the purchase of food stuffs and clothing, the relative money values of different foods, the principles of sanitation and housekeeping, and the rediments of sewing.

Before making specific recommendations, however, we wish to direct your attention briefly to some of the objections which may be offered to domestic science as a part of the curriculum.

The first of these is the additional expense involved. We feel convinced however, that the expense involved in installing domestic science and manual training in the grammar grades, would be small in comparison with the amount of good accomplished thereby. We believe, moreover, that in the long run it would result in an actual saving of money, since better homes inevitably mean more efficient citizenship, greater productiveness and less crime.

Another argument sometimes advanced against the teaching of such subjects in the schools grows out of the fear that the so-called "fundamental" subjects will receive less time and will thus suffer in consequence. It has been proven, however, that in schools where all of the teacher's time and energy are spent in the teaching of "the three R's" alone, the poorest results have been obtained. On the other hand, where part of the time has been given to subjects, which are directly related to life, and where much of the necessary drill has grown out of work in which the child is vitally interested less time is required for the mastery of the so-called "fundamentals."

Some of the opponents to the teaching of domestic science in our schools contend that the child can learn all he needs to know about home making through the work done in the home under the guidance of the mother, and that the time allowed for such work at school is unnecessary. We believe, however, that the work can be done more effectively in the schools for the following reasons:

TRAINING NECESSARY.

1st. Since the school demands the major part of the pupil's time, while he is in the grades, there is not sufficient time left for the training to be given in the home.

2d. Even if time permitted this training to be given in the home, few mothers are prepared to teach any phases of the work. Therefore, better results can be secured when the subject is presented by the trained teacher, who knows both the practical side of the subject and the scientific principles underlying it.

3d. Since domestic science makes direct contributions to other subjects of the curriculum as elementary science, geography, arithmetic, etc., we feel that it should be taught in relation to these rather than as a separate subject.

We beg to offer the following resolutions:

1st. That definite training in domestic science shall be made a part of the required course of study for the girls of the fifth, sixth and seventh grades of our public schools, and that instruction in shop work be provided for the boys of these grades at the same time.

2d. In order that the best results may be secured, we recommend that a special teacher be provided for each of these subjects.

3d. That the working out of the details of the course in each subject be left to these special teachers in consultation with the superintendent, and such other persons as may be directly concerned in the work.

PLANNING COURSE.

4th. That in planning the course, care should be taken to relate the work to other subjects of the curriculum.

5th. We beg to recommend also, that for the first year, at least, these new subjects shall be taught in a few carefully selected centers rather than in the system as a whole. In this way we believe the initial would be greatly lessened, and the success of the work assured.

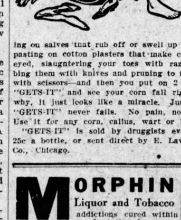

6th. We recommend furthermore, that in special centers where the children leave school before the fifth grade, and where there is a crying need for such training the work in domestic science and manual training be given earlier, possibly in the second or third grade.

Believing as we do that domestic science and manual training are necessary subjects in a school system which has as its aim the highest good of the community, we wish to urge that you give this matter your earnest consideration as soon as possible and hereby pledge you the unanimous support of the Woman's club of Atlanta in this important undertaking.

It does your heart good to see how easily and quickly any corn comes out when you put "GETS-IT" on! And then when you've sat up nights wrapping up your toes in bandages, smear ing on salves that rub off or swell up the corn, pasting on cotton plasters that make corns popped, slaughtering your toes with razors, jabbing them with knives and pruning to the quick with scissors—and then you put on 2 drops of "GETS-IT"—and see your corn fall right off—why, it just looks like a miracle. Just try it; "GETS-IT" never fails. No pain, no trouble. Use it for any corn, callus, wart or bunion.

"GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

LAKEWOOD FAIR PROJECT DEFENDED BY TURMAN

Head of County Commissioners Also Answers Grand Jury on Cost of Court House

S. B. Turman, chairman of the board of county commissioners, yesterday issued a statement vigorously defending the Lakewood exposition and the new courthouse, in reply to the presentments of the grand jury last week criticising the former as untimely and the latter because of its great cost.

In regard to the exposition, Mr. Turman calls attention to the fact that it has the indorsement of all the Atlanta newspapers, was approved by the city council and the county commissioners with, practically no opposition, was strongly urged by the chamber of commerce and finally in order to build the exposition on the scale contemplated it will be necessary to raise $75,000 by subscription among the business men. This latter feature alone, as Mr. Turman points out, should "be a sufficient guarantee of the merit of the project."

He declares the building of the exposition would stimulate business confidence, giving work to hundreds of men, encourage diversified farming and cattle raising, and bring hundreds of visitors to the city in the fall.

In regard to the new courthouse, Mr. Turman characterizes the grand jury's statement, if correctly quoted in the newspapers, as "inaccurate."

He says it is unfair to compare the courthouse with a 5-story building, with the state capitol, a 3-story building, because the courthouse is built in a hollow with expensive foundations and the capitol on a hill with inexpensive foundations; because the courthouse has 225,000 square feet of occupied floor space against the capitol's 25,000 square feet of occupied floor space; because labor and materials are 25 to 50 per cent higher now than when the capitol was built; and because the courthouse is a modern building with every up-to-date scientific convenience, whereas the capitol is not, in the strict sense, a modern building.

TWINS, SIX DAYS OLD, DIE AT SAME TIME

Two infant sons, twins, of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nichols, 102 North Boulevard, died at the same instant Saturday morning at 7 o'clock. They were six days old. The bodies were taken to Harry J. Poole's. The funeral will be held this morning at 11 o'clock. Interment will be in West View.

PEOLI LOWEST BIDDER FOR HYDRO-AEROPLANES

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Bids for nine navy hydro-aeroplanes opened today, showed C. M. Peoli, the aviator who recently flew over the Andes, was the low bidder for all nine, at $6,800 each. Twelve concerns in all submitted bids. Contracts will be awarded later.

When you buy Diamond Tires you buy tires that are built to give you the maximum tire service—tires that give you freedom from trouble and relieve you of the necessity of having adjustments made.

This is what a dealer who sold many thousands of Diamond Tires last year has to say about the service they gave the buyers:

"Gentlemen: "Cleveland, Dec. 15, 1914.
"The performance of Diamond Tires during the past year has been eminently satisfactory. The claims for adjustment were almost a negligible quantity. On the other hand, we have had a great many voluntary reports as to the excellent service our customers have had from Diamond Tires. We feel that a perfect balance has been worked out in the scientific construction of these Tires. The net result is that there appears to be the proper relation between the inside carcass and the outside rubber, so that there is no excess of either. The tire seems to wear out naturally and only after having given a very large mileage.
"THE FOREST CITY RUBBER CO.,
"W. E. Crofut, President."

Similar reports of Diamond service have been received from dealers all over the country.

Added to the wonderful Diamond service you can now buy Diamond Squeegee Tread Tires at the following

WATCH!—These ads changed daily—WATCH ABOVE FOR SALE BY WARE & HARPER.

IF YOU have the kind of business judgment we are looking for, you know we cannot afford to waste your time nor our money on this advertisement. We are a large, responsible corporation and want a man to do in some other city just what we are NOW DOING in Chicago and can offer him a chance to make from $10,000 to $20,000 per year for the next 5 to 10 years. We make the very best and most useful $5 household device ever made, and we sell it through house-to-house demonstrators, upon 25c weekly payments, entirely upon its merit and subject to cancellation at any time. We pay demonstrator a commission of 75c (the first three payments) and the collector 8 per cent of collections. This business is now in operation in Chicago and increasing by leaps and bounds. Sales and collections exceeding all expectations. We have no scheme to sell territory nor whereby you forfeit a dollar to us or have a device left on your hands, but will take back at full price all used devices should you desire to quit. We simply wish to sell tens of thousands of these most wonderful devices upon their merit and if you will come to Chicago and prove to us that you are capable of managing such a business and of financing it, we will show you just how we do it and make you a proposion that is so good, safe and desirable, so free from the possibility of loss and so certain to make you a fortune, that you will mortgage your home, if necessary, in order to finance it, but you must see how fast and easily the devices sell, how easily the collections are made and know how well the people like the device, before you can realize what this advertisement means to you. You can begin next week if you wish. M. W. Pitner, 8 East Kinzie st., Chicago, Ill.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

The Egg Supply in the South

AT present there is an abundance of eggs throughout the entire south, someting that we have every year at this particular time, and naturally the price has been affected and eggs are much cheaper now than they have been. Even though they be cheap at present, we can all look back and remember only a few years ago when eggs during the spring months often sold at 8c and 10c per dozen, but we do not have to take such prices for them now.

There are hundreds of markets that are practically bare of a sufficient quantity of eggs. Many opportunities are offered people who are in this business to ship eggs to these markets now.

The time has come when we need in Georgia an organization similar to the Egg Shippers' associations that are doing business in nearly all other states, and they would find an outlet for our present over supply of eggs.

During the past few weeks several cars of eggs have been shipped out of Atlanta. Some to Florida, and two cars have gone to New York City. The parties who shipped these eggs have made a big profit. There is such a demand for eggs in most of the large eastern cities that first-class eggs are selling for 30c to 40c per dozen and even higher.

The day and time is now right for packing plants to be established all over the South, and be prepared to handle these products when they are offered at such low prices. This is wherein packing plants have helped so much the poultry industry. If it were not for the cold storage plants eggs would often go begging for buyers. At other times of the year they could not be had at all, and the packing plants have worked wonders in this respect. They should be encouraged and patronized as much as possible.

The large supply of eggs that have been put up by most packers during last season have been shipped to foreign countries recently, and nearly every week there has been a shipload of eggs shipped from America to foreign countries. The supply of eggs from Belgium, Holland, France and Germany that has been furnished to England has been cut off. Therefore, they must look to this country for their supply and it has made a big demand for American eggs. Week before last one steamer carried 80,000 cases of eggs to England. There has been more eggs exported during the first part of this year than has been during nearly two years previous to this time.

People who have a large supply of eggs now should put them in cold storage or pack them in a good cool place, because the demand is sure to come for these eggs later at a much better price than we are getting now.

Nearly all poultry throughout the south is hatched during the spring months, and about three months of the year covers the hatching period. Therefore, most of the hens in the south lay the largest number of eggs during these months, and at other times it is almost impossible to secure enough eggs for our own home use.

However, the large supply of western and cold storage eggs that have been shipped south usually every year has been largely decreased during the past year or so, and it looks like the time has come when things will change and that sooner or later we will begin to ship eggs to the east instead of we buying them from the west. The sooner this is done that much better off will our country be.

Georgia, Florida and several other southern states could readily find a good market in the east for a trainload of eggs every day if there were some way by which these markets could be cultivated and a supply from this section of country produced to fill the wants of eastern markets. They pay so much better prices than our home markets do for these products that we can easily afford to pay the express or freight charges and then receive for our eggs a much better price than can be had at home. A market man for Georgia farmers would save them thousands of dollars on eggs alone.

Yours very truly,

Loring Brown

FOR SALE—FARMS

A Farm Investment "Worth While"

Seven hundred acres of rich, fertile earth, with one solid mile of "bottom land" on the Coosa River. The pastures are ideal, having an ample supply of branch water running through them. Deep wells with pure, cold drinking water. One of these is a bored well. Six substantially built tenant houses in good condition.

EIGHT-HORSE CROP NOW IN CULTIVATION

will net a good income immediately. Large amount of timber, ready to cut, can be sold at a good price.

This farm is ideally located, being within nine miles of Gadsden, Ala., a thriving city of 12,000 inhabitants. Two railroads run through to Gadsden, making shipping to and from the farm easy.

Will either sell in a block at $25 per acre, or will exchange for improved city property or bank stocks.

This is a REAL BARGAIN and will pay someone well. My reason for selling, have other interests that take all my time.

FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE

Practical Proposition To Business Men

If you need larger or better quarters, provide now for the future of your business. Don't wait until prices get beyond your reach. STOP PAYING RENT. In Heaven's name cease to be a slave to your landlord. It's a serious matter. Own your business and the building you occupy. It will make you absolutely independent.

You can't spare the money to buy a lot and erect your building, as it would take too much of your capital, but you can buy this building on the terms I offer. It will be easy. That monthly rent check is a menace to you. No returns from it. No investment. "No nothing."

Located in the wholesale district. Mill constructed brick building, three stories and basement, with concrete floor. Steam-heating plant, freight and passenger elevators. Equipped for almost any business. About 22,500 feet floor space. Lot 64½x105.

Terms: You pay only $5,000 cash, assume loan of $21,000, at 5½%. Balance 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 years, at 6%.

Nos. 12, 14, 16 Trinity avenue, between Whitehall and Forsyth. See me for price. It's a bargain and worth your investigation. Remember that rent check. This is a clean cut, clear, safe proposition.

Avalon Apartments at North Avenue and West Peachtree Street Change Hands--Vacant Lot on Peachtree Near Seventeenth Sold for Cash--North Avenue and Other Sales. Business Leases--Building Ahead for Month and Year

A considerable amount of real estate activity was shown in several announcements made on yesterday, including a north side apartment house which changed hands; some small cash sales, a few business leases, and ome interesting building facts.

Smith and Ewing sold through Joel T. Daves for E. M. Yow to a client what is known as the Avalon apartments at the southeast corner of West Peachtree street and North avenue. The agency announced that the price was $150,000 and that there were no exchange features. The name of the purchaser was not disclosed.

The lot fronts 100 feet on West Peachtree street with a depth of 90 feet on North avenue. There is a five-story building, containing twenty apartments, which rent for $13,300 a year.

PEACHTREE SALES.

John S. Scott sold for Mrs. L. S. Huntley to a client a vacant lot, 50x200, on Peachtree street between Seventeenth street and the junction, on the west side of the street, for $7,625 cash.

Mr. Scott also made these sales: For H. Plante to a customer, a vacant lot, 100x600, on the Marietta car line at Argyle station, for $1,000 cash; for W. T. Culpepper to J. E. Flynt No. 922 East North avenue, a six-room house on a lot 50x150, for $4,750; and for W. J. Hartley to L. E. Patterson a vacant lot on Twelfth street, between West Peachtree street and Columbia avenue, 50x100, for $2,800.

IRWIN STREET SALE.

BUSINESS LEASES.

Forrest & George Adair leased to Nicketas Vergivadis for three years the store room at No. 15 South Broad street, in what was formerly the Postal Telegraph company's building.

The same agency leased for Lee Hagan to J. C. Skinner No. 45 Armstrong street, for two years. The property is a garage.

SUBDIVISION SALE.

One hundred desirable residence lots, lying east of Grant Park and fronting on South Boulevard, Atlanta avenue, Confederate avenue and other streets in that vicinity, will be offered for private sale. This large tract, known as the McLeod and McDowell property, has been placed in the hands of James L. Logan. The sale, which begins Monday morning, has been forced in order that funds may be realized with which to pay certain indebtedness of the owners. The lots will be sold on terms.

BUILDING COMPARISON.

The permit for the Connally building, which will cost $275,000, makes the total value of February building $471,563, compared with $335,391 last February.

The total value of building for the year to date is $745,595, compared with $658,356 during the corresponding period of 1913, a gain for 1915 so far of nearly $100,000.

Eliminating the Connally building, the value of building for 1915 to date is behind last year. Easier money conditions, however, and a gradually improving business situation, should help the general volume of building.

NEW REALTY FIRM.

W. M. Bennett, George B. Powell and A. C. Minhinnett have formed a real estate partnership under the firm name of Bennett, Powell & Minhinnett. Their office is at 517 Third National Bank building.

JACK ROSE'S TESTIMONY FALSE, DECLARES DEFENSE

Newspaper Clamor Convicted Becker, Plea in New Trial Motion

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Arguments to be presented to the court of appeals in the effort to obtain a third trial for Charles Becker, under death sentence for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, were made public today in a brief filed with the district attorney by Becker's counsel.

The brief is in connection with an appeal from a lower court decision yesterday denying Becker a third trial. It is based chiefly on the following allegations:

That Becker's guilt was not established beyond a reasonable doubt; that his conviction was brought about by newspaper clamor, the zeal of the prosecutor and natural desire of the actual murderers for self preservation; that the testimony of Jack Rose, one of the chief witnesses for the state, was unqualifiedly false; that Becker's attorneys were not permitted to introduce at the second trial the written confesion of Frank Circofici, know as 'Dago Frank,' one of the men electrocuted for the murder.

S. AMERICAN JURISTS TO STUDY U. S. LAWS

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The executive committee of the American Bar association, has reported favorably on the plan, broached at its dinner in Washington six weeks ago, to invite three leading South American jurists to this country at the expense of the association, to study American legal and penal institutions and to deliver addresses.

Three men will be selected by the diplomatic representatives of the South American republics. Their first addresses will be delivered at the meeting of the association in the west, after which they will visit the chief cities of the country.

Judge Alton B. Parker, in speaking of the plan, said the South American ministers and ambassadors thought it would promote good feeling and might readily result in material advantage.

Caranza Forces to Attack Monterey Now Held by Villa's Men

(By Associated Press.)

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 27.—General Pablo Gonzales, commanding the Carranza forces said to number about 25,000 men, has notified General Felipo Angeles, Villa's commander at Monterey, that the city will be attacked Sunday at noon, and asked that non-combatants be notified that they may leave the city, according to a message from Nuevo Laredo. General Angeles is said to have replied that he would be ready to receive the Carranzistas. Villa reports say Angeles has about 20,000 men, while Carranza sources indicate that his force numbers between 10,000 and 12,000 men.

MILLION DOLLAR FRAUD CHARGED IN PORTLAND

(By Associated Press.)

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 27.—A million dollar swindle is charged against officers and salesmen of the now defunct United States Finishing company of this city in an indictment returned by a federal grand jury today.

The indictment charges conspiracy and misuse of the mails by Frank Menefee, F. M. Lemonn, O. E. Gernert, B. F. Bonnewell, H. M. Todd, Joe Hunter, O. L. Hopson, P. E. Muraine, Oscar A. Campbell and Thomas Bilyou.

It is alleged the concern, incorporated at $1,250,000, sold all its capital stock, bringing into its treasury more than $1,000,000 in money and property, on false representations that it owned patents of five change-making machines which it purposed to manufacture.

Stock Market Has Suffered Because of Fear of International Complications--Many Encouraging Evidences of an Industrial Awakening--Exports Show Unequalled Records and "Made in America" Goods Are Finding New Markets--Wheat Embargo May Be Necessary

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The fear of international complications due to Germany's war zone proclamation, America's protest and Germany's reply thereto, were responsible for the very cautious attitude which ruled the stock market this week. A keen interest in the war zone controversy was manifest, and the market was inclined to be weak and depressed. A moderate selling pressure of investment holdings was evident, all along the line, this feature being as evident in the domestic as well as the foreign transactions. Professional liquidation has not occupied a very large place in the current transactions, the bears evidently believing that this is no time for a raid on the stock list. Though foreign exchange rates have been ruling on a very low basis, a violent reaction took place on Thursday as a result of reports that large credits in favor of English bankers in this country were soon to be announced. Thus far none have been definitely arranged, but negotiations to this end have been going on during the week.

Meanwhile, a careful canvass of the whole financial situation shows that while the usual indices of trade and industrial conditions are not as satisfactory as they might be, there are nevertheless a number of very hopeful indications of better times ahead. Chief among these is the attitude taken by the great business and industrial leaders, including three railroad presidents, all of whom have emphasized their faith in the expanding opportunities of the times by throwing their plants wide open and by materially increasing their working forces.

An important news agency in New York in scanning the published reports of specific evidences of an industrial revival points with considerable satisfaction to the following facts:

Mills of U. S. Steel Corporation in Chicago district are operating at 70 per cent of capacity, a gain of nearly 15 per cent in past two weeks.

For first time in four months, the shape mills of the National Tube company's plant at Lorain, Ohio, have been put into operation, and 500 additional men have been put to work; now 5,000 men at work.

Three hundred more men taken on at the plant of the American Shipbuilding company at Lorain, Ohio.

Plants of the National Enameling and Stamping company, at Granite City, Ill., and St. Louis, now ready to begin operations, with a full force working on full time. The ironworkers have consented to a cut in wages.

American Steel and Wire company increased the working force at its Joliet and Rockdale, Ill., plants by between 300 and 400 men, and a night shift is to be added. Full operation is expected by March 1.

Third Youngstown Sheet and Tube company furnace was relighted, leaving only one idle stack in the Youngstown plant.

Sixth and only idle stack of the Carnegie Steel company, at Youngstown, is being relined for lighting about March 1. Operation of the Struther furnace is also promised for that date.

H. C. Frick company fired 515 additional coke ovens, adding 3,355 ovens to the company's active list in the Connellsville region during the first half of February.

Second battery of 106 coke ovens, which are part of 424 ovens built at the Lehigh Coke plant at South Bethlehem, Pa., were charged.

Sixty ovens at the plant of the Somet-Solvay company at Benwood, W. Va., were started. An order for resumption of work at the Riverside tube mill of this company is expected shortly.

The Hancock Mining company will reopen its mine at once.

Russia is in this market for another large amount supply of copper metal, said to be 10,000,000 pounds.

Brownsville Window Glass company, Brownsville, Pa., started operations with from 300 to 350 men.

It was unofficially reported that the profits of the war contracts already closed by the Bethlehem Steel company cannot be less than $20,000,000.

American Can company's sales thus far in 1915 are reported to be the largest in the company's history, and the current quarter is expected to show the largest net profits of any similar period on record.

Swift & Co. announce that their business is on a very good basis, both as to volume and profit.

Since the war started South Bend, Ind., concerns have received motor car orders amounting to $16,000,000.

Lima, Ohio, concerns have motor car orders from abroad amounting to several millions of dollars including a Russian order for 2,000 trucks.

A Harrisburg, Pa., concern has received a $1,500,000 Russian order for motor trucks.

These are specific instances of the ushering in of a new industrial era, and should play a large and important part in dispelling the gloom from the homes of men who have vainly sought for work for six months or more.

On the other hand, bank clearings are not especially an optimistic note, Dun's reports showing for last week a decrease of 10 per cent for the whole United States. Examined in detail this shows a loss of 13.2 per cent in the middle states, 6.4 per cent in New England, 4.3 per cent in the southern states and 9.2 per cent in the middle west; while the far western states, including also the wheat districts of Missouri, Kansas, Colorado and Iowa, are credited with a 19.2 per cent increase.

The department of commerce at Washington has been publishing some very inspiring reports dealing with our trade with foreign countries. It is shown, for example, that in January, 1915, our imports were only $122,265,267, compared with $154,742,923 in January, 1914, and $163,063,438 in January, 1913. January, 1915, exports aggregated $267,801,370, compared with $204,066,603 in January of last year and $227,052,930 in January, 1913. Comparing the month's trade with the low points touched in August last, imports have decreased $7,502,623, or 5.8 per cent, while exports have increased $157,433,876, or 142.6 per cent. The most gratifying section of the report is that which calls attention to the fact that the excess of exports over imports for the month of January was $145,536,103, or practically three times that of January last year and more than double that of January, 1913. In the six months since August last the monthly trade balance has shifted from an excess of $31,400,396 on the import side to an excess of $145,536,103 on the export side, exceeding that shown by any previous month in the country's history.

A WHEAT EMBARGO.

Wheat is steadily rising in price, with the consequent advance in flour and bread. This is what might have been expected. At present the American harvest of only 900,000,000 bushels a year, is only a few million bushels in excess of home consumption, so that the surplus available for export is small. Owing to her large harvest and limited home consumption, Russia has an annual wheat surplus of 216,000,000 bushels which, however, with the closing of the Dardanelles and the Baltic, is not available for export. With the advent of spring, some Russian wheat can be sent abroad by way of Archangel. In the meanwhile, Great Britain is dependent upon the United States, Canada and Australia for her grain supply.

With all the world bidding for the small American surplus, the price is bound to soar, and there is but one way to escape the penalty of dear bread. This way is to place an embargo on the export of wheat and flour, and the adoption of such an embargo by the federal government is strongly urged.

Undoubtedly, what has occurred with respect to wheat ought to be a valuable lesson to American farmers, and teach them the expediency of greatly augmenting the acreage given to the growing of cereals, and the restoration of the depleted herds to their former totals. It is the duty of congress to come to the rescue of American farmers and aid them in overcoming the obstacles which block the way to progress in the new direction. Such necessitates a material increase in the total of the national crops, until the United States reaches an aggregate sufficiently large to make the great Republic of North America the largest producer and exporter of foodstuffs in the world.

CALOMEL SICKENS! IT'S HORRIBLE! DON'T STAY BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED

I guarantee "Dodson's Liver Tone" will give you the best Liver and Bowel cleansing you ever had Calomel makes you sick; you lose a day's work. Calomel is quicksilver and it salivates; calomel injures your liver.

If you are bilious; feel lazy, sluggish and all knocked out, if your bowels are constipated and your head aches or stomach is sour, just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone instead of using sickening, salivating calomel. Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and bowels regular. You will feel like working. You'll be cheerful; full of vigor and ambition.

Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal guarantee that it will clean your sluggish liver better than nasty calomel; it won't make you sick and you can eat anything you want without being salivated. Your druggist guarantees that each spoonful will start your liver. clean your bowels and straighten you up by morning or you get your money back. Children gladly take Dodson's Liver Tone because it is pleasant tasting and doesn't gripe or cramp or make them sick.

I am selling millions of bottles of Dodson's Liver Tone to people who have found that this pleasant, vegetable, liver medicine takes the place of dangerous calomel. Buy one bottle on my sound, reliable guarantee. Ask your druggist about me.—(Advt.)

ROOSEVELT REPLIES TO SUIT OF WM. BARNES

Colonel "Specifies" Instances of Wasteful Government in State of New York

(By Associated Press.)

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Local attorneys for Theodore Roosevelt, in the libel action brought against the former president by William Barnes, Jr., today received copies of the bill of particulars which Colonel Roosevelt has filed in reply to Mr. Barnes' demand.

Mr. Barnes called for a specification of "the several matters in regard to which the administration of the state government of New York has been insufficient, wastful and in some instances, corrupt."

Mr. Roosevelt replies that the periods referred to are the years 1911, 1912, 1913 and 1914. He bases his information on an editorial published in Mr. Barnes' newspaper, and also on the platform adopted by the republicans in the last state campaign which charges the democrats with gross abuses in administration and ligislation during the four years they were in power.

Specifications are given by Colonel Roosevelt to the charge that from 1898 to 1914 there had been co-operation between the democratic and republican organizations with regard to legislation.

In answer in request for names of political bosses who are alleged to have been hostile to the franchise tax law, Mr. Roosevelt names Mr. Barnes, among others.

In regard to times and places when and where Mr. Barnes is alleged to have entered into agreements (or others with his knowledge entered into agreements) with regard to legislation or executive action which should be favored or opposed as it would affect the pecuniary interests of such contributors, Mr. Roosevelt says it was since 1896 and prior to September 28, 1914. He gives the names of the parties with whom such alleged agreements were entered into as Anthony N. Brady, Robert C. Pruyn, the Mutual Life Insurance company and the Equitable Life Insurance company of New York.

CONFIRMATION OF EVANS AND COLLINS HELD UP

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 27.—The nominations of Charles L. Collins, and John Evans for postmaster at Cartersville and Warrenton, respectively, will not be confirmed by the senate at this session. Unless recess appointments should be made by the president, which is improbable, the incumbents will continue in office until the next session of congress.

Senator Hardwick stated today that Collins is personally objectionable to him, because of the character of his opposition to the renomination candidacy before and after the primary in Georgia. He has been informed, he says, that Collins fought him in a personal and unfair manner not only before the primary, but also before the Macon convention.

Collins was recommended by Congressman Gordon Lee, who is insisting upon his confirmation.

The nomination of Evans at Warrenton is being held up because a number of leading Warren county Democrats challenge his Democracy. Evans is now secretary to Congressman Vinson on whose recommendation he was nominated.

GEORGIA SENATORS WORK FOR HARRIS

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 27.—Senators Smith and Hardwick appeared today before the senate interstate commerce committee to urge a favorable report on the nomination of William J. Harris as a member of the federal trade commission.

PUFFY ANKLES OR EYELIDS

Dropsy, Spots Before the Eyes, Are Sure Signs of Weak Kidneys
